Winds Forecast As Calif. Forest Blazes Slowed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29 (AP)—Tired firefighters, gaining in their battle against flames threatening famed Mt. Wilson Observatory and nearby multi-million dollar television installations, heard an ominous Weather Bureau forecast today.

Winds 25 to 35 m.p.h. and even stronger gusts are anticipated late tonight and early tomorrow. A slackening of winds today greatly aided the firefighters.

Some Headway Made

A federal Forest Service spokesman said headway had been made during the day but "we are fearful because of the wind forecast."

Fingers of flame reached over the crest of Mt. Wilson to within 200 yards of observatory buildings today before being beaten back by crews.

Homes in foothills communities of the San Gabriel Mountains, east of the Mt. Wilson section of the fire, are believed to be out of danger. The blaze, with a 12-mile perimeter, has blackened 10,000 acres. It started two days ago.

Second Fire Being Checked

A second fire in the same range, 20 miles to the east near Mt. Baldy, probably will be controlled tonight after burning more than 3,000 acres.

With the lessening of danger to the foothill communities, more heavy pumpers and equipment joined the fight on the mountain where the 100-inch telescope, second largest in the world, is housed.

Babs May Take Fifth Mate Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Heiress Barbara Hutton may take international playboy Porfirio Rubirosa as her fifth husband tomorrow. Then again, she may not.

The slim, blonde 40-year-old heiress to Woolworth dime store millions hasn't said "yes" or "no" to reports of the impending marriage. She did tell reporters she was "delirious with joy" and suggested they draw their own conclusions.

Earl Wilson, columnist for the New York Post, reported her friends and financial advisers are trying to talk her out of marrying Rubirosa—a Latin lover if there ever was one.

Rubirosa flew in from the West Coast today, after telling a reporter there the marriage was definitely on. He would make no comment here, however.

Two Students Killed When Plane Crashes

BLACKSTONE, Va., Dec. 29 (AP)—Two college students were killed and a man seriously injured late today when the small plane in which they were flying struck high tension power wires and crashed near here.

The two dead were tentatively identified by police R. B. Jones Jr., 21, who lived near here with his uncle, George Irby, and Joe Irby, 21, of Blackstone.

Seriously injured was the plane's owner—and presumably its pilot—H. E. Rorer Jr., 27, of Crewe, who operates a small flying service.

Cop Who Caught Kidnapers Lied, Grand Jury Says

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29 (AP)—Louis Shoulders, who played a hero's role when he caught the kidnap-killers of little Bobby Greenlease, today was indicted by a federal grand jury for perjury.

The jury declared Shoulders, former St. Louis police lieutenant, lied when he told his story of the arrest and recovery of $300,000 of the record $600,000 ransom.

Judge Richard Duncan, who received the indictment, set bond at $10,000. In St. Louis, a woman who answered the phone soon after the indictment was returned, said Shoulders was not at home.

Arrested Carl Hall

Shoulders and Patrolman Elmer Dolan, who also was indicted for perjury two weeks ago, arrested Carl Austin Hall, 34, the money-mad kidnap killer last Oct. 6. This was eight days after Hall, and his drunken, divorced sweetheart, Mrs. Bonnie Heady, had seized the six-year-old son of a Kansas City millionaire, and shot him to death in a Kansas wheat field. Hall and Mrs. Heady were convicted and put to death, side by side, in the Missouri penitentiary gas chamber Dec. 18.

But both insisted they knew nothing of the disappearance of the missing half of the ransom. Hall said he had more than $590,000 with him in his hotel room when Shoulders and Dolan arrested him. Only minutes before the lethal gas snuffed out his life, Hall told federal officers he could give them no further clue to the missing money.

Conflicting Testimony

Shoulders and Dolan both appeared before the grand jury that indicted Hall and Mrs. Heady. They said they took the suitcases containing the money to the police station promptly, and intact. Other persons testified they saw no suitcases or money brought into the police station at the time Hall was brought in and booked.

It was this testimony on which today's indictment was based.

This same story brought about Shoulder's resignation from the St. Louis police department. A police board started an investigation of the arrest last October. Shoulders resigned in anger after testifying before the board. He said his reputation as a police officer had been destroyed.

Rhee Urges U. N. "Rise With Us," Annihilate Reds

SEOUL, Wednesday, Dec. 30 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee in a New Year's message yesterday called on the Allies to end talks "fore-doomed to be fruitless" with the Communists and "rise with us . . . for the last great battle to annihilate the Red forces."

The message to the South Korean people renewed the 79-year-old President's pledge to reunite Korea "just as soon as we possibly can."

Rhee declared that in his opinion the failure of preliminary talks to arrange a Korean peace conference "was final."

Break Seen Permanent

"If the United States continues to maintain its present strong stand," he said, "we shall never have to wait another three or four months in an attempt to prepare for a political (peace) conference that is foredoomed to be fruitless."

Kenneth Young, U.S. State Department Asia expert who now heads the Allied team to arrange the peace conference, told newsmen in Seoul he regarded Rhee's prediction on the permanent breakdown of the talks as "largely a matter of speculation."

"But the Communists have given every indication they do not want a political peace conference," Young added.

Objective Not Abandoned

He said the United States and the U.N. have "not abandoned their objective" of convening a political conference to seek the Allied goal of a free, independent and unified Korea.

Rhee bitterly blamed successive Communist regimes — Russian, North Korean and Chinese — for a "calculated policy of genocide" which he said had shrunk the population of North Korea from seven million in 1945 to fewer than three million now. He asserted the Communist regimes had refused all offers of food, clothing and medicine for the destitute population.

White Is Bankrupt

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29 (AP)—Theatrical producer George White, whose "Scandals" were leading Broadway shows, today filed a petition in bankruptcy.

He listed obligations of $100,780 and assets of only $1,410 in the Federal Court action. He said his 1953 income was $14,880.

Hundreds Hope To See Miracle In French Town

ENTREVAUX, France, Dec. 29 (AP)—An estimated 2,000 persons jammed this village in southern France today hoping to see a miracle. A carved wood statue of St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, reportedly has dropped blood from a broken forefinger.

The small statue depicting the saint with a child reading a book at her feet is owned by Jean Salote, 40-year-old proprietor of a local hotel. He bought it from an antique shop a month ago and placed it in his hotel restaurant.

Night before last, Salote said, he was in a bad humor because he had lost at cards. Passing through the restaurant, he peevishly waved his fist and accidently broke off a tip of the statue's extended forefinger.

Yesterday morning, he was amazed to find a red liquid dripping from the finger.

The bleeding stopped after about 30 drops had fallen into a glass at a rate of one a minute. Last night the dripping began again and 15 more drops were collected.

Broad Social Security Plan Is Suggested

Sweeping Changes In System Sought By House Leader

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Chairman Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb) of a House subcommittee today proposed a sweeping overhaul of the social security system to provide pensions immediately for almost all retired persons over 65.

His program, proposing the most sweeping changes in years, would be financed by extending the social security tax to cover almost all workers under 65, and to all types of income.

Would Boost Minimum

He would raise the minimum social security payment from the present $25 monthly to $45, and ease retirement tests so that workers could make up to $1,000 annually and still draw their pensions.

This almost universal pension plan calls for abolishing the present federal program of direct welfare grants to the needy aged. States and local governments could continue welfare grants.

Curtis outlined his program in a statement and a subsequent interview.

He estimated his proposal would add more than 3½ billion dollars to the cost of Old Age and Survivors' Insurance (OASI) next year, making the total $6,670,000,000.

Would Let Rate Jump

He predicted it would bring in revenue of about $7,300,000,000, thus adding a net of about 630 million next year to the present 19 billion dollar social security trust fund. He would let the social security tax rate jump from 1½ per cent to 2 per cent of wages up to $3,600 annually, as scheduled next Friday.

Curtis heads a special subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee which has been investigating the present social security system for months.

President Takes Action To Avert Railroad Strike

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower acted today to stave off a nationwide strike of more than a million railroad workers who are members of 15 non-operating unions.

The President created a three-man emergency board, which has the effect of averting a strike for 60 days.

The workers are railroad employes such as clerks, track walkers and others whose jobs are not on the moving trains. Their dispute is with 150 railroads operating all over the country.

An executive order setting up the emergency board was signed by the President at his vacation headquarters here. He said the dispute is with 150 railroads operating all over the country.

An executive order setting up the emergency board was signed by the President at his vacation headquarters here. He said the dispute threatens "substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Under the railway labor law, once an emergency board is created there can be no strike for a two-month period. During the first half of the period the board will hold hearings and recommend settlement terms.

USAF To Hire 35,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Air Force said today it expects to add more than 35,000 native civilian employes in overseas areas during the next two years to the approximate 96,000 it now hires or is authorized to hire.

Secretary's Daughters Model Dresses

U. S. Exchanging Some Atom Data, Senator Reports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Ia) disclosed today that the United States already is exchanging some secret atomic information on "materials processing" with friendly nations.

The exchange has dealt with atomic isotopes, he said. Some isotopes, or twin forms of certain elements, are used for medical treatment and scientific experiments. Industrial uses of atomic energy were not included in the exchange because of restrictions in the law, he said.

Pool Requires Amendments

Hickenlooper, vice chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Committee, said in an interview that amendments to the present atomic energy law would be required to carry out President Eisenhower's proposal for international pooling of atomic energy materials for peaceful purposes.

He said the present exchange of atomic data with other free nations is possible because of a revision of the Atomic Energy Act during the last session of Congress.

"We opened up the act a little bit for exchanging of certain information with regard to materials processing," he said.

Canada, Belgium Mentioned

There have been previous reports, however, of a fragmentary exchange of scientific information with Canada. It was also reported several months ago that the Belgians were working on a definition of their specific needs in the permitted area of exchange.

Industrial uses would be included under the proposal which Eisenhower made in a speech before the U. N. Assembly Dec. 8. He suggested establishment of an international atomic energy agency by the nations most concerned, including Russia. The countries would contribute some of their atomic materials to a common pool for peaceful uses.

Zsa Zsa Reports Spurned Playboy Socked Her In Eye

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Dec. 29 (AP)—Zsa Zsa Gabor called a news conference today to explain what she called a black eye.

She said Porfirio Rubirosa, the romantic Dominican diplomat socked her, "in a fit of temper," when she refused to marry him

And she said it was the first time she had ever been hit.

Rubirosa, whose name has been linked romantically with women all over the world, most recently has been reported interested in Zsa Zsa and heiress Barbara Hutton. He said last night in Los Angeles he would marry Barbara tomorrow in New York.

French Troops Pour Into Laos

HANOI, Indochina, Dec. 29 (AP)—The French poured troops into central Indochina today to reinforce a counter offensive—already opened by warplanes—against the Vietminh rebels who split the country in two.

The French concentrated at the Laotian air base of Seno, about 40 miles south of the lines that Communist-led battalions sliced westward across Lao from old bases on the seacoast of neighboring Viet Nam to Thailand's Mekong River frontier during Christmas week.

French men massed at Seno with survivors of French Union garrisons withdrawn or overrun during the lightning offensive. To the north lies the ruins of Thakhek, a town of 10,000 the French regarded as a trap and abandoned to the Vietminh. Twenty miles to the southwest lies Savannakhet, a Mekong River port to which French civilians of Thakhek have been evacuated.

Pilots flying American-supplied B26 bombers and Bearcat fighters strafed long trails of coolies carrying in supplies for the rebels on their backs. French ground reconnaissance units, pushing deep into the Laos jungle, said they were unable to contact the rebels for the third straight day.

Ike Will Revise '54 Plan To Meet Valid Objections

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) reported today President Eisenhower will reshape his new legislative program to meet any major, valid objections from Democratic leaders in Congress.

Ferguson, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, took issue with complaints from Democrats that they are being consulted on the program too late to have any part in formulating it.

Program Preview Jan. 5

Eisenhower has invited key leaders of both parties to the White House on Jan. 5 for an advance briefing on the program that will be wrapped up in the President's State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 7.

But many Democrats are adopting the position, taken by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), that two days before the message is delivered is pretty late for any consulting except on a courtesy basis.

"I wouldn't want the Democrats to be charged with any responsibility for the program on that basis," McCarran said. "It reminds me of the surgeon who invited a guest in to view the remains and be at the wake."

Not Too Late For Changes

Ferguson said, however, that Jan. 5 won't be too late for changes in the Eisenhower message if they are warranted.

"It will not be too late for changes in the message. The President isn't doing this just as a decoy or something."

Ferguson is calling the GOP Policy Committee together immediately after the bi-partisan legislative conference at the White House Jan. 5.

Aggression Would Bring U. S. Attacks

Possible Mainland Blows Hinted If Reds Enter Indochina War

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles hinted broadly today American air and naval power might strike at the China mainland if Red Chinese troops openly intervene in Indochina or resume the war in Korea.

He gave this warning at a news conference while at the same time minimizing the military importance of a new Communist thrust across the narrow waist of Indochina.

Dulles' remarks reinforced a similar warning he issued in a speech before an American Legion convention in St. Louis last Sept. 2.

At that time, the secretary said any new Red aggression would cause grave consequences "which might not be confined to Indochina" and which would strip the Communists of their "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria.

In recalling this warning today, Dulles specifically noted the growing American Navy and Air Force in the Far East as possible weapons of retaliation.

Any renewal of hostilities in Korea or a Chinese Communist attack in Indochina, he said, would bring an American reaction "not necessarily confined to the particular area the Communist choose to make the theater of their new aggression."

Instead of trying to meet any new aggression "merely by land power of our own on Asia," he said, "there would be more reliance on (American) sea and air power which would give us a greater choice."

Departing from his usual custom, Dulles permitted his remarks to be quoted directly.

The secretary expressed complete confidence in the ability of French and loyal Indochinese forces to counter the latest Vietminh Communist attack in the kingdom of Laos.

He maintained that this Red gain has been very greatly exaggerated in the American press. He said the Communist advance to the border of neighboring Thailand in one sector does not pose a present threat to that country. Neither, he said, does it appreciably upset French plans for eventual victory.

Humphrey Forecasts Continued Prosperity

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Treasury Secretary George Humphrey says he looks for a continued high level of business activity in 1954.

He said in an interview with Newsweek magazine:

"This does not mean that there may not be adjustments in some particular lines, but there is every reason why the total economic activity should continue very high."

To a question of whether the decline in defense spending might lead to a depression, Humphrey told Newsweek:

"Neither American business nor American labor needs war to be prosperous. Our population is increasing by thousands of newborn each day. The needs and wants of Americans are increasing just as swiftly. . . ."

Israel Debate Adjourned

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—The Security Council, still divided over what to do about Israel's Jordan River power project, voted today to adjourn debate on the issue until the new year.

Two Americans Released By Reds Catch Up On News

BERLIN, Dec. 29 (AP)—A little weary but in fairly good health, two Americans came back to the free West today after years in Soviet prison camps. They immediately wanted to know who won the 1953 World Series and other news.

Russian authorities released Pvt. Homer H. Cox, 33, of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Leland Towers, 28, a merchant seaman from San Francisco, at their East Berlin headquarters. The action came after months of negotiations by the U. S. State Department.

U. S. Army officers brought the pair, unshaven and otherwise in need of barbering, to the American sector. There they were taken in tow by intelligence agents who made it clear neither would be available for any public statement or photographs until their cases are thoroughly investigated.

Cox, a military policeman assigned to West Berlin, disappeared Sept. 22, 1949. Believed arrested by the Russians in their sector of the city, he has been carried on the rolls as absent without official leave.

Towers fell into Russian hands in Finland in 1951 while on shore leave from his ship.

Whereabouts of both men were a mystery until groups of German, Austrian and Dutch prisoners of war were released several months ago in the Soviet amnesty of men the Russians called minor war criminals. They came to the West with stories that Cox and Towers had both been seen in a prison camp north of Moscow.

Gov. McKeldin Says State Income Tax Cut Is Out Of Question

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 29 (AP)—State revenues won't be sufficient to permit another income-tax cut, Gov. McKeldin said today.

The governor confirmed unofficial reports by budget and tax analysts that a repetition of the 15 per cent reduction allowed the last two years now seems impossible.

"It's out," McKeldin said. "There's no question about it."

He didn't believe the General Assembly could turn up money to accomplish another cut by slashing the budget for 1954-55. The governor will recommend appropriations for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 at the 30-day session beginning Feb. 3.

Legislators will not be able to scrape tax-relief funds from appropriations "unless they cut out essential services," he said.

The governor, promising "every effort" to avoid any increases, said the lack of a substantial revenue surplus in the offing frustrated hopes of lowering the income tax again.

"They've been saying surplus financing is bad," McKeldin said. "Brother, it's out."

He referred to criticism by proponents of a plan for automatic tax reduction similar to that followed in Virginia. It applies excess revenue to tax relief. Maryland has taken much of the surplus collected one year to balance its budget for the next and keep pace with mounting costs.

The surplus as of last July 1 was nearly 14½ million dollars. The Board of Revenue Estimates, whose calculations are accepted as official, predicts it will be just under $3,700,000 by the end of this fiscal year.

Two years ago McKeldin and the Legislative Council sponsored the first of the recent income-tax reductions with part of the surplus. It saved the taxpayers about $3,800,000.

Last year the same 15 per cent deduction was allowed on 1952 individual earnings. McKeldin hadn't thought it possible before the Legislature met, but during the session the Board of Revenue Estimates raised its forecast of state receipts. Its revised estimate, which still fell shy of collections, formed the basis for the second straight tax allowance. Fiscal officers figure this meant a saving of some 4¼ millions to the taxpayers.

Germans Watch In Silence As Film Unrolls Nazi Past

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 29 (AP)—The most controversial film in modern Germany was unreeled here recently and the German audience took it in dead silence.

No one applauded. No one booed. And there was no laughter.

The film, titled "Until Five After Twelve," is a piece of historical self-analysis that delves thoroughly into the Nazi years.

Pieced together largely from newsreel shots, it brings up the happy along with the unpleasant.

Until a few weeks ago, it was banned in most sections of Germany by state officials. They feared it would make Germans nostalgic for the old Hitler days.

The film shows Eva Braun, Hitler's mistress, cavorting under a waterfall in a tightfitting bathing suit. She runs happily, shaking off the water.

Then the film switches abruptly to what looks like a big shower room. A hand is shown slowly turning a valve. It isn't an ordinary shower room. It was one of the gas chambers where uncounted Jews were killed.

No audience reaction, just a deep breath or two.

More of the past is rolled out. Great masses of people salute Hitler, their arms outstretched and devoted smiles on their faces. Hitler rants and promises to make the streets free of "Communist terror."

Gen. Eisenhower is shown in a buoyant mood, smoking a cigarette. A swastika lies in a rubble-littered street. A U.S. Army truck, filled with infantrymen, rolls over it. No audience reaction.

The film concludes with a farmer and his oxen moving off into the sunset. The commentator says:

"We saw how it began; we have known how it always, always ends."

He predicted it would bring in revenue of about $7,300,000,000, thus adding a net of about 630 million next year to the present 19 billion dollar social security trust fund. He would let the social security tax rate jump from 1½ per cent to 2 per cent of wages up to $3,600 annually, as scheduled next Friday.

Curtis heads a special subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee which has been investigating the present social security system for months.

President Takes Action To Avert Railroad Strike

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower acted today to stave off a nationwide strike of more than a million railroad workers who are members of 15 non-operating unions.

The President created a three-man emergency board, which has the effect of averting a strike for 60 days.

The workers are railroad employes such as clerks, track walkers and others whose jobs are not on the moving trains. Their dispute is with 150 railroads operating all over the country.

An executive order setting up the emergency board was signed by the President at his vacation headquarters here. He said the dispute is with 150 railroads operating all over the country.

An executive order setting up the emergency board was signed by the President at his vacation headquarters here. He said the dispute threatens "substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Under the railway labor law, once an emergency board is created there can be no strike for a two-month period. During the first half of the period the board will hold hearings and recommend settlement terms.

Hundreds Hope To See Miracle In French Town

ENTREVAUX, France, Dec. 29 (AP)—An estimated 2,000 persons jammed this village in southern France today hoping to see a miracle. A carved wood statue of St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, reportedly has dropped blood from a broken forefinger.

The small statue depicting the saint with a child reading a book at her feet is owned by Jean Salote, 40-year-old proprietor of a local hotel. He bought it from an antique shop a month ago and placed it in his hotel restaurant.

Night before last, Salote said, he was in a bad humor because he had lost at cards. Passing through the restaurant, he peevishly waved his fist and accidently broke off a tip of the statue's extended forefinger.

Yesterday morning, he was amazed to find a red liquid dripping from the finger.

The bleeding stopped after about 30 drops had fallen into a glass at a rate of one a minute. Last night the dripping began again and 15 more drops were collected.

U. S. Exchanging Some Atom Data, Senator Reports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Ia) disclosed today that the United States already is exchanging some secret atomic information on "materials processing" with friendly nations.

The exchange has dealt with atomic isotopes, he said. Some isotopes, or twin forms of certain elements, are used for medical treatment and scientific experiments. Industrial uses of atomic energy were not included in the exchange because of restrictions in the law, he said.

Pool Requires Amendments

Hickenlooper, vice chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Committee, said in an interview that amendments to the present atomic energy law would be required to carry out President Eisenhower's proposal for international pooling of atomic energy materials for peaceful purposes.

He said the present exchange of atomic data with other free nations is possible because of a revision of the Atomic Energy Act during the last session of Congress.

"We opened up the act a little bit for exchanging of certain information with regard to materials processing," he said.

Canada, Belgium Mentioned

There have been previous reports, however, of a fragmentary exchange of scientific information with Canada. It was also reported several months ago that the Belgians were working on a definition of their specific needs in the permitted area of exchange.

Industrial uses would be included under the proposal which Eisenhower made in a speech before the U. N. Assembly Dec. 8. He suggested establishment of an international atomic energy agency by the nations most concerned, including Russia. The countries would contribute some of their atomic materials to a common pool for peaceful uses.

Zsa Zsa Reports Spurned Playboy Socked Her In Eye

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Dec. 29 (AP)—Zsa Zsa Gabor called a news conference today to explain what she called a black eye.

She said Porfirio Rubirosa, the romantic Dominican diplomat socked her, "in a fit of temper," when she refused to marry him.

And she said it was the first time she had ever been hit.

Rubirosa, whose name has been linked romantically with women all over the world, most recently has been reported interested in Zsa Zsa and heiress Barbara Hutton. He said last night in Los Angeles he would marry Barbara tomorrow in New York.

French Troops Pour Into Laos

HANOI, Indochina, Dec. 29 (AP)—The French poured troops into central Indochina today to reinforce a counter offensive—already opened by warplanes—against the Vietminh rebels who split the country in two.

The French concentrated at the Laotian air base of Seno, about 40 miles south of the lines that Communist-led battalions sliced westward across Lao from old bases on the seacoast of neighboring Viet Nam to Thailand's Mekong River frontier during Christmas week.

French men massed at Seno with survivors of French Union garrisons withdrawn or overrun during the lightning offensive. To the north lies the ruins of Thakhek, a town of 10,000 the French regarded as a trap and abandoned to the Vietminh. Twenty miles to the southwest lies Savannakhet, a Mekong River port to which French civilians of Thakhek have been evacuated.

Pilots flying American-supplied B26 bombers and Bearcat fighters strafed long trails of coolies carrying in supplies for the rebels on their backs. French ground reconnaissance units, pushing deep into the Laos jungle, said they were unable to contact the rebels for the third straight day.

Ike Will Revise '54 Plan To Meet Valid Objections

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) reported today President Eisenhower will reshape his new legislative program to meet any major, valid objections from Democratic leaders in Congress.

Ferguson, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, took issue with complaints from Democrats that they are being consulted on the program too late to have any part in formulating it.

Program Preview Jan. 5

Eisenhower has invited key leaders of both parties to the White House on Jan. 5 for an advance briefing on the program that will be wrapped up in the President's State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 7.

But many Democrats are adopting the position, taken by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), that two days before the message is delivered is pretty late for any consulting except on a courtesy basis.

"I wouldn't want the Democrats to be charged with any responsibility for the program on that basis," McCarran said. "It reminds me of the surgeon who invited a guest in to view the remains and be at the wake."

Not Too Late For Changes

Ferguson said, however, that Jan. 5 won't be too late for changes in the Eisenhower message if they are warranted.

"It will not be too late for changes in the message. The President isn't doing this just as a decoy or something."

Ferguson is calling the GOP Policy Committee together immediately after the bi-partisan legislative conference at the White House Jan. 5.

Aggression Would Bring U. S. Attacks

Possible Mainland Blows Hinted If Reds Enter Indochina War

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles hinted broadly today American air and naval power might strike at the China mainland if Red Chinese troops openly intervene in Indochina or resume the war in Korea.

He gave this warning at a news conference while at the same time minimizing the military importance of a new Communist thrust across the narrow waist of Indochina.

Dulles' remarks reinforced a similar warning he issued in a speech before an American Legion convention in St. Louis last Sept. 2.

At that time, the secretary said any new Red aggression would cause grave consequences "which might not be confined to Indochina" and which would strip the Communists of their "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria.

In recalling this warning today, Dulles specifically noted the growing American Navy and Air Force in the Far East as possible weapons of retaliation.

Any renewal of hostilities in Korea or a Chinese Communist attack in Indochina, he said, would bring an American reaction "not necessarily confined to the particular area the Communist choose to make the theater of their new aggression."

Instead of trying to meet any new aggression "merely by land power of our own on Asia," he said, "there would be more reliance on (American) sea and air power which would give us a greater choice."

Departing from his usual custom, Dulles permitted his remarks to be quoted directly.

The secretary expressed complete confidence in the ability of French and loyal Indochinese forces to counter the latest Vietminh Communist attack in the kingdom of Laos.

He maintained that this Red gain has been very greatly exaggerated in the American press. He said the Communist advance to the border of neighboring Thailand in one sector does not pose a present threat to that country. Neither, he said, does it appreciably upset French plans for eventual victory.

Humphrey Forecasts Continued Prosperity

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Treasury Secretary George Humphrey says he looks for a continued high level of business activity in 1954.

He said in an interview with Newsweek magazine:

"This does not mean that there may not be adjustments in some particular lines, but there is every reason why the total economic activity should continue very high."

To a question of whether the decline in defense spending might lead to a depression, Humphrey told Newsweek:

"Neither American business nor American labor needs war to be prosperous. Our population is increasing by thousands of newborn each day. The needs and wants of Americans are increasing just as swiftly. . . ."

Israel Debate Adjourned

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—The Security Council, still divided over what to do about Israel's Jordan River power project, voted today to adjourn debate on the issue until the new year.

Germans Watch In Silence As Film Unrolls Nazi Past

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 29 (AP)—The most controversial film in modern Germany was unreeled here recently and the German audience took it in dead silence.

No one applauded. No one booed. And there was no laughter.

The film, titled "Until Five After Twelve," is a piece of historical self-analysis that delves thoroughly into the Nazi years.

Pieced together largely from newsreel shots, it brings up the happy along with the unpleasant.

Until a few weeks ago, it was banned in most sections of Germany by state officials. They feared it would make Germans nostalgic for the old Hitler days.

The film shows Eva Braun, Hitler's mistress, cavorting under a waterfall in a tightfitting bathing suit. She runs happily, shaking off the water.

Then the film switches abruptly to what looks like a big shower room. A hand is shown slowly turning a valve. It isn't an ordinary shower room. It was one of the gas chambers where uncounted Jews were killed.

No audience reaction, just a deep breath or two.

More of the past is rolled out. Great masses of people salute Hitler, their arms outstretched and devoted smiles on their faces. Hitler rants and promises to make the streets free of "Communist terror."

Gen. Eisenhower is shown in a buoyant mood, smoking a cigarette. A swastika lies in a rubble-littered street. A U.S. Army truck, filled with infantrymen, rolls over it. No audience reaction.

The film concludes with a farmer and his oxen moving off into the sunset. The commentator says:

Gov. McKeldin Says State Income Tax Cut Is Out Of Question

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 29 (AP)—State revenues won't be sufficient to permit another income-tax cut, Gov. McKeldin said today.

The governor confirmed unofficial reports by budget and tax analysts that a repetition of the 15 per cent reduction allowed the last two years now seems impossible.

"It's out," McKeldin said. "There's no question about it."

He didn't believe the General Assembly could turn up money to accomplish another cut by slashing the budget for 1954-55. The governor will recommend appropriations for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 at the 30-day session beginning Feb. 3.

Legislators will not be able to scrape tax-relief funds from appropriations "unless they cut out essential services," he said.

The governor, promising "every effort" to avoid any increases, said the lack of a substantial revenue surplus in the offing frustrated hopes of lowering the income tax again.

"They've been saying surplus financing is bad," McKeldin said. "Brother, it's out."

He referred to criticism by proponents of a plan for automatic tax reduction similar to that followed in Virginia. It applies excess revenue to tax relief. Maryland has taken much of the surplus collected one year to balance its budget for the next and keep pace with mounting costs.

The surplus as of last July 1 was nearly 14½ million dollars. The Board of Revenue Estimates, whose calculations are accepted as official, predicts it will be just under $3,700,000 by the end of this fiscal year.

Two years ago McKeldin and the Legislative Council sponsored the first of the recent income-tax reductions with part of the surplus. It saved the taxpayers about $3,800,000.

Last year the same 15 per cent deduction was allowed on 1952 individual earnings. McKeldin hadn't thought it possible before the Legislature met, but during the session the Board of Revenue Estimates raised its forecast of state receipts. Its revised estimate, which still fell shy of collections, formed the basis for the second straight tax allowance. Fiscal officers figure this meant a saving of some 4¼ millions to the taxpayers.

State Demos To Hold War Council Monday

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—Democratic chieftains throughout Maryland were called today to an emergency council of war for the 1954 elections.

At least 60 top-ranking party figures are expected to attend the session Monday afternoon in a Baltimore hotel (The Emerson) with a view toward either selecting a "harmony candidate" for the gubernatorial race or at least discouraging a crippling primary.

Such a meeting had been rumored for weeks as many a Maryland Democrat expressed fears that the primary campaign was shaping up into a repetition of recent ones which found the party disunited at general election time.

Invitations went out to scores of top party figures. They included former Gov. William Preston Lane Jr.; former U. S. Sens. Millard E. Tydings, Herbert R. O'Conor and George L. Radcliffe; State Senate President George W. Della, House Speaker John C. Luber, Emerson C. Harrington of Dorchester County, and Hugo R. Hoffmann, former state head of the Office of Price Stabilization.

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles also got the word.

Besides these, invitations by telegram, telephone and word-of-mouth went to other Democratic members of the Legislature and key party leaders in the various counties and Baltimore City.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore, who was the first to announce he would seek the nomination for governor but who has not yet filed, was said to be in line for an invitation as Democratic national committeeman.

Among the prime movers in organizing the harmony meeting were O'Conor, former national committeeman Howard Bruce, James C. Morton Jr., of Anne Arundel County, past president of the Young Democrats of Maryland; Joseph D. Tydings, recently elected president of the same organization and son of the former senator; James W. Wills, for years a party leader in Charles County, several Baltimore party leaders and chairmen of the various county central committees.

Organizers insisted the meeting included supporters of all announced aspirants for the nomination, George P. Mahoney, Baltimore contractor, and Dr. H. C. Byrd, retiring president of the Junior Officers Tours Of Service Will Be Curtailed

WASHINGTON, Dec 29 (AP)—The Army announced today that the active duty tours of some 6,000 non-regular junior officers will be curtailed next year.

This reduction in service, the Army said, will help the Army get down to its projected strength of 1,423,000 by next June 30.

Officers affected will be largely graduates of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the officer candidates program and the National Guard. The Army said the curtailed service order will start Feb. 1 and end next Aug. 31. Thereafter the normal 24-month period of active duty for non-regular officers will be required.

Insofar as practicable those who complete 21 months service by Feb. 1 will be relieved in that month. Other junior officers will be separated between Feb. 1 and June 1 as they complete the temporarily shortened tour of 21 months service.

All of the officers involved in the shortened service program won their commissions on the understanding they would be required to serve at least 24 months.

Japanese Volcanoes Erupt With Violence

TOKYO, Wednesday, Dec. 20 (AP)—Japan's two most active volcanoes erupted within six hours of each other yesterday with great violence but no casualties were reported.

The Central Meteorological Observatory reported Mt. Mihara on Oshima, an island about 50 miles south of Tokyo, erupted with explosive violence at 3:02 a.m. (1:02 p.m. Monday, EST).

Five hours and 38 minutes later, Mt. Asama, 100 miles north of Tokyo, broke loose with an eruption that sent dense smoke towering 2,000 feet. Volcanic ashes were scattered over a wide area.

Suspended Justice Says He's 'Bloody But Unbowed'

PARIS, Dec. 29 (AP)—William Clark, suspended chief justice of the U. S. court system in Germany stepped jauntily off a plane from Spain today and told newsmen he was "bloody but unbowed" by State Department measures to force him home.

Clark said the U. S. consul general in Madrid, Robert Hale, picked up his diplomatic passport while he and his wife were vacationing in Spain's Canary Islands. He was issued a strictly limited regular passport.

The new passport is good for just one direct trip to the United States. Clark declared Hale told him he ran the risk of arrest if he refused to give up his old passport. The State Department in Washington denied any jail threat was involved.

The wealthy jurist from Princeton, N. J., was suspended Dec. 9 when he refused an order to return to Washington for consultations prior to dismissal Jan. 8 for what the department called economy reasons. A critic of U. S. High Commission policies in Germany, Clark charged the real reason for the recall was his refusal to take State Department orders and his attempts to uphold an independent judiciary.

Spurning the return order, he and his wife took off for the Canaries, Spanish territory off Africa, for a vacation.

"The consul general came down to see me," Clark said today, "and told me I had to surrender my diplomatic passport and if I didn't the police would be advised and I'd be put in jail, so naturally I surrendered the passport."

The State Department's action blocked Clark's plan to return to Germany and continue sitting as a judge despite his suspension.

In Bonn, the president of the Assn. of American Lawyers in Europe criticized the passport shift as "drastic action." He said "that's no way to treat a man in his (Clark's) position."

Numbing Cold Wave Surges Into Midwest

[By The Associated Press]

A numbing year's end cold wave—worst of the winter—hit the northern fringes of the Midwest Tuesday sending the mercury skidding below zero.

Afternoon temperatures plummeted as the cold wave surged across the border from Canada. The U.S. Weather Bureau in Chicago warned that overnight temperatures would dip to as much as 35 below in northern Minnesota.

Cold wave warnings were issued for the entire Midwest and as far south as Kentucky, westward to Colorado and eastward to Ohio.

Wilson Says U. S. Strength Tops For Peacetime

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson today underlined his policy of strength through economy in a report to President Eisenhower describing U. S. military forces as the most powerful this country ever assembled "short of war."

The report, required by law, is the first formal accounting of stewardship by Wilson and his new defense team. Eisenhower will forward it to Congress.

Although concerned primarily with the first half of 1953, it also dealt with developments stemming from the "new look" at U. S. strategy and requirements that Wilson ordered his military chiefs to undertake.

It places heavy emphasis upon air power, new weapons, including atomic, and reductions in manpower without weakening America's fighting strength.

Chrysler Corp. Buys Briggs Plants

DETROIT, Dec. 29 (AP)—Chrysler Corp. for 35 million dollars today acquired 12 aircraft plants and auto body-making plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. Physical transfers of the properties became effective at midnight.

Within 90 days additional amounts will be paid by Chrysler for automotive inventories held by Briggs. Value of the inventories has not yet been established. At the end of 1952 they were valued at roughly 40 million dollars.

Briggs stockholders voted overwhelmingly yesterday to sell the 12 plants to Chrysler for 35 million in cash. President L. L. Colbert of Chrysler delivered the money today.

Briggs had built all Plymouth bodies for Chrysler, which builds its own Dodge, DeSoto and Chrysler Bodies. Plymouth accounts for approximately half of all cars produced by Chrysler, with which Briggs did 80 per cent of its automotive business.

Numbing Cold Wave Surges Into Midwest

[By The Associated Press]

A numbing year's end cold wave—worst of the winter—hit the northern fringes of the Midwest Tuesday sending the mercury skidding below zero.

Afternoon temperatures plummeted as the cold wave surged across the border from Canada. The U.S. Weather Bureau in Chicago warned that overnight temperatures would dip to as much as 35 below in northern Minnesota.

Cold wave warnings were issued for the entire Midwest and as far south as Kentucky, westward to Colorado and eastward to Ohio.

German POWs Return

BERLIN, Dec. 29 (AP)—The East German Interior Ministry said tonight a new group of 1,043 German war prisoners were returned from the Soviet Union today—the second this week.

Wilson Says U. S. Strength Tops For Peacetime

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson today underlined his policy of strength through economy in a report to President Eisenhower describing U. S. military forces as the most powerful this country ever assembled "short of war."

The report, required by law, is the first formal accounting of stewardship by Wilson and his new defense team. Eisenhower will forward it to Congress.

Although concerned primarily with the first half of 1953, it also dealt with developments stemming from the "new look" at U. S. strategy and requirements that Wilson ordered his military chiefs to undertake.

It places heavy emphasis upon air power, new weapons, including atomic, and reductions in manpower without weakening America's fighting strength.

Motorist Forgot But Sheriff Didn't

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Dec. 29 (AP)—A Milwaukee man may have forgotten something when he stopped at the Chippewa County sheriff's office to report theft of his car, but Sheriff Elmer Paquette didn't.

He booked Walter M. Seidelman, 39, for nonsupport of his wife, who lives here. Seidelman was fined $540 in county court Monday.

Thomas May Run Again

ALLENDALE, N. J., Dec. 29 (AP)—Former GOP Rep. J. Parnell Thomas said tonight he may run for Congress again next year.

Chrysler Corp. Buys Briggs Plants

DETROIT, Dec. 29 (AP)—Chrysler Corp. for 35 million dollars today acquired 12 aircraft plants and auto body-making plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. Physical transfers of the properties became effective at midnight.

Within 90 days additional amounts will be paid by Chrysler for automotive inventories held by Briggs. Value of the inventories has not yet been established. At the end of 1952 they were valued at roughly 40 million dollars.

Briggs stockholders voted overwhelmingly yesterday to sell the 12 plants to Chrysler for 35 million in cash. President L. L. Colbert of Chrysler delivered the money today.

Briggs had built all Plymouth bodies for Chrysler, which builds its own Dodge, DeSoto and Chrysler Bodies. Plymouth accounts for approximately half of all cars produced by Chrysler, with which Briggs did 80 per cent of its automotive business.

Massachusetts Finally Acts To Recognize State Of Texas

BOSTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—You can put that 48th star back in the flag, Betsy. Massachusetts moved last night to recognize Texas as a state in the Union.

Statesmen in other states seem to agree—as well as statesmen can—that Texas was admitted to the Union Dec. 29, 1845, but Bay State Yankees are a stubborn sort.

Seems a few months earlier, in March, 1845, the General Court of Massachusetts (that's Yankee for state legislature) resolved not to "acknowledge the act of the U. S. government authorizing the admission of Texas."

The court furthermore refused to recognize the admission as "a legal act in any way binding her (Massachusetts) from using her utmost exertions . . . to annul its conditions and defeat its accomplishment . . ."

Not that it made any difference to Texas. It made no difference to Massachusetts, either, until a couple of weeks ago when someone stumbled onto the fact that the 108-year-old resolution had never been repealed.

No one is quite sure now just what occasioned the anti-Texas resolve. There was some mention of "slavery . . . Southern states . . . the Union . . . etc." But that seems to have been cleared up by now.

At least it seems to have been cleared up to Gov. Christian Herter's satisfaction. Herter, a cautious Back Bay Yankee, sent the following letter to Texas Gov. Allan Shivers:

"It has been called to my attention that back in 1845, the Massachusetts General Court adopted a resolution condemning the admission of Texas to the Union.

"This resolve is still on the books of the Massachusetts Legislature.

"Since it now appears that Texas is no longer an independent republic, although Massachusetts has never been officially notified to this effect, it is my opinion that the time has arrived when the great Commonwealth of Massachusetts should take some action.

"I am therefore moved to offer in the name of Massachusetts, full recognition to the state of Texas as an independent and integral state of the Union."

Of course, the elderly resolve still must be wiped from the books by act of Legislature—and cantankerous Yankee statesmen have been known to hold grudges a lot longer than 108 years.

(It was only recently that neighboring Rhode Islanders were allowed in the Bay State without facing the death penalty—a rather hard measure passed in the 1600s and unpassed in the 1940s.)

It appears, however, that Texas' chances are pretty good. The Lone Star state probably won't have to wait that long.

Coat Of Corn Marks Farm Style Show

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The things they make these days out of produce grown down on the farm!

A special farm style show today, starring two daughters of Secretary of Agriculture Benson, displayed a woman's coat made of corn, cotton dresses that look like wool and silk, a raincoat of the stuff once used for making soap and an embarrassed young lady in a summer dress made out of fertilizer sacks.

The show, demonstrating what the agriculture research people are up to, was put on at a meeting of the American Marketing Assn.

The Benson girls, 19-year-old Barbara and 13-year-old Bonnie, modeled cotton.

Frank Teuton of the Agriculture Research Administration explained scientists are particularly eager to find uses for waste products and for surplus crops.

Take the corn coat.

Teuton said corn starch manufacturers had some protein leftovers they didn't know what to do with.

Finally, this cloth was developed. A half and half mixture with either cotton or wool, it makes a nice material that now is on the market as "Vicara."

During the war, when it was almost impossible to get enough inedible fats, detergents began taking the place of soap. Now, Teuton said, there is more inedible fat around than anyone knows what to do with.

One use: a transparent raincoat that is soft instead of brittle.

The Home Economics Department has come up with a cotton raincoat that should be the delight of all housewives who outfit themselves as if for an exploring expedition every time they go shopping.

Aside from the Benson girls, all the models were from the Department of Agriculture.

There are more than 15,000 different kinds of wine in the world.

Rochester, N. Y., is named after Col. Nathaniel Rochester, who bought the land the town stands on in 1803.

What Russia Fears

Prime Minister Churchill has told the House of Commons that the Big Three will try to calm Russia's fears. But was there ever any serious reason for supposing that Russia started the cold war because she feared other nations?

After the hot wars ended, the United States disbanded its defense forces. An Army of 12,000,000 was reduced to 1,500,000 by 1947. An Air Force whose wartime peak was 2,500,000 dropped to slightly more than 200,000 by mid-1947. Billions of dollars worth of materiel was given away, sold for almost nothing, stolen, destroyed or left to rot.

If such a course would not calm any fears Russia entertained, what would?

Secretary of State Byrnes, apparently operating on the assumption that Russia was misbehaving because the boys in the Kremlin feared this country, offered Russia a 25-year guarantee of her boundaries. When Molotov said 25 years wasn't enough, Byrnes offered to make it 40 years. Molotov still refused. His complete lack of interest was proof that Russia wasn't suffering from fear of disarmed America.

The fears Russia has are entirely different. She fears the loss of part of her empire—not to America, but to popular uprisings. Czechoslovakia would never have gone behind the iron curtain if the presence of the Red army encircling her frontiers had not convinced the Czechoslovak people it was hopeless to resist.

If the Soviet armed forces moved back into Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Germany would promptly overthrow their puppet Communist governments. And the contagion might spread.

Hence Russia fears to make arrangements which would involve withdrawing from East Germany, Hungary, Austria and Romania. And this fear, as Churchill must know, is one the United States will do nothing to relieve.

Higher Pay For Congress

The chances of Congress raising its pay in 1954 now seem at least 50-50, even though congressional pay raises are supposed to be unpopular with the voters and 1954 is election year for a majority of Congress. Under legislation now on the statute books Congress is to vote on the subject in the first half of March.

A pay boost for Congress, also for federal judges, is being urged from various quarters, "liberal" as well as right-wing, in order to help attract good men to the Capitol and to the bench and then to keep them there. President Eisenhower has already advocated a boost, and it will be helped along still further if he should come out for it in his 1954 State of the Union message.

If the Democrats should vote for an increase to the same extent as do the Republicans, the Republicans would be the more likely to avoid blame—if there is any blame—for hiking their own pay. Another way to make an increase more palatable to the public would be to put it on a cost-of-living basis, like many of the pay hikes these days for wage-earners—living costs have risen by about 25 per cent since the last hike for Congress went into effect in 1947.

The fact that this last increase came all of seven years ago could be another talking point. A member of Congress twitted by his campaign opponent for having voted to raise his own pay could retort: Have you or anybody else on salary had no raise for seven years?

However, although most voters might acquiesce in an increase from the present $15,000 to $20,000, many voters might demur to one up to $25,000—the figure being most frequently suggested just now. Yet the last previous increase, voted in 1946 to take effect in 1947, was for 50 per cent (from $10,000 to $15,000) with a tax-free allowance on half the increase that made it in effect more than 50 per cent.

'Enemy Of The People'

Lavrenti P. Beria, former head of Russia's secret police and chief finger man for the late Stalin, seems to be a tough guy. It usually takes 70 days at most for trained Communist brainwashers to break a prisoner's mind and spirit and produce a "confession." But Beria was arrested in June, and his "confession" has just been announced. Either he held out two and one-half times as long as anybody else, or there is some truth in rumors that he escaped and his purported confession will be read in court by a double.

Fantastic as this rumor is, it is not as fantastic as the confession itself. In it Beria allegedly admits that he was a traitor and saboteur from 1918 on, that he sabotaged industrial production and is responsible for the low living standards of the Russian people, and that he has been an agent of "foreign capital" for 35 years. He also implicates six other high officials of the secret police in his crimes.

Can anyone, even in Russia, actually believe that a man with Beria's vast powers, if he had been a traitor, would have accomplished so little in so long a time?

Beria was head of the dreaded secret police, sent millions to jail and to firing squads, and had his countrymen, high and low, glancing uneasily over their shoulders. But now one of the greatest murderers in history is to become the victim of the very methods he heartlessly employed against others.

Stalin Prizes

Novelist Howard Fast, according to Radio Moscow, is to get the "Stalin Peace Prize" for 1953. Fast says he considers himself honored, naturally.

The Stalin prizes for peace, literature, science, and so on, were set up in 1950. They represent a bumptious attempt by Russia to propagandize by presenting cash to its most outspoken supporters in other lands.

All these prizes, alleged to be worth about $25,000, have gone to men whose political coloration pleased the Kremlin. Arthur W. Moulton, retired Episcopal bishop of Utah, rejected a Stalin Peace Prize in 1951, saying: "If America goes to war, I go with her."

Fast was a safer choice. In 1951 the New York Daily Worker listed him as one of its few stockholders. He has been a frequent contributor to that publication, and in 1948 was active in the Communist-manipulated Progressive party. He refused to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether he was a Communist.

Fast's "peace" activities have consisted of making speeches at Soviet-inspired gatherings abroad denouncing the United States—saying, for instance, that American jails are "filled with political prisoners" and that "the terror is only beginning" — or praising Russia's artistic freedom compared to "capitalistic chains" on artists here.

Nervous Families

A unique study on nervousness was made recently on 828 Baltimore families by Jean Downes and Katherine Simon. Of the total, 90 families had one or more members 20 years or older, who were psychoneurotic or nervous. These families were observed for periods varying from three to five years and the members were found to be more susceptible to accidents, respiratory infections, and a host of acute and chronic disorders.

The term "nervousness" covers a multitude of psychiatric conditions and is the cause of approximately 60 per cent of all the complaints made by patients in the offices of physicians. Of the group in question 74 did not regard themselves as psychoneurotic; they mentioned having a rapid heart beat, heart trouble, shortness of breath, choking, weakness, lump in the throat, giddiness, itching all over, or numerous other symptoms. The information that they suffered from chronic nervousness came from their physicians. The remaining 26 per cent realized they were nervous but had not seen a physician.

The survey uncovered various characteristics of persons classified as psychoneurotic. The prevalence of minor respiratory illnesses was higher than might be expected in a comparable sampling of the population at large. They also had an excessive number of accidental injuries, particularly among adults under 35. This lends support to the contention that accident proneness has a psychoneurotic basis.

The group also had more chronic ailments unrelated to their nervous symptoms. There was a greater incidence of high blood pressure, gall bladder disease, diabetes, arthritis, peptic ulcer, and kidney disorders. A careful analysis of the data showed a tendency for the psychoneurotic to develop degererative maladies earlier in life. This is hard to explain because many nervous people take excellent care of themselves.

The socio-economic status of the 90 families with psychoneurotic members was compared with that of 828 neighboring families to ascertain whether living conditions, education, or income had anything to do with nervousness. No correlation in this field could be demonstrated. The salary of the breadwinner and the amount of space in the living quarters apparently were not factors. In both groups 52 to 54 per cent owned their own homes and 61 per cent had no more than an eighth grade education. Another aspect of the study was that persons with chronic illness were highly concentrated in the 90 families; 27 per cent were in this category as compared with 15 per cent in the total of 828 families.

FIBROIDS

Mrs. W. writes: Can fibroids of the uterus cause sterility?

REPLY

Yes; these lesions may interfere with conception or childbearing. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fibroid tumors of the uterus.

RARE PHOBIA

N. S. writes: What causes a person to have a fear of eating and drinking?

REPLY

Most phobias are traceable to an unpleasant incident in childhood. If the fear is troublesome, why not consult a psychiatrist?

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

C. H. writes: What kind of disease is battle fatigue?

REPLY

This is a nervous disorder created by the hardships of war. In World War I it was called shell shock.

SUN SUBSTITUTE

K. F. K. writes: 1. Is it advisable to acquire a tan through the use of a sun lamp? 2. Would treatment for one month be sufficient to give one a so-called Florida tan?

REPLY

1. No.

2. Yes. There is no advantage to tanning except that the individual looks healthy and vigorous. On the other hand, the process of tanning is nature's method for screening out the ultraviolet rays. This has caused many authorities to conclude that overexposure to the sun is not as beneficial as we have been led to believe.

PERSONALITY CHANGES

W. D. writes: Would hardening of the arteries cause a complete change in character of a person?

REPLY

Yes, but this is the exception rather than the rule. It is well to remember that these changes occur also in individuals with normal arteries.

BEARD AFFECTION

H. M. W. writes: Can you tell me how to get rid of barber's itch?

REPLY

In the early stages ointments containing aureomycin, bicitracin or polymixin work the best. X-ray treatments may be necessary in chronic and resistant cases.

FATAL SHOCK

D. W. writes: When a person is electrocuted does he die from shock or from being burned to death?

REPLY

Death usually results from the effect of electricity on the heart and respiratory system.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Russell Long's Switch On Hawaiian Statehood Vote May Mean Control Of Senate For Dems Or GOP; Second Hawaiian Senator May Be Surprise Democrat

WASHINGTON—Democratic senators are treating Sen. Russell Long, son of the late Louisiana Kingfish, as if he had political B.-O. ever since he switched his vote on statehood for Hawaii.

Hawaii may be a long way from Washington, but the admission of two extra senators after that territory becomes a state may spell the difference between Democratic or Republican control of the Senate later.

So, when astute Sen. Earle Clements of Kentucky heard of Long's switch, he almost blew his top. Other Democrats were less kind. They hinted that this might be the "third Louisiana purchase."

What they referred to was the wise-crack during the Roosevelt administration that Thomas Jefferson made the first Louisiana purchase from France while F. D. Roosevelt made the second Louisiana purchase when he dropped income-tax cases against some of the old Huey Long politicians on condition that Louisiana voted for his renomination for a third term.

Russell Long, who has a good reputation in the Senate, says that no political deal with Republicans influenced his vote switch on Hawaii. Nevertheless, his one vote on the key Insular Affairs Committee probably means that Hawaii will get statehood, while Alaska won't.

Hitherto the Hawaiian statehood bill has been blocked in committee by the Democrats. They demanded that both Hawaii and Alaska enter the Union together, or else neither. Alaska, they knew, would be Democratic, while Hawaii would be Republican—thus four extra senators, two Democrats and two Republicans, would be added.

But Republicans have wanted Hawaiian statehood and not Alaskan; that would give them two extra senators. So it's easy to understand why Senator Clements of Kentucky raised the roof when Russell Long bolted and why less kind senators whispered: "Third Louisiana purchase."

Hawaiian House Trouble

A bitter feud is smoldering among Nebraska solons which could hold up Hawaiian statehood. Congressman A. L. "Doc." Miller, of Nebraska, who heads the House Insular Affairs Committee, isn't on speaking terms with Sen. Hugh Butler, also of Nebraska, who heads the equivalent committee in the Senate.

It all dates back to Butler's illness. At that time, Miller let it be known that he considered himself the logical successor to Senator Butler's seat—as many others did, too.

However, Butler didn't like the idea of Miller's conspiring over his bones even before he was laid to rest. Very promptly he got well. As a result, relations between the two are strained. They are not comparing notes on insular affairs or, for that matter, anything else. And some congressmen claim that if Butler tries to push through Hawaiian statehood, "Doc" Miller will block it out for pure cussedness.

NOTE—If Hawaii gets statehood, Joe Farrington, Republican, now Hawaiian delegate, will undoubtedly become one senator. Farrington has done more for statehood than any other person and deserves reward.

But the second senator may fool everyone and be a Democrat—popular Henry H. K. Lee, of Chinese ancestry, now a territorial senator.

Washington Whirl

Under the gruff exterior of the Pentagon's hard-boiled No. 2 man, Roger Keys, beats the heart of a poet. He composed his own Christmas greetings, printed on his personal Christmas cards. His verse: May your yule log cast sparks of joy and your new year be lighted with rays of happiness.". . . Sen. Joe McCarthy is now hunting for Communists on his own staff. He unburdened his troubles the other evening at the home of his friends, Garvin and Bazy Tankersley of the Chicago Tribune family. McCarthy confessed that he had discovered a serious "leak" on his own staff, that he was worried the Communists may have tried to plant someone with him. . . . Entirely aside from this, Army agents picked up a report that the Communists had secretly engineered McCarthy into into investigating Fort Monmouth in hopes of disrupting the vital, secret work there. Though it's probably not a Communist plot, it had the same effect. Scientists at Fort Monmouth are now completely demoralized, thanks to McCarthy . . . . Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield blew up the other day at Civil Service Chairman Philip Young. When Young objected to the way Summerfield was shuffling Civil Service employes around, the postmaster general snorted angrily that he was running the Post Office Department and if Young didn't like it, he would take the matter up with the President personally.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Twenty-Two

Most Americans continue to be shocked that 22 American boys in Korea wish to remain in the Communist world. The number is a tiny fraction of the total number of American troops in Korea. We have been given no figures on how many American troops stationed in West Germany and Austria have gone Marxist. There must be some. Also, we have not been informed about the estimates of between 500 and 900 Americans who have disappeared into Communist territory in China or Siberia or North Korea. Have they become Communists? What has become of them?

(Incidentally, if your son is still missing in Korea, write your senator or representative, and if you please, let me have a copy of the letter.)

As regards the 22 young men who choose to remain in Communist territory, why not let them have their choice without further to-do? It is absurd to say that they do not know what they do. By any calculation, they are adults. They have gone through the maturing experience of war. They must have argued the question hundreds of times in their prison whether they prefer to be Communists or Americans.

Many psychological factors and practical considerations may enter into their decision. A soldier may have hated his father or his mother; he may have been a misfit in his home community. Such a boy might be tempted to change his world. Another might have left a girl behind who married someone else while he went a-warring. Such a young man could romanticize himself into a Werther. Or he might have recaptured his love in a companionship with a Chinese or Korean or a Russian girl who comforted him exotically.

But it is also possible that some of these young men have been converted to the Marxist church, perhaps because they have no church of their own. We register our troops as Catholics, Protestants, Jews, etc., for purposes of burial if they are killed. But this every really competent chaplain has discovered: large numbers of troops engage their first religious experience in war; that the challenge of imminent death or the pain of wounds, or the loneliness in a lost world, or the yearning for the comfort of a mother can only be requited by religion, not only by faith but almost by a personal, an intimate relationship to God that comes in prayer.

It is for this reason that the chaplain's service is so important for the morale of our troops. There are uniformed simpletons among the brass in our armed services who do not understand what they themselves have not experienced, and they are now engaged in breaking down the Chaplain Corps. To this, I shall address myself more fully in the near future.

If we are to understand the 22, we need to know their religious background, for only then can we understand the character, the intellectual and spiritual nature of these young men. If they are altogether without a religious background, Marxist homology as contrasted with Christian theology will appeal to them.

Why limit this consideration to these 22 boys. Take such a case as George S. Wheeler. Here is a man of education and of position. In a letter to the Civil Service Commission, dated October 11, 1945, he wrote:

"I have been in the service of the U. S. Government for more than eleven years, since August 1934. During this period I have served in the National Labor Relations Board, the Department of Labor, the War Production Board, the Office of Economic Warfare and its successor, the Foreign Economic Administration. During the past 11 months I have served overseas in the uniform of the United States Army with the assimilated rank of colonel. Officials of all of these agencies familiar with my record, including my commanding general in Berlin, have expressed their readiness to support me against any accusations that may have been made reflecting on my character or loyalty. And I want to take this occasion personally to assert my absolute allegiance to the United States and its democratic form of government."

Despite this affirmation, George S. Wheeler is now somewhere behind the iron curtain, having renounced the United States. What has caused him to change his views? What attraction does Marxism have for such a man that the freedom of the United States does not have?

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

The State Of The President

WASHINGTON

President Eisenhower, in his Little White House in Georgia, has been putting the finishing touches on his State of the Union message. Meanwhile, as he nears the end of his first year in office, what is the state of the President?

According to those who have almost daily contact with him, the state of the President is good, and getting better all the time. During Eisenhower's first months in office, there were many reports that he detested Washington and his job. There was certainly some truth in these stories—at least enough truth so that friends and supporters became convinced that he would under no circumstances run again.

He still takes no pleasure in the awful isolation and terrible pressures of life in the White House. "I am not going to be mad at anyone today," he remarked on Christmas Day, "I was so happy to get away." The chances are that President Eisenhower will never come to love the presidency as Franklin Roosevelt loved it—or Harry Truman, after his first few humble and awe-stricken months.

Eisenhower, according to those who know him well, does not relax easily under the weight of tremendous responsibility. "He's a natural worrier," one of his aides has remarked. His tendency to worry probably had a good deal to do with the stomach cramps which briefly troubled him in the spring and again in the early autumn. But these cramps had no organic origin at all, and it can be reported on undoubted authority that the President's health is amazingly good. What is more, he now worries far less than he once did.

On Top Of Job

The reason is quite clear. Eisenhower is now really getting on top of his job. The country knows it, and he knows it, and both are relieved.

All those who participated are agreed that the President put on a downright remarkable performance during the recent conferences with his congressional leaders. He displayed charm, tact, force and a surprising konwledge of the substance of issues which were completely unfamiliar to him a few months back. He also displayed great shrewdness in keeping the headlines centered on himself, despite the almost instinctive efforts of the Capitol Hill politicians to grab them.

Those who work with him rate him a first class administrator. It is significant that he has now made the National Security Council the chief instrument of decision on matters of vital importance. Unlike Truman, who attended only occasionally, Eisenhower takes the chair at almost all council meetings. The council has thus all but replaced the unwieldy cabinet reducing the out-dated cabinet system to a shadow.

The President has certain very well-marked ways of attacking his job. It has often been rumored that he hates to read, and will read nothing but Westerns. It is true that he reads much less than Truman (who, surprisingly, read a great deal—he had a special fondness for long intelligence reports). Confronted with the inevitable pile of papers on his desk, Eisenhower will turn to Sherman Adams or another aide, and say "tell me what's in them."

His aides have learned to be ready to brief concisely and in detail—and to be ready for searching questions. But they have also learned to be ready to tell him, where necessary, "Mr. President, this is one you've got to read." When this happens, the President will cheerfully read the paper in question.

Formidable Opponent

He is, according to one of his aides, "a quick, tight reader, with remarkable recall." If a paper is presented to the National Security Council, and even a very slight change has been made in the wording since the President read it, Eisenhower will instantly spot the change.

It has also been rumored that the President has very little to do with his own speeches—that he merely repeats whatever his aides give him. It is true that once in a great while he will accept a draft virtually unchanged. But far more often, he will send back a draft prepared by C. D. Jackson, Bryce Harlow, or another White House ghost, covered with pencilled interlineations, so that the speech as finally delivered will be almost wholly in his own words. "After all," one of his aides has accurately remarked, "Ike used to be a ghost himself."

All in all, it is still too early to say who will win out in the inevitable struggles between the White House and Capitol Hill, which lie ahead. But it is beginning to be very clear that President Eisenhower is not the amiable compromiser his critics once thought him, and that he is by no means prepared to see the power of the presidency whittled away during his tenure of office. His enemies on both right and left may find him a more formidable opponent than they had counted on.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When a man of the military prestige of President Eisenhower makes an impressive statement to the whole world, the Soviet rulers wait to see whether he really means what he says. If he doesn't, they accord his remarks no more respect than the hollow pledges of any other statesman. The Communists today are testing President Eisenhower on their aggressions in Indo-China. They want to know if he was bluffing on April 16 last when he declared in his historic speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors:

"The first great step along this way must be the conclusion of an honorable armistice in Korea.

"This means the immediate cessation of hostilities and the prompt initation of political discussions leading to the holding of free elections in a united Korea.

"It should mean—no less importantly—an end to the direct and indirect attacks upon the security of Indo-China and Malaya. For any armistice in Korea that merely released aggressive armies to attack elsewhere would be a fraud."

Cites Dulles' Speech

Again on Sept. 2, 1953, after the Korean armistice had been signed on July 27, the secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, said to the American Legion convention:

"We do not make the mistake of treating Korea as an isolated affair. The Korean War forms one part of the world-wide effort of communism to conquer freedom. More immediately it is part of that effort in Asia.

"A single Chinese Communist aggressive front extends from Korea on the north to Indo-China in the south. The armistice in Korea, even if it leads to a political settlement in Korea, does not end United States concern in the Western Pacific area. As President Eisenhower said in his April 16th speech, a Korean armistice would be a fraud if it merely released Communist forces for attack elsewhere.

"In Indo-China a desperate struggle is in its eighth year. The outcome affects our own vital interests in the Western Pacific, and we are already contributing largely in material and money to the combined efforts of the French and of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia...

"Communist China has been and now is training, equipping and supplying the Communist forces in Indo-China. There is the risk that, as in Korea, Red China might send its own army into Indo-China. The Chinese Communist regime should realize that such a second aggression could not occur without grave consequences which might not be confined to Indo-China. I say this soberly in the interest of peace and in the hope of preventing another aggressor miscalculation."

Now the aggression has come. Indo-China has been cut in two by a drive of the Communists which was begun on Christmas Day, and Thailand's security is also threatened. Two days before—on the night of December 23—Vice President Nixon, just back from a tour of Southeast Asia, reported over a nation-wide network to the American people:

"If Indo-China falls, Thailand is put in an almost impossible position. The same is true of Malaya, with its rubber and tin. The same is true of Indonesia.

Awaiting U. S. Reaction

"If this whole part of Southeast Asia goes under Communist domination or Communist influence, Japan—who trades and must trade with this area in order to exist—must inevitably be oriented toward the Communist regime. That indicates to you and to all of us why it is vitally important that Indo-China not go behind the iron curtain."

Small wonder that the Moscow government postponed the Big Four conference until January 24. It wants to see what the American government and its allies will do about the Indo-China aggression. Also, on January 22 all prisoners in Korea who want to be repatriated have to be released.

Already Secretary Dulles is on a spot. He told a news conference in Washington on August 12 last that under the Korean armistice agreement "all" prisoners—and he emphasized the word "all"—have to be returned directly or transferred to the repatriation commission. He disclosed that returning soldiers had revealed that a number of Americans who wanted to come home were being held on crime charges. These are said to number 944, but the Pentagon thinks several of them are dead. As for the rest of them, the Department of State has said nothing since August 12. Relatives of those who are believed to be in captivity have been notified. Many tragic letters received by the writer indicate these relatives have no word of anything being done in behalf of the prisoners.

Thus has the spirit and the letter of the Korean armistice been flagrantly violated. What does the President of the United States intend to do about it? The Moscow and Peiping governments are assuming that the Truman-Acheson policy of appeasement still prevails and apparently are going ahead in Indo-China with their defiance of the United Nations in general and the United States in particular. Meanwhile, some of the allies are already planning to resume normal trade with the Communists and thus throw away the only real leverage the Allies possess.

What Russia Fears

Prime Minister Churchill has told the House of Commons that the Big Three will try to calm Russia's fears. But was there ever any serious reason for supposing that Russia started the cold war because she feared other nations?

After the hot wars ended, the United States disbanded its defense forces. An Army of 12,000,000 was reduced to 1,500,000 by 1947. An Air Force whose wartime peak was 2,500,000 dropped to slightly more than 200,000 by mid-1947. Billions of dollars worth of materiel was given away, sold for almost nothing, stolen, destroyed or left to rot.

If such a course would not calm any fears Russia entertained, what would?

Secretary of State Byrnes, apparently operating on the assumption that Russia was misbehaving because the boys in the Kremlin feared this country, offered Russia a 25-year guarantee of her boundaries. When Molotov said 25 years wasn't enough, Byrnes offered to make it 40 years. Molotov still refused. His complete lack of interest was proof that Russia wasn't suffering from fear of disarmed America.

The fears Russia has are entirely different. She fears the loss of part of her empire—not to America, but to popular uprisings. Czechoslovakia would never have gone behind the iron curtain if the presence of the Red army encircling her frontiers had not convinced the Czechoslovak people it was hopeless to resist.

If the Soviet armed forces moved back into Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Germany would promptly overthrow their puppet Communist governments. And the contagion might spread.

Hence Russia fears to make arrangements which would involve withdrawing from East Germany, Hungary, Austria and Romania. And this fear, as Churchill must know, is one the United States will do nothing to relieve.

Higher Pay For Congress

The chances of Congress raising its pay in 1954 now seem at least 50-50, even though congressional pay raises are supposed to be unpopular with the voters and 1954 is election year for a majority of Congress. Under legislation now on the statute books Congress is to vote on the subject in the first half of March.

A pay boost for Congress, also for federal judges, is being urged from various quarters, "liberal" as well as right-wing, in order to help attract good men to the Capitol and to the bench and then to keep them there. President Eisenhower has already advocated a boost, and it will be helped along still further if he should come out for it in his 1954 State of the Union message.

If the Democrats should vote for an increase to the same extent as do the Republicans, the Republicans would be the more likely to avoid blame—if there is any blame—for hiking their own pay. Another way to make an increase more palatable to the public would be to put it on a cost-of-living basis, like many of the pay hikes these days for wage-earners—living costs have risen by about 25 per cent since the last hike for Congress went into effect in 1947.

The fact that this last increase came all of seven years ago could be another talking point. A member of Congress twitted by his campaign opponent for having voted to raise his own pay could retort: Have you or anybody else on salary had no raise for seven years?

However, although most voters might acquiesce in an increase from the present $15,000 to $20,000, many voters might demur to one up to $25,000—the figure being most frequently suggested just now. Yet the last previous increase, voted in 1946 to take effect in 1947, was for 50 per cent (from $10,000 to $15,000) with a tax-free allowance on half the increase that made it in effect more than 50 per cent.

'Enemy Of The People'

Lavrenti P. Beria, former head of Russia's secret police and chief finger man for the late Stalin, seems to be a tough guy. It usually takes 70 days at most for trained Communist brainwashers to break a prisoner's mind and spirit and produce a "confession." But Beria was arrested in June, and his "confession" has just been announced. Either he held out two and one-half times as long as anybody else, or there is some truth in rumors that he escaped and his purported confession will be read in court by a double.

Fantastic as this rumor is, it is not as fantastic as the confession itself. In it Beria allegedly admits that he was a traitor and saboteur from 1918 on, that he sabotaged industrial production and is responsible for the low living standards of the Russian people, and that he has been an agent of "foreign capital" for 35 years. He also implicates six other high officials of the secret police in his crimes.

Can anyone, even in Russia, actually believe that a man with Beria's vast powers, if he had been a traitor, would have accomplished so little in so long a time?

Beria was head of the dreaded secret police, sent millions to jail and to firing squads, and had his countrymen, high and low, glancing uneasily over their shoulders. But now one of the greatest murderers in history is to become the victim of the very methods he heartlessly employed against others.

Stalin Prizes

Novelist Howard Fast, according to Radio Moscow, is to get the "Stalin Peace Prize" for 1953. Fast says he considers himself honored, naturally.

The Stalin prizes for peace, literature, science, and so on, were set up in 1950. They represent a bumptious attempt by Russia to propagandize by presenting cash to its most outspoken supporters in other lands.

All these prizes, alleged to be worth about $25,000, have gone to men whose political coloration pleased the Kremlin. Arthur W. Moulton, retired Episcopal bishop of Utah, rejected a Stalin Peace Prize in 1951, saying: "If America goes to war, I go with her."

Fast was a safer choice. In 1951 the New York Daily Worker listed him as one of its few stockholders. He has been a frequent contributor to that publication, and in 1948 was active in the Communist-manipulated Progressive party. He refused to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether he was a Communist.

Fast's "peace" activities have consisted of making speeches at Soviet-inspired gatherings abroad denouncing the United States—saying, for instance, that American jails are "filled with political prisoners" and that "the terror is only beginning" — or praising Russia's artistic freedom compared to "capitalistic chains" on artists here.

Nervous Families

A unique study on nervousness was made recently on 828 Baltimore families by Jean Downes and Katherine Simon. Of the total, 90 families had one or more members 20 years or older, who were psychoneurotic or nervous. These families were observed for periods varying from three to five years and the members were found to be more susceptible to accidents, respiratory infections, and a host of acute and chronic disorders.

The term "nervousness" covers a multitude of psychiatric conditions and is the cause of approximately 60 per cent of all the complaints made by patients in the offices of physicians. Of the group in question 74 did not regard themselves as psychoneurotic; they mentioned having a rapid heart beat, heart trouble, shortness of breath, choking, weakness, lump in the throat, giddiness, itching all over, or numerous other symptoms. The information that they suffered from chronic nervousness came from their physicians. The remaining 26 per cent realized they were nervous but had not seen a physician.

The survey uncovered various characteristics of persons classified as psychoneurotic. The prevalence of minor respiratory illnesses was higher than might be expected in a comparable sampling of the population at large. They also had an excessive number of accidental injuries, particularly among adults under 35. This lends support to the contention that accident proneness has a psychoneurotic basis.

The group also had more chronic ailments unrelated to their nervous symptoms. There was a greater incidence of high blood pressure, gall bladder disease, diabetes, arthritis, peptic ulcer, and kidney disorders. A careful analysis of the data showed a tendency for the psychoneurotic to develop degenerative maladies earlier in life. This is hard to explain because many nervous people take excellent care of themselves.

The socio-economic status of the 90 families with psychoneurotic members was compared with that of 828 neighboring families to ascertain whether living conditions, education, or income had anything to do with nervousness. No correlation in this field could be demonstrated. The salary of the breadwinner and the amount of space in the living quarters apparently were not factors. In both groups 52 to 54 per cent owned their own homes and 61 per cent had no more than an eighth grade education. Another aspect of the study was that persons with chronic illness were highly concentrated in the 90 families; 27 per cent were in this category as compared with 15 per cent in the total of 828 families.

RARE PHOBIA

N. S. writes: What causes a person to have a fear of eating and drinking?

REPLY

Most phobias are traceable to an unpleasant incident in childhood. If the fear is troublesome, why not consult a psychiatrist?

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

C. H. writes: What kind of disease is battle fatigue?

REPLY

This is a nervous disorder created by the hardships of war. In World War I it was called shell shock.

SUN SUBSTITUTE

K. F. K. writes: 1. Is it advisable to acquire a tan through the use of a sun lamp? 2. Would treatment for one month be sufficient to give one a so-called Florida tan?

REPLY

1. No.

2. Yes. There is no advantage to tanning except that the individual looks healthy and vigorous. On the other hand, the process of tanning is nature's method for screening out the ultraviolet rays. This has caused many authorities to conclude that overexposure to the sun is not as beneficial as we have been led to believe.

PERSONALITY CHANGES

W. D. writes: Would hardening of the arteries cause a complete change in character of a person?

REPLY

Yes, but this is the exception rather than the rule. It is well to remember that these changes occur also in individuals with normal arteries.

BEARD AFFECTION

H. M. W. writes: Can you tell me how to get rid of barber's itch?

REPLY

In the early stages ointments containing aureomycin, bicitracin or polymixin work the best. X-ray treatments may be necessary in chronic and resistant cases.

FATAL SHOCK

D. W. writes: When a person is electrocuted does he die from shock or from being burned to death?

REPLY

Death usually results from the effect of electricity on the heart and respiratory system.

Russell Long's Switch On Hawaiian Statehood Vote May Mean Control Of Senate For Dems Or GOP; Second Hawaiian Senator May Be Surprise Democrat

WASHINGTON—Democratic senators are treating Sen. Russell Long, son of the late Louisiana Kingfish, as if he had political B.-O. ever since he switched his vote on statehood for Hawaii.

Hawaii may be a long way from Washington, but the admission of two extra senators after that territory becomes a state may spell the difference between Democratic or Republican control of the Senate later.

So, when astute Sen. Earle Clements of Kentucky heard of Long's switch, he almost blew his top. Other Democrats were less kind. They hinted that this might be the "third Louisiana purchase."

What they referred to was the wise-crack during the Roosevelt administration that Thomas Jefferson made the first Louisiana purchase from France while F. D. Roosevelt made the second Louisiana purchase when he dropped income-tax cases against some of the old Huey Long politicians on condition that Louisiana voted for his renomination for a third term.

Russell Long, who has a good reputation in the Senate, says that no political deal with Republicans influenced his vote switch on Hawaii. Nevertheless, his one vote on the key Insular Affairs Committee probably means that Hawaii will get statehood, while Alaska won't.

Hitherto the Hawaiian statehood bill has been blocked in committee by the Democrats. They demanded that both Hawaii and Alaska enter the Union together, or else neither. Alaska, they knew, would be Democratic, while Hawaii would be Republican—thus four extra senators, two Democrats and two Republicans, would be added.

But Republicans have wanted Hawaiian statehood and not Alaskan; that would give them two extra senators. So it's easy to understand why Senator Clements of Kentucky raised the roof when Russell Long bolted and why less kind senators whispered: "Third Louisiana purchase."

Hawaiian House Trouble

A bitter feud is smoldering among Nebraska solons which could hold up Hawaiian statehood. Congressman A. L. "Doc." Miller, of Nebraska, who heads the House Insular Affairs Committee, isn't on speaking terms with Sen. Hugh Butler, also of Nebraska, who heads the equivalent committee in the Senate.

It all dates back to Butler's illness. At that time, Miller let it be known that he considered himself the logical successor to Senator Butler's seat—as many others did, too.

However, Butler didn't like the idea of Miller's conspiring over his bones even before he was laid to rest. Very promptly he got well. As a result, relations between the two are strained. They are not comparing notes on insular affairs or, for that matter, anything else. And some congressmen claim that if Butler tries to push through Hawaiian statehood, "Doc" Miller will block it out for pure cussedness.

NOTE—If Hawaii gets statehood, Joe Farrington, Republican, now Hawaiian delegate, will undoubtedly become one senator. Farrington has done more for statehood than any other person and deserves reward.

But the second senator may fool everyone and be a Democrat—popular Henry H. K. Lee, of Chinese ancestry, now a territorial senator.

Washington Whirl

Under the gruff exterior of the Pentagon's hard-boiled No. 2 man, Roger Keys, beats the heart of a poet. He composed his own Christmas greetings, printed on his personal Christmas cards. His verse: May your yule log cast sparks of joy and your new year be lighted with rays of happiness.". . . Sen. Joe McCarthy is now hunting for Communists on his own staff. He unburdened his troubles the other evening at the home of his friends, Garvin and Bazy Tankersley of the Chicago Tribune family. McCarthy confessed that he had discovered a serious "leak" on his own staff, that he was worried the Communists may have tried to plant someone with him. . . . Entirely aside from this, Army agents picked up a report that the Communists had secretly engineered McCarthy into into investigating Fort Monmouth in hopes of disrupting the vital, secret work there. Though it's probably not a Communist plot, it had the same effect. Scientists at Fort Monmouth are now completely demoralized, thanks to McCarthy . . . . Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield blew up the other day at Civil Service Chairman Philip Young. When Young objected to the way Summerfield was shuffling Civil Service employes around, the postmaster general snorted angrily that he was running the Post Office Department and if Young didn't like it, he would take the matter up with the President personally.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Twenty-Two

Most Americans continue to be shocked that 22 American boys in Korea wish to remain in the Communist world. The number is a tiny fraction of the total number of American troops in Korea. We have been given no figures on how many American troops stationed in West Germany and Austria have gone Marxist. There must be some. Also, we have not been informed about the estimates of between 500 and 900 Americans who have disappeared into Communist territory in China or Siberia or North Korea. Have they become Communists? What has become of them?

(Incidentally, if your son is still missing in Korea, write your senator or representative, and if you please, let me have a copy of the letter.)

As regards the 22 young men who choose to remain in Communist territory, why not let them have their choice without further to-do? It is absurd to say that they do not know what they do. By any calculation, they are adults. They have gone through the maturing experience of war. They must have argued the question hundreds of times in their prison whether they prefer to be Communists or Americans.

Many psychological factors and practical considerations may enter into their decision. A soldier may have hated his father or his mother; he may have been a misfit in his home community. Such a boy might be tempted to change his world. Another might have left a girl behind who married someone else while he went a-warring. Such a young man could romanticize himself into a Werther. Or he might have recaptured his love in a companionship with a Chinese or Korean or a Russian girl who comforted him exotically.

But it is also possible that some of these young men have been converted to the Marxist church, perhaps because they have no church of their own. We register our troops as Catholics, Protestants, Jews, etc., for purposes of burial if they are killed. But this every really competent chaplain has discovered: large numbers of troops engage their first religious experience in war; that the challenge of imminent death or the pain of wounds, or the loneliness in a lost world, or the yearning for the comfort of a mother can only be requited by religion, not only by faith but almost by a personal, an intimate relationship to God that comes in prayer.

It is for this reason that the chaplain's service is so important for the morale of our troops. There are uniformed simpletons among the brass in our armed services who do not understand what they themselves have not experienced, and they are now engaged in breaking down the Chaplain Corps. To this, I shall address myself more fully in the near future.

If we are to understand the 22, we need to know their religious background, for only then can we understand the character, the intellectual and spiritual nature of these young men. If they are altogether without a religious background, Marxist homology as contrasted with Christian theology will appeal to them.

Why limit this consideration to these 22 boys. Take such a case as George S. Wheeler. Here is a man of education and of position. In a letter to the Civil Service Commission, dated October 11, 1945, he wrote:

"I have been in the service of the U. S. Government for more than eleven years, since August 1934. During this period I have served in the National Labor Relations Board, the Department of Labor, the War Production Board, the Office of Economic Warfare and its successor, the Foreign Economic Administration. During the past 11 months I have served overseas in the uniform of the United States Army with the assimilated rank of colonel. Officials of all of these agencies familiar with my record, including my commanding general in Berlin, have expressed their readiness to support me against any accusations that may have been made reflecting on my character or loyalty. And I want to take this occasion personally to assert my absolute allegiance to the United States and its democratic form of government."

Despite this affirmation, George S. Wheeler is now somewhere behind the iron curtain, having renounced the United States. What has caused him to change his views? What attraction does Marxism have for such a man that the freedom of the United States does not have?

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

President Eisenhower, in his Little White House in Georgia, has been putting the finishing touches on his State of the Union message. Meanwhile, as he nears the end of his first year in office, what is the state of the President?

According to those who have almost daily contact with him, the state of the President is good, and getting better all the time. During Eisenhower's first months in office, there were many reports that he detested Washington and his job. There was certainly some truth in these stories—at least enough truth so that friends and supporters became convinced that he would under no circumstances run again.

He still takes no pleasure in the awful isolation and terrible pressures of life in the White House. "I am not going to be mad at anyone today," he remarked on Christmas Day, "I was so happy to get away." The chances are that President Eisenhower will never come to love the presidency as Franklin Roosevelt loved it—or Harry Truman, after his first few humble and awe-stricken months.

Eisenhower, according to those who know him well, does not relax easily under the weight of tremendous responsibility. "He's a natural worrier," one of his aides has remarked. His tendency to worry probably had a good deal to do with the stomach cramps which briefly troubled him in the spring and again in the early autumn. But these cramps had no organic origin at all, and it can be reported on undoubted authority that the President's health is amazingly good. What is more, he now worries far less than he once did.

On Top Of Job

The reason is quite clear. Eisenhower is now really getting on top of his job. The country knows it, and he knows it, and both are relieved.

All those who participated are agreed that the President put on a downright remarkable performance during the recent conferences with his congressional leaders. He displayed charm, tact, force and a surprising konwledge of the substance of issues which were completely unfamiliar to him a few months back. He also displayed great shrewdness in keeping the headlines centered on himself, despite the almost instinctive efforts of the Capitol Hill politicians to grab them.

Those who work with him rate him a first class administrator. It is significant that he has now made the National Security Council the chief instrument of decision on matters of vital importance. Unlike Truman, who attended only occasionally, Eisenhower takes the chair at almost all council meetings. The council has thus all but replaced the unwieldy cabinet reducing the out-dated cabinet system to a shadow.

The President has certain very well-marked ways of attacking his job. It has often been rumored that he hates to read, and will read nothing but Westerns. It is true that he reads much less than Truman (who, surprisingly, read a great deal—he had a special fondness for long intelligence reports). Confronted with the inevitable pile of papers on his desk, Eisenhower will turn to Sherman Adams or another aide, and say "tell me what's in them."

His aides have learned to be ready to brief concisely and in detail—and to be ready for searching questions. But they have also learned to be ready to tell him, where necessary, "Mr. President, this is one you've got to read." When this happens, the President will cheerfully read the paper in question.

Formidable Opponent

He is, according to one of his aides, "a quick, tight reader, with remarkable recall." If a paper is presented to the National Security Council, and even a very slight change has been made in the wording since the President read it, Eisenhower will instantly spot the change.

It has also been rumored that the President has very little to do with his own speeches—that he merely repeats whatever his aides give him. It is true that once in a great while he will accept a draft virtually unchanged. But far more often, he will send back a draft prepared by C. D. Jackson, Bryce Harlow, or another White House ghost, covered with pencilled interlineations, so that the speech as finally delivered will be almost wholly in his own words. "After all," one of his aides has accurately remarked, "Ike used to be a ghost himself."

All in all, it is still too early to say who will win out in the inevitable struggles between the White House and Capitol Hill, which lie ahead. But it is beginning to be very clear that President Eisenhower is not the amiable compromiser his critics once thought him, and that he is by no means prepared to see the power of the presidency whittled away during his tenure of office. His enemies on both right and left may find him a more formidable opponent than they had counted on.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When a man of the military prestige of President Eisenhower makes an impressive statement to the whole world, the Soviet rulers wait to see whether he really means what he says. If he doesn't, they accord his remarks no more respect than the hollow pledges of any other statesman. The Communists today are testing President Eisenhower on their aggressions in Indo-China. They want to know if he was bluffing on April 16 last when he declared in his historic speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors:

"The first great step along this way must be the conclusion of an honorable armistice in Korea.

"This means the immediate cessation of hostilities and the prompt initation of political discussions leading to the holding of free elections in a united Korea.

"It should mean—no less importantly—an end to the direct and indirect attacks upon the security of Indo-China and Malaya. For any armistice in Korea that merely released aggressive armies to attack elsewhere would be a fraud."

Cites Dulles' Speech

Again on Sept. 2, 1953, after the Korean armistice had been signed on July 27, the secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, said to the American Legion convention:

"We do not make the mistake of treating Korea as an isolated affair. The Korean War forms one part of the world-wide effort of communism to conquer freedom. More immediately it is part of that effort in Asia.

"A single Chinese Communist aggressive front extends from Korea on the north to Indo-China in the south. The armistice in Korea, even if it leads to a political settlement in Korea, does not end United States concern in the Western Pacific area. As President Eisenhower said in his April 16th speech, a Korean armistice would be a fraud if it merely released Communist forces for attack elsewhere.

"In Indo-China a desperate struggle is in its eighth year. The outcome affects our own vital interests in the Western Pacific, and we are already contributing largely in material and money to the combined efforts of the French and of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia...

"Communist China has been and now is training, equipping and supplying the Communist forces in Indo-China. There is the risk that, as in Korea, Red China might send its own army into Indo-China. The Chinese Communist regime should realize that such a second aggression could not occur without grave consequences which might not be confined to Indo-China. I say this soberly in the interest of peace and in the hope of preventing another aggressor miscalculation."

Now the aggression has come. Indo-China has been cut in two by a drive of the Communists which was begun on Christmas Day, and Thailand's security is also threatened. Two days before—on the night of December 23—Vice President Nixon, just back from a tour of Southeast Asia, reported over a nation-wide network to the American people:

"If Indo-China falls, Thailand is put in an almost impossible position. The same is true of Malaya, with its rubber and tin. The same is true of Indonesia.

Awaiting U. S. Reaction

"If this whole part of Southeast Asia goes under Communist domination or Communist influence, Japan—who trades and must trade with this area in order to exist—must inevitably be oriented toward the Communist regime. That indicates to you and to all of us why it is vitally important that Indo-China not go behind the iron curtain."

Small wonder that the Moscow government postponed the Big Four conference until January 24. It wants to see what the American government and its allies will do about the Indo-China aggression. Also, on January 22 all prisoners in Korea who want to be repatriated have to be released.

Already Secretary Dulles is on a spot. He told a news conference in Washington on August 12 last that under the Korean armistice agreement "all" prisoners—and he emphasized the word "all"—have to be returned directly or transferred to the repatriation commission. He disclosed that returning soldiers had revealed that a number of Americans who wanted to come home were being held on crime charges. These are said to number 944, but the Pentagon thinks several of them are dead. As for the rest of them, the Department of State has said nothing since August 12. Relatives of those who are believed to be in captivity have been notified. Many tragic letters received by the writer indicate these relatives have no word of anything being done in behalf of the prisoners.

Thus has the spirit and the letter of the Korean armistice been flagrantly violated. What does the President of the United States intend to do about it? The Moscow and Peiping governments are assuming that the Truman-Acheson policy of appeasement still prevails and apparently are going ahead in Indo-China with their defiance of the United Nations in general and the United States in particular. Meanwhile, some of the allies are already planning to resume normal trade with the Communists and thus throw away the only real leverage the Allies possess.

Inside Soviet Union

Shopping Real Chore In Soviet Stores Due To System, Crowds

(Editor's Note—How do people live in the Soviet Union? Russian-speaking William L. Ryan, back from a three-month news assignment in the Soviet Union, provides an insight in this report on the shopping problem. This is another of a series of six articles by Ryan appearing in this newspaper.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

A Soviet department store is a good place to go to lick on an ice cream cone and rubberneck. It's not a good place to go to buy anything.

The system of merchandising, more fantastic than the prices, often makes shopping a nightmare.

Soviet stores—both the big gastronomes which sell the groceries and the univermags which are the Russian version of a department store — are perpetually clogged with people.

Many go about the stores looking at goods, but not buying, and just licking on vafly (waffles) with ice cream at 1.95 rubles each.

(As explained yesterday, the ruble has no exact equivalent in U.S. funds. Only its purchasing power means anything to the Russian, anyway. The working man in a factory is likely to receive 700 rubles for a month of four 48-hour weeks; thus the price of the ice cream cone is equivalent to about a half hour's pay).

Those who must buy go through a dizzying series of queues so frustrating that the system has led to a racket.

Militiamen are on hand in many a Soviet department store, to guard against chislers who prey on the frustration of shoppers. The chiseler patiently waits to get to counters and buys up items in demand. He then circulates through the store and sells the items at a profit because some shoppers would rather pay the extra charge than go through the agony of the system.

Shopping takes a big slice out of any housewife's day. Since many housewives also work, some doing heavy labor, shopping becomes a vast problem.

For meats and vegetables the housewife may avoid the jam of the state stores by going to the peasant markets. The prices may be a bit higher, but she is surer of getting what she wants. The state stores have limited supplies. Often items on the price lists are not available. Moreover, in the peasant market, the housewife has the rare pleasure of bargaining with the seller. That is impossible in the state stores, where prices are fixed by the government.

For clothing, household utensils and almost anything besides food, the shopper goes to the univermag.

When mama gets to the store, she usually finds a long line at the doors waiting to get inside. Once inside, there are other lines. Mama decides what she wants to buy first. She gets in line at that counter. When she gets to the counter, she picks out the item. The sales person, never in a great hurry, hands her a slip. She leaves the line for another line, this time at the cashier's cage. After a long wait, she pays for the item she selected. She then gets back again in the first line to wait her turn to surrender the receipt and receive the item she purchased.

If six items on her shopping list appear at different store counters, that means six times in line to select them, six times to pay the cashier, six times to pick up the items.

Even the Soviet management is beginning to see the futility of this. Signs over some counters in the big stores announce the sales person may be paid directly for the item. But that is the exception.

To buy an ordinary comb in a univermag took me 25 minutes. I first went to the counter, and when my turn came selected a pocket comb. The girl gave me a slip and directed me to line No. 2. I waited there until I got to the cashier's cage, paid the 3.75 rubles, and went to the comb counter again. There I waited to pick up my trophy. A week later, all the teeth were out of it.

There are endless lines in Moscow, largely because of such systems. People are jammed together for hours in the stores, getting nowhere in a furious hurry. I have been in about 30 countries; the crowds in Soviet stores are among the rudest, most jostling and inconsiderate I have seen. But they must be, in self defense. To be polite would cost a tremendous amount of time.

The lines for milk—there is severe shortage of it in the Soviet Union—are even more heart-breaking. Housewives try to out-guess the stores or the outlets in the peasant markets, try to judge the best times. It's difficult to win.

People form lines, carrying empty bottles of all shapes and sizes. The milk is ladled out of big containers. Sometimes, long before the end of the line is reached, the milk is gone. The housewife must either give up or take her chances in another line, where the same thing may happen.

Some items rarely appear on store shelves. I looked in vain in a number of cities for citrus fruits. But tiny oranges were peddled by peasant boys on the streets of the Ukraine capital, Kive.

The high cost of groceries and everything else, plus the lack of home refrigeration, makes it impossible to shop in quantity. Shopping is a daily chore.

The peasants take advantage of the state store situation. As items become short in the stores, prices go up in the peasant market.

With her limited income the Soviet housewife must be careful about her household budget. In comparison with her Western counterpart, her outlay for food is enormous. Many families make ends meet only because there are several persons bringing home wages.

Holidays And Seasonal Absenteeism Curtail Auto Production This Week

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press
Automotive Editor

DETROIT, Dec. 29 (AP)—Because of another extended holiday week end and normal seasonal absenteeism the auto industry expects relatively low production this week.

Nevertheless original estimates of the 1953 output are being realized. The industry this week will wind up the year's operations with approximately 6,134,000 passenger cars and 1,208,000 trucks as its achievement.

The total puts 1953 in second place in the industry's record books. The record year was 1950 when United States factories built 6,658,510 cars and 1,343,923 trucks.

Car makers closed this week are Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Nash, Kaiser and Willys. Studebaker is operating on curtailed schedules.

The industry's production pace should pick up substantially next week. Ford will increase its output and most of the remainder of the industry will get along on schedules that presently call for about 1,700,000 passenger cars in the January-March quarter.

Most of these will come from the Chevrolet and Ford assembly lines. Of the 1953 output through last week these two companies rolled out more than 2,621,000 cars. They also accounted for more than half the truck volume.

Ford already has begun shipping 1954 models to its dealers throughout the country. Engineering and styling details of the new models probably will be announced early next week.

Industry analysts have known for months that a new V-8 engine is included in the engineering advances. They also have speculated that an increase in engine horsepower will be disclosed.

Last week's United States output consisted of 68,094 cars and 17,934 trucks. This compared with 97,434 cars and 25,808 trucks built in the preceding week.

Through last week the industry's 1953 United States output consisted of 6,064,830 cars and 1,190,350 trucks. In the comparable 1952 period 4,285,729 cars and 1,197,018 trucks were built.

Cancer Control Ultimately Attainable, Specialist Says

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter

BOSTON, Dec. 29 (AP) — Control of cancer may be ultimately attainable provided present knowledge of the disease is pushed hard enough by science, Dr. Cornelius P. Rhoads of New York, a leading cancer specialist, said yesterday.

"The control of cancer, so long sought and so long deemed to be inaccessible, now begins to appear as a suitable objective for major scientific activity," Dr. Rhoads told the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science (AAAS). He is associated with New York's Memorial Center for cancer and allied diseases.

"Work toward cancer control," he said, "has been handicapped because of a widely-held misconception. This is that cancer is a mystery and so can not be controlled until 'the innermost secrets of life itself are disclosed.'

"We hold today this is no longer the case. Cancer, from available evidence is no more mysterious than are the infectious disorders. It is perhaps less so than many of the chronic metabolic diseases (like diabetes and arthritis)."

He said that "the steps which have led to the control of other important disease problems in the past have now been made in principle for the (cancer) process," and he added:

"We now have, furthermore, a concept of the nature of the disorder which permits us to seek its control by established procedures."

Even with the imperfect chemical weapons of today, he said, "very marked objective improvement" can be induced "in a substantial proportion of patients with cancer of the blood-forming tissues, of the breast, and of the prostate gland."

Such temporary benefits can also be achieved in certain cases of ovary and lung cancer and in acute leukemia in children, he said.

In the quest for cancer control, Rhoads said, great effort has hitherto been expended by scientists in efforts to demonstrate that some external invader, like bacteria or viruses, was the basic cause of cancer, and hence perhaps susceptible to attack.

A newer concept, he said, holds that the cancer cell itself might be regarded as "a foreign invader" — and hence, he added, this suggests efforts "to seek cancer cure by the selective destruction of that entity (the cancer cell)" as distinguished from trying to get at some further underlying mechanism.

Shopping Real Chore In Soviet Stores Due To System, Crowds

(Editor's Note—How do people live in the Soviet Union? Russian-speaking William L. Ryan, back from a three-month news assignment in the Soviet Union, provides an insight in this report on the shopping problem. This is another of a series of six articles by Ryan appearing in this newspaper.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

A Soviet department store is a good place to go to lick on an ice cream cone and rubberneck. It's not a good place to go to buy anything.

The system of merchandising, more fantastic than the prices, often makes shopping a nightmare.

Soviet stores—both the big gastronomes which sell the groceries and the univermags which are the Russian version of a department store — are perpetually clogged with people.

Many go about the stores looking at goods, but not buying, and just licking on vafly (waffles) with ice cream at 1.95 rubles each.

(As explained yesterday, the ruble has no exact equivalent in U.S. funds. Only its purchasing power means anything to the Russian, anyway. The working man in a factory is likely to receive 700 rubles for a month of four 48-hour weeks; thus the price of the ice cream cone is equivalent to about a half hour's pay).

Those who must buy go through a dizzying series of queues so frustrating that the system has led to a racket.

Militiamen are on hand in many a Soviet department store, to guard against chislers who prey on the frustration of shoppers. The chiseler patiently waits to get to counters and buys up items in demand. He then circulates through the store and sells the items at a profit because some shoppers would rather pay the extra charge than go through the agony of the system.

Shopping takes a big slice out of any housewife's day. Since many housewives also work, some doing heavy labor, shopping becomes a vast problem.

For meats and vegetables the housewife may avoid the jam of the state stores by going to the peasant markets. The prices may be a bit higher, but she is surer of getting what she wants. The state stores have limited supplies. Often items on the price lists are not available. Moreover, in the peasant market, the housewife has the rare pleasure of bargaining with the seller. That is impossible in the state stores, where prices are fixed by the government.

For clothing, household utensils and almost anything besides food, the shopper goes to the univermag.

When mama gets to the store, she usually finds a long line at the doors waiting to get inside. Once inside, there are other lines. Mama decides what she wants to buy first. She gets in line at that counter. When she gets to the counter, she picks out the item. The sales person, never in a great hurry, hands her a slip. She leaves the line for another line, this time at the cashier's cage. After a long wait, she pays for the item she selected. She then gets back again in the first line to wait her turn to surrender the receipt and receive the item she purchased.

If six items on her shopping list appear at different store counters, that means six times in line to select them, six times to pay the cashier, six times to pick up the items.

Even the Soviet management is beginning to see the futility of this. Signs over some counters in the big stores announce the sales person may be paid directly for the item. But that is the exception.

To buy an ordinary comb in a univermag took me 25 minutes. I first went to the counter, and when my turn came selected a pocket comb. The girl gave me a slip and directed me to line No. 2. I waited there until I got to the cashier's cage, paid the 3.75 rubles, and went to the comb counter again. There I waited to pick up my trophy. A week later, all the teeth were out of it.

There are endless lines in Moscow, largely because of such systems. People are jammed together for hours in the stores, getting nowhere in a furious hurry. I have been in about 30 countries; the crowds in Soviet stores are among the rudest, most jostling and inconsiderate I have seen. But they must be, in self defense. To be polite would cost a tremendous amount of time.

The lines for milk—there is severe shortage of it in the Soviet Union—are even more heart-breaking. Housewives try to out-guess the stores or the outlets in the peasant markets, try to judge the best times. It's difficult to win.

People form lines, carrying empty bottles of all shapes and sizes. The milk is ladled out of big containers. Sometimes, long before the end of the line is reached, the milk is gone. The housewife must either give up or take her chances in another line, where the same thing may happen.

Some items rarely appear on store shelves. I looked in vain in a number of cities for citrus fruits. But tiny oranges were peddled by peasant boys on the streets of the Ukraine capital, Kive.

The high cost of groceries and everything else, plus the lack of home refrigeration, makes it impossible to shop in quantity. Shopping is a daily chore.

The peasants take advantage of the state store situation. As items become short in the stores, prices go up in the peasant market.

With her limited income the Soviet housewife must be careful about her household budget. In comparison with her Western counterpart, her outlay for food is enormous. Many families make ends meet only because there are several persons bringing home wages.

Holidays And Seasonal Absenteeism Curtail Auto Production This Week

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press
Automotive Editor

DETROIT, Dec. 29 (AP)—Because of another extended holiday week end and normal seasonal absenteeism the auto industry expects relatively low production this week.

Nevertheless original estimates of the 1953 output are being realized. The industry this week will wind up the year's operations with approximately 6,134,000 passenger cars and 1,208,000 trucks as its achievement.

The total puts 1953 in second place in the industry's record books. The record year was 1950 when United States factories built 6,658,510 cars and 1,343,923 trucks.

Car makers closed this week are Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Nash, Kaiser and Willys. Studebaker is operating on curtailed schedules.

The industry's production pace should pick up substantially next week. Ford will increase its output and most of the remainder of the industry will get along on schedules that presently call for about 1,700,000 passenger cars in the January-March quarter.

Most of these will come from the Chevrolet and Ford assembly lines. Of the 1953 output through last week these two companies rolled out more than 2,621,000 cars. They also accounted for more than half the truck volume.

Ford already has begun shipping 1954 models to its dealers throughout the country. Engineering and styling details of the new models probably will be announced early next week.

Industry analysts have known for months that a new V-8 engine is included in the engineering advances. They also have speculated that an increase in engine horsepower will be disclosed.

Last week's United States output consisted of 68,094 cars and 17,934 trucks. This compared with 97,434 cars and 25,808 trucks built in the preceding week.

Through last week the industry's 1953 United States output consisted of 6,064,830 cars and 1,190,350 trucks. In the comparable 1952 period 4,285,729 cars and 1,197,018 trucks were built.

Cancer Control Ultimately Attainable, Specialist Says

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter

BOSTON, Dec. 29 (AP) — Control of cancer may be ultimately attainable provided present knowledge of the disease is pushed hard enough by science, Dr. Cornelius P. Rhoads of New York, a leading cancer specialist, said yesterday.

"The control of cancer, so long sought and so long deemed to be inaccessible, now begins to appear as a suitable objective for major scientific activity," Dr. Rhoads told the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science (AAAS). He is associated with New York's Memorial Center for cancer and allied diseases.

"Work toward cancer control," he said, "has been handicapped because of a widely-held misconception. This is that cancer is a mystery and so can not be controlled until 'the innermost secrets of life itself are disclosed.'

"We hold today this is no longer the case. Cancer, from available evidence is no more mysterious than are the infectious disorders. It is perhaps less so than many of the chronic metabolic diseases (like diabetes and arthritis)."

He said that "the steps which have led to the control of other important disease problems in the past have now been made in principle for the (cancer) process," and he added:

"We now have, furthermore, a concept of the nature of the disorder which permits us to seek its control by established procedures."

Even with the imperfect chemical weapons of today, he said, "very marked objective improvement" can be induced "in a substantial proportion of patients with cancer of the blood-forming tissues, of the breast, and of the prostate gland."

Such temporary benefits can also be achieved in certain cases of ovary and lung cancer and in acute leukemia in children, he said.

In the quest for cancer control, Rhoads said, great effort has hitherto been expended by scientists in efforts to demonstrate that some external invader, like bacteria or viruses, was the basic cause of cancer, and hence perhaps susceptible to attack.

A newer concept, he said, holds that the cancer cell itself might be regarded as "a foreign invader" — and hence, he added, this suggests efforts "to seek cancer cure by the selective destruction of that entity (the cancer cell)" as distinguished from trying to get at some further underlying mechanism.

Alice Fankhouser Bride Of D. C. Crosten At Parsons

In a quiet single-ring ceremony solemnized in the First Methodist Church, Parsons, Miss Alice Fankhouser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fankhouser, Parsons, became the bride of Doyle Crosten, son of former Sheriff and Mrs. D. E. Crosten, also of Parsons, December 26.

Rev. W. A. O'Dell, pastor, performed the ceremony before the altar which was decorated with poinsettias and native greenery and lighted with tall white tapers.

Mrs. Charles Barb played nuptial music and also accompanied Miss Sally Ann English, who sang "The Pledge" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white velveteen with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and very full skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a white Bible covered with a white poinsettia and tiny white satin streamer markers knotted with baby white carnations.

Jack Crosten served as his brother's best man.

Mrs. Fankhouser, mother of the bride, wore an aqua crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Crosten wore a grey gabardine suit with black accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Parsons. The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake with bouquets of white carnations and tall white lighted tapers on the ends.

Miss Marguerite Fankhouser, Arlington, Va., sister of the bride, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Jack Crosten, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Anna Lake registered the guests.

The bride is a graduate of Parson High School, 1950 and has been employed as a bookkeeper for the Tucker County Bank of Parsons since that time. Mr. Crosten, a graduate of Thomas High School, is a World War II veteran and is now employed in construction work.

The couple, after a wedding trip, will reside in Kingsport, Tenn.

Alice Fankhouser Bride Of D. C. Crosten At Parsons

In a quiet single-ring ceremony solemnized in the First Methodist Church, Parsons, Miss Alice Fankhouser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fankhouser, Parsons, became the bride of Doyle Crosten, son of former Sheriff and Mrs. D. E. Crosten, also of Parsons, December 26.

Rev. W. A. O'Dell, pastor, performed the ceremony before the altar which was decorated with poinsettias and native greenery and lighted with tall white tapers.

Mrs. Charles Barb played nuptial music and also accompanied Miss Sally Ann English, who sang "The Pledge" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white velveteen with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and very full skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a white Bible covered with a white poinsettia and tiny white satin streamer markers knotted with baby white carnations.

Jack Crosten served as his brother's best man.

Mrs. Fankhouser, mother of the bride, wore an aqua crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Crosten wore a grey gabardine suit with black accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Parsons. The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake with bouquets of white carnations and tall white lighted tapers on the ends.

Miss Marguerite Fankhouser, Arlington, Va., sister of the bride, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Jack Crosten, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Anna Lake registered the guests.

The bride is a graduate of Parson High School, 1950 and has been employed as a bookkeeper for the Tucker County Bank of Parsons since that time. Mr. Crosten, a graduate of Thomas High School, is a World War II veteran and is now employed in construction work.

The couple, after a wedding trip, will reside in Kingsport, Tenn.

Resume Work Or Be Fired, Silk Mill Workers Are Told

WILLIAMSPORT, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—The owner of the Federal Silk Mills told his striking employes today they'll be fired if they're not back on the job by Jan. 4.

The walkout occurred yesterday when more than 300 of the plant's 375 employes refused to work because the annual Christmas bonus was withheld this year.

One of the striking employes, Gene Carter, said the question of the union recognition was also an issue in the walkout.

David Goetz, owner of the plant, said today the bonus was "dependent upon profits," and the firm didn't make enough money this year to pay one.

Federal Silk Mills puts out stockings and ribbons.

The CIO Textile Workers Union won a collective bargaining election at the plant last July, but the results were set aside pending a hearing on charges of "improper conduct" leveled against union organizers by Goetz.

Two Witnesses In Pollack Case Are Under Bail

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—The two witnesses in the obstruction of justice case against political leader James H. Pollack have been placed under bail to assure their appearances for court proceedings next month.

Joseph F. Sudano has been released in $500 bail posted by a relative. James M. Adleman has had his bail set at $1,000.

Sudano was picked up yesterday in the Little Italy section of Baltimore. Adleman was returned here last night from Hollywood, Fla., where he was picked up last week.

The pair had been sought by police for several days on a warrant accusing them of passing a bogus check. When Sudano's father made good the check, cashed by a stable owner, the warrant was withdrawn.

Sudano and Adleman are witnesses in a grand jury indictment charging Pollack with attempting to obstruct justice.

Pollack is a political associate of Mayor D'Alesandro. He is accused of trying to influence the testimony of two witnesses appearing against the mayor's 20-year-old son in a recent morals trial.

The mayor's son, Franklin Roosevelt D'Alesandro, was found innocent of statutory rape but has been indicted on a perjury charge.

Youth Who Baffled Cops Again AWOL

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—A 14-year-old juvenile delinquent whose Houdini-like methods baffled Baltimore police last October is again absent without leave from Boys Village,

Police said today the youngster fled the Prince Georges County institution Dec. 21 with three other lads by hot-wiring a staff member's car.

The boy drove the vehicle in low gear for five miles. The car broke down and the youngsters abandoned it. They were caught by county police who fired at them to persuade them to stop.

The four were taken back to the Village, but the 14-year-old slipped away again, taking advantage of a single guard who had to answer a telephone call.

Lost October, the youth picked a lock on a cell door at Pine Street Station here with a bed spring.

Man Is Found Dead In Barn Near Towson

TOWSON, Dec. 29 (AP) — Ernest Washington Ensor, 74-year-old retired employe of the Department of the Interior, was found dead today in a barn at the home of a sister with whom he had been living at York and Shawan Roads in Baltimore County.

Dr. Rollin Hudson, deputy county medical examiner, pronounced Ensor dead. Officials said a broken piece of rope was tied about the man's neck. The other piece of rope was looped over a rafter.

Ensor's sister, Mrs. Minnie Stevenson, discovered the body after her brother failed to appear for breakfast. She said she last saw him about 10 o'clock last night.

Two Purse Snatchers Sentenced To Prison

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—Two Tampa, Fla., men were given six-year House of Correction terms today for trying to finance transcontinental travels by stealing purses from Baltimore women.

Frederick E. Nuckle, 22, and William J. Lupton Jr., 24, were charged with robbing six women in purse-snatching cases and stealing two other ladies' purses by stealth.

Lupton testified he has been AWOL from the Army for about five months and that he had traveled to California with Nuckle. He said their car broke down there and they stole another to come East.

The men said they turned to purse stealing here to finance a trip to New York City.

Medal Of Honor Presented Baby Son Of War Hero

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Navy laid on the baby blanket of a tiny child today the Medal of Honor awarded to his father who died heroically on a Korean battlefield.

The nation's highest military decoration was conferred posthumously on Hospitalman Francis Colton Hammond of Alexandria, Va., killed as he worked to save wounded Marines on a fire-swept field.

Secretary of the Navy Robert Anderson, acting in behalf of President Eisenhower, awarded the medal to the dead corpsman by placing it near the hand of 3-months old Francis, Jr., who was born after his father's death last March 26. The baby's mother held him during the ceremony.

Anderson carried the baby in his arms into the Pentagon room where the ceremony was conducted.

Hammond was the fifth Navy man and the fourth Hospital Corpsman to receive the Medal of Honor in the Korean War.

Anderson told the baby, and the roomful of high officials and the relatives of the corpsman, that his father richly deserved the honor for "his sublime act of sacrifice." He said of Hammond that "his heroism is a part of a great and free Christian America."

Hammond was serving with the First Marine Division when he met his death. His unit, counter-attacking a strong Communist position, was pinned down by mortar and artillery fire.

He moved among the stricken for more than four hours, giving them aid and helping them start to safety, despite wounds he had received himself. When the order to withdraw came he directed the evacuation of other wounded marines and, after remaining behind to help other corpsmen, was mortally wounded.

Along The Potomac

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—With one of the biggest election battles in history shaping up over control of Congress in 1954, nearly every member has already made a New Year's resolution to compile the best record that is humanly possible.

There are only four more Republicans than Democrats in the House right now, and the Republicans are actually in a one-vote minority in the Senate. Only once since the Civil War—in 1932—has the House been so evenly divided, and there have been only four other instances of it in the Senate in the same period.

I would like to try to predict the outcome of some of the action Congress will be taking in the new session beginning next month, but with both parties so nearly matched, plus the fact that many members unpredictably jump "party lines" when voting, my task is a little difficult.

First of all, however, no matter what walk of life you are in, you want to know what's going to happen about high taxes. Scheduled decreases in income taxes and corporate excess profits taxes, as I have said before, will go through. Regular corporate taxes are supposed to come down from 52 per cent to 47 per cent April 1, but my guess is that they won't be permitted to go that low.

Many congressmen—and I, for one—want to pass a bill allowing working mothers to deduct their baby-sitting expenses when they figure their income taxes. This provision has a good chance of passing.

I also am in favor of revising excise taxes — downward. High rates on so-called luxury items are hurting their sales and thus hurting small businessmen, who certainly deserve tax relief right now. Transportation taxes, introduced during World War II to keep people at home, are outdated and unfair. Movie admissions taxes have already been voted out by Congress, but President Eisenhower vetoed the action because he thought it was favoring only one industry.

Action on these and other taxes will depend to a large extent on how large a budget the President and Congress decide is absolutely necessary to national defense and security.

Next week, just before the new session begins, I will have more to say in this column about some of the legislation on which we will be working.

Mrs. Hyde and I, and all the fine people who are on my staff both here in Washington and in Cumberland—Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Schaeffer, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jacobs—join in wishing each of you the very happiest Christmas and most prosperous New Year.

On my calendar: At 11:30 a. m. December 31, I will be at Frederick High School to address the county-wide annual meeting of the Farm Bureau.

Salisbury To Vote On Bond Issue

SALISBURY, Dec. 29 (AP) — City Council has directed City Solicitor Harry H. Cropper to make preparations for allowing the voters decide on an $800,000 bond issue when they go to the polls next May.

Last night, Council failed to override a veto of Mayor Rollie W. Hastings who turned down a $500,000 bond issue being sought as an emergency health measure for a sewage disposal plant. In the vote for the bond issue, two councilmen voted for and the other two voted against it.

The exact amount of the issue for the referendum will be confirmed later, according to Cropper. The additional money being sought would be used to complete the first three phases of the sewage disposal system.

Along The Potomac

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON—With one of the biggest election battles in history shaping up over control of Congress in 1954, nearly every member has already made a New Year's resolution to compile the best record that is humanly possible.

There are only four more Republicans than Democrats in the House right now, and the Republicans are actually in a one-vote minority in the Senate. Only once since the Civil War—in 1932—has the House been so evenly divided, and there have been only four other instances of it in the Senate in the same period.

I would like to try to predict the outcome of some of the action Congress will be taking in the new session beginning next month, but with both parties so nearly matched, plus the fact that many members unpredictably jump "party lines" when voting, my task is a little difficult.

First of all, however, no matter what walk of life you are in, you want to know what's going to happen about high taxes. Scheduled decreases in income taxes and corporate excess profits taxes, as I have said before, will go through. Regular corporate taxes are supposed to come down from 52 per cent to 47 per cent April 1, but my guess is that they won't be permitted to go that low.

Many congressmen—and I, for one—want to pass a bill allowing working mothers to deduct their baby-sitting expenses when they figure their income taxes. This provision has a good chance of passing.

I also am in favor of revising excise taxes — downward. High rates on so-called luxury items are hurting their sales and thus hurting small businessmen, who certainly deserve tax relief right now. Transportation taxes, introduced during World War II to keep people at home, are outdated and unfair. Movie admissions taxes have already been voted out by Congress, but President Eisenhower vetoed the action because he thought it was favoring only one industry.

Action on these and other taxes will depend to a large extent on how large a budget the President and Congress decide is absolutely necessary to national defense and security.

Next week, just before the new session begins, I will have more to say in this column about some of the legislation on which we will be working.

Mrs. Hyde and I, and all the fine people who are on my staff both here in Washington and in Cumberland—Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Schaeffer, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jacobs—join in wishing each of you the very happiest Christmas and most prosperous New Year.

On my calendar: At 11:30 a. m. December 31, I will be at Frederick High School to address the county-wide annual meeting of the Farm Bureau.

Salisbury To Vote On Bond Issue

SALISBURY, Dec. 29 (AP) — City Council has directed City Solicitor Harry H. Cropper to make preparations for allowing the voters decide on an $800,000 bond issue when they go to the polls next May.

Last night, Council failed to override a veto of Mayor Rollie W. Hastings who turned down a $500,000 bond issue being sought as an emergency health measure for a sewage disposal plant. In the vote for the bond issue, two councilmen voted for and the other two voted against it.

The exact amount of the issue for the referendum will be confirmed later, according to Cropper. The additional money being sought would be used to complete the first three phases of the sewage disposal system.

Cumberland B&O Division Furloughs 799 Employes

A total of 799 employes of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have been furloughed, A. W. Conley, division superintendent, announced yesterday.

The furloughs that begin at the end of this week are for an indefinite period. The system-wide work curtailment is attributed to a decline in business and the dim economic outlook for 1954.

In Cumberland, there were 235 men laid off. By departments the totals are: Back Shops, 129; Bolt and Forge, 49; locomotive, 30; car department, 7, and clerks, 20.

At Keyser, 323 men were notified Monday of their furloughs with 288 coming from the car department; 25 in locomotive, and 10 in transportation.

Other division layoffs are: M&K Junction, locomotive, 7; maintenance of way, 176; Martinsburg locomotive, 5; Cumbo car department, 25; Cumbo transportation, 3, and transportation and maintenance of way, 27.

The layoffs on the Baltimore and Ohio's 13-state system will total 6,000 employes or 11 per cent of its working force.

Howard E. Simpson, president of the railroad, said a reduction in freight traffic and the outlook for the forepart of 1954 "necessitate a reduction in forces."

He predicted business would move at a slower pace in the immediate future.

Simpson said apparently an adjustment is taking place in the nation's economic structure "and although I am not pessimistic concerning business in general during 1954, it is my view at this time that our revenue will show a decrease of eight per cent as compared to 1953."

Safe Drivers Are Honored

William R. Zembower and Cletus R. Elliott have been honored by Celanese Central Trucking Division for seven and five years of accident-free driving respectively, it was announced yesterday by R. F. Moore, manager.

Zembower, of 33 Arch Street, who has operated an over-the-road tractor - trailer combination for seven consecutive years without an accident, was presented a gold Celanese safe-driving pin with a ruby inset and a cash bonus of $400.

Elliott, of RD 3, Bedford, was honored for five years of no-accident driving and received a gold Celanese safe-driving pin with pearl inset and a cash bonus of $400.

It was pointed out by Moore, manager of the corporation's Bedford Road trucking operation, that each Celanese driver is awarded the following cash bonus for each year of accident-free driving: $200 for one year, $250 for two years, $300 for three years, $350 for four years, $400 for five years and $400 for each additional year after five.

Any accident breaks a driver's consecutive-year record and a new start must be made on a new record.

Moore stated that the bonus plan has provided an incentive for the drivers to be more careful and more courteous.

Brothers, Friend Meet In Korea

Three Cumberland servicemen, including two brothers, spent Christmas together in far-off Korea.

Meeting for the first time in more than a year were Cpl. Phillip F. Lease, 20, and Pvt. Robert D. Lease, 18, sons of Mrs. Theta Lease, RD 3, city, and Cpl. Donald Hott, also of RD 3.

Overseas for a year, Cpl. Lease is attached to the 151st Engineer Combat Battalion. Pvt. Lease went to Korea six months ago to serve with the 279th Regiment, 45th Infantry Division.

NEW YORK (INS)—The passing show —

Security is only one of the reasons why there are complaints overseas about the pulling out of American occupation troops. History will record that we are the spendingest military force of all time.

You can bet that no business or professional man ever was a party to those "Go Home Yankee" placards that marked the walls of countries on the perimeter of the Curtain. The pulling out of several divisions could seriously affect the economy of some of the countries involved.

Dr. Howard Rusk, a foremost humanitarian, was telling us the other night that GIs in Korea alone have fomally contributed $17,000,000 to various Korean charities. No man can state the exact overall figure contributed in that country. For instance, Koreans will be wearing American shirts, shoes, pants and caps until the distant years claim the final thread.

If the truth were known, some of the countries are much more concerned over losing the spenders and the generous hearts than they are by the hot breath of the Russian bear.

The holiday season in the U. S. continues to claim its annual hundreds of victims. Many of those who either perpetrated the traffic crimes or were the innocent victims of same would never have dreamed of riding in an airplane. "Too dangerous," they might have said.

Which recalls that recently John D. Profumo, Britain's parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Civil Aviation, told Commons:

"If a man was born on a scheduled airliner and it was possible for him to go on flyng without ever coming down at all, he would be 78 before he was statistically due for a fatal accident."

Speaking of Britain, some of the biggest news in English papers today would startle the average American. The British are excited over a great event scheduled for 1954: Meat, cheese and fats will be derationed. Food rationing was introduced in Britain in January, 1940. Unquestionably, the willingness of the British to continue on short rations after World War II speeded the country's economic recovery.

Palm Springs, Calif., was not intended for television. Nature carefully erected a mountain barrier to guard against it. But man rebelled, and now the desert resort is being watched by the television industry as aeronauts once watched the progress of the Wrights and their fool flying contraption.

Palm Springs has a community antenna system. The beams of Los Angeles TV stations are sent out from Mt. Wilson on the eastern edge of the sprawling city, and are thrown 90 miles to the Palm Springs community antenna located atop a mountain on the northwestern edge of the resort.

A coaxial cable has been laid down the mountain and into Palm Springs. The cable is strung on telephone poles down the main highway and thence into each street of the swank settlement. To bring the power into your house costs $150, plus eight per cent federal tax. There is a "service" charge of $5 a month, which also is taxed.

In addition, Palm Springs has "Telemeter." Channel 6 often carries a scrambled picture, plus an announcer's voice saying that if such and such an amount is placed in the meter (installed atop your set for a nominal charge) Channel 6's scramble will become a top sports event or a first run movie. With no commercials.

And so out of a place which God apparently wanted to keep free of TV may come the answers that will keep the television and film industries alive.

Hyde Favors Baby-Sitting Tax Deductions

Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde (6th-Maryland) has announced he will support legislation in the final session of the Eighty-third Congress to allow working mothers to deduct their baby-sitting expenses from income taxes.

"This proposal has a good chance of passing," he added.

The Maryland Congressman said that "no matter what walk of life you are in, you want to know what's going to happen about high taxes." He said that "scheduled decreases in income taxes and corporate excise profit taxes, will probably be favorably acted upon."

"Regular corporate taxes are supposed to come down from 52 per cent to 47 per cent April 1, but my guess is that they won't be permitted to go that low," Hyde said.

The Maryland congressman also favors revising transportation taxes enacted during World War II to keep people at home, they are outdated and unfair, he declared.

He also favors ending taxes on movie admissions voted out by Congress but vetoed by President Eisenhower because he thought it would be favoring one industry.

Hyde said, "with one of the biggest election battles in history shaping up over the control of Congress in 1954, nearly every member has already made a New Year's resolution to compile the best record possible during the final session of this Congress."

Board Given Jail Survey

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a report of a survey conducted by the Corinthian Engineering Service on recommended improvements at the county jail.

The October grand jury recommended that a private stairway be built to the women's quarters in the building and a catwalk be eliminated.

The survey resulted in a recommendation that concrete slab and steel be used to make two rooms in the open space inside the jail now used as a "bullpen." One of the rooms would be used for storage and the other as a conference room.

Prior to the jail work the commissioners said they would like to have the sash and windows of the Court House replaced. This was also included in previous grand jury reports on suggested improvements.

City Gets Plans For Flood Wall On West Side

Council To Study Program Monday

Advance plans of the Corps of Engineers for the construction of a flood wall on the West Side of Cumberland in connection with the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood protection program were received yesterday afternoon by Mayor Roy W. Eves.

The tentative plans are now being checked by C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, and will be presented to the Mayor and Council at a special session Monday morning, following the regular Council meeting.

It is understood the Corps of Engineers is trying to expedite the flood wall project, so it can get under way in late spring.

Plans call for a concrete flood wall, about 900 feet long, extending from a point near the Moose Home to near the Gas Company property on Water Street.

Ahead Of Schedule

The Maryland half of the industrial dam connecting Cumberland and Ridgeley will be finished in a few months.

Only five more pours of concrete remain and the center pier and the east spillway will be completed.

Rex. E. Dexter, Corps of Army Engineers district engineer, said the contractor, the E. J. Albrecht Company, is far ahead of schedule because of favorable weather.

The Albrecht firm has a September completion date in the contract, and with current progress the dam will be finished by spring.

Work To Continue

After the five pours are made this week, the coffer dam will be rearranged for the work on the West Virginia half. This will possibly take a month. Only the spillway has to be poured as the center pier is practically completed.

Modern heating equipment is enabling the contractor to maintain a nearly normal schedule in pouring concrete.

The mix is pre-heated at the batch plant at Corriganville and when it is placed in the mixer at Riverside Park heated water is used.

The concrete, after being poured, is covered with tarpaulin and the enclosed area heated by oil heaters. After 24 hours the tarpaulin is removed and the concrete is covered with straw.

The contractor intends to keep working this winter as long as the weather permits.

After the dam is finished, the State Roads Commissions of Maryland and West Virginia will build a bridge on its superstructure.

Bridge Bids Asked

Bids for the superstructure of the span will be opened by the Maryland State Roads Commission in Baltimore January 19.

The specifications call for a structural steel superstructure with two 156-foot spans.

Construction of the floor of the bridge and approaches will be let under subsequent contracts.

The actual construction of the bridge will get under way early next fall, but bids are being asked now so structural steel parts may be fabricated and ready when work on the Industrial Dam is completed.

VIENNESE POTATO SOUP MAKES A MEAL

Viennese Potato Soup is a wonderfully useful one-dish meal. It is just the thing to serve when families are tired of fancy foods, or when Mother is weary of cooking. It appeals to men, women and children. It is an excellent dish to serve at a buffet, or at a church supper.

Its appeal lies in the fact that it combines those two favorite foods, meat and potatoes, and makes the most of both. Since the broth in which both are cooked together is a part of the soup, not a bit of the precious vitamins and minerals and other food value is lost. All of the B-vitamins of the meat, the C-vitamin of the potatoes, the A-vitamin of the margarine is there, a part of the satisfying, nourishing goodness of this semi-thick soup.

Viennese Potato Soup can be adapted to suit one's own taste without spoiling the soup. One may use more or less onion than the recipe calls for, more or less meat. But don't cut down on the margarine, for the soup needs all that for flavor. And don't cut down on potatoes. You may even wish to add a few, for they are the ingredient that gives this excellent soup its fine energy-giving value.

VIENNESE POTATO SOUP
(makes 6 servings)

- ¾ cup margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 pound lean ground beef
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 4 cups diced peeled potatoes (6-8 potatoes)
- 2½ quarts water
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, if desired

In large deep sauce pan melt margarine. Add onion and fry gently until pale yellow. Add ground beef and stir to separate meat. Cook gently 5 minutes, stirring several times. Add paprika, salt and pepper. Cover and cook 2 minutes. Dust flour over meat, stirring well. Add potatoes and water. Cover and cook 15 to 20 minutes, or until potatoes can easily be pierced with fork. Add Worcestershire Sauce, if desired. Serve hot.

Broiling Meat Is Cooking Puzzle Of Homemakers

Broiling is the meat cookery method that appears to puzzle homemakers. This fact was revealed by a recent survey among thousands of homemakers in various sections of the country. In answer to the survey question, "Which meat cookery method do you find the most difficult?," 60 per cent listed broiling.

Actually broiling is one of the simplest of all meat cookery methods. For finest results just keep these two points in mind. (1) Use a moderate broiling temperature. (2) Time broiling closely — to the exact minute.

To obtain a moderate broiling temperature, arrange the steak, chops, patties, or ham slice on the broiler rack so that the top surface of the meat is 2 inches from the heat if meat is 1-inch thick; 3 inches, if 2 inches thick. Let the meat cook until well browned — approximately half the allotted cooking time for the meat cut—then season. With tongs or the tines of a utility fork inserted in the fat, turn the meat and cook and serve immediately. If necessary have your family and guests at the dinner table waiting for the meat to be served.

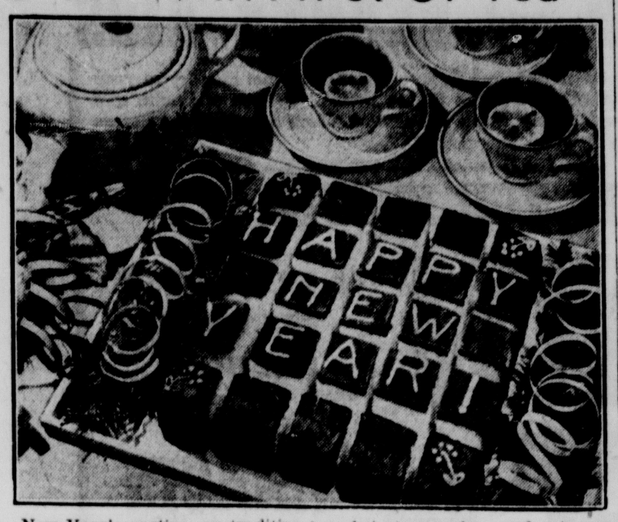
Cheer With A Pot Of Tea



New Year's parties are traditional—and traditionally planned for the adult members of the family and their friends, or for the near adults and their respective friends. Not often enough are New Year's parties given exclusively and privately for the intimate family group. There's no one loves a party more than your small-fry — and there's no one who needs the emotional security of belonging to the adult family group than these youngsters. So why not plan a family New Year's party especially to include the early-to-bed-early-to rise members.

There's no need to go into a lot of party preparations, either. Just a few noise-makers, paper hats and streamers will do to give your regular evening meal a festive look. One of those ready-mix cakes, baked in an 8-inch square pan, frosted and decorated with the words Happy New Year, will make them happy.

And to give the youngesters the feeling of attending a real grown-up party, prepare a pot of hearty, relaxing tea. Serve it as is for the adult members with sugar, milk or lemon. To the youngsters serve cambric tea (very-very weak tea with lots of milk). There's nothing like the atmosphere created over a friendly cup of tea around the family table to aid the camraderie and esprit de corps needed to cement family relations.

To make very, very weak tea for cambric tea, make regular tea according to the rule of 1 teaspoonful tea or 1 tea bag per cup plus one for the pot, and weaken the tea by adding hot water.

The essential principles in making regular tea are simple. All you need is the proper proportions of tea, boiling water and a brewing period of three or five minutes. Real tea-lovers prefer milk with their tea because they say milk lets the true flavor of the tea come through.

Happy New Year Cake

1 package white ready-mix cake;
1 recipe chocolate butter icing.

Prepare cake according to package directions. Mix your favorite butter icing. Before adding chocolate, reserve enough white icing to inscribe the words "Happy New Year". Just before serving cut cake into squares and arrange on platter. Decorate with Christmas greens.

Gelatine Supplements Protein Requirements

Each senior citizen can control to a large extent his own aging process by persistent good or bad habits of eating and other activities. Such is the wonderful resilience of the human body, it is practically never too late to make a change to the good habits and to physical improvement.

In this business of staying young via food, it is important that persons over 60 years of age get maintenance and repair food, or an ample daily supply of protein, just as the younger person. Protein is a part of every living cell in the body, and a person really becomes aware of feeling old when he or she has not been maintaining the very body structure. Many doctors are also of the opinion that older people need more protein than when they were young.

Protein is made up of some 23 amino or building blocks. Eight of these are necessary to live, grow and be vigorous. Without them, tissues are not repaired; blood plasma and hemoglobin are not replaced.

These eight essential amino acids are from animal sources of protein: meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese and milk. There are other sources of protein . . . cereals, bread, dry beans and peas and nuts, but these are not complete with the eight essential building blocks and must be supplemented with a complete protein, with milk or eggs for example. Unflavored gelatine is a protein food and it contains seven of the eight essential amino acids.

A good way for the senior citizen to assure a daily supply of protein is to eat a variety of the protein sources and to supplement his diet with unflavored gelatine. A simple way is to drink an envelope of unflavored gelatine softened in a glass of water or fruit juice as a mid-morning or mid-afternoon snack.

Pears In Blossom

2 ripe Anjou or Comise pears
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
¼ cup coconut

Wash and dry ripe, juicy pears. Whip together the cream cheese, orange juice and grated orange rind to a good spreading consistency. With a silver knife or spatula, spread the cheese mixture over the pears. Roll in coconut or sprinkle over pears. Serve pear on dessert plate with a dessert fork. Serves 2.

Western Pear Marmalade

3½ cups diced Western pears
1 orange, medium
4½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Wash and dice fresh ripe pears and place in a large saucepan. Grind orange in food chopper. Add orange to pears and stir in pectin. Place over high heat and bring to a boil. Add sugar all at once and stir well. Bring to a rolling boil and continue for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir and skim for three minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal at once. Makes about four half-pint jars.

Here's How To Keep Pecans Fresh

If you are taking advantage of this fall's record-large crop of pecans by buying in quantity for the holidays or later, it's well to know how to keep these delicious nuts at their best in flavor and crispness, specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service, West Virginia University, suggested here today.

Pecans, like other nuts, keep better in the shell than shelled, and better at a cold than a warm temperature, according to research workers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cold keeping is especially important for shelled pecans to prevent rancidity, the USDA researchers find. The high oil content of these nuts which gives their characteristic rich flavor also makes them very perishable. Exposed to air and warmth they are especially subject to rancidity.

In the shell, pecans will keep two to three months at ordinary room temperature before showing a rancid flavor, but tests of shelled pecans showed that after three months at 70 degrees F. their flavor had changed so much that they were "barely acceptable." In a tight container at 32 degrees F. or colder, shelled pecans keep well for six months to a year.

Housewives in the South for years have preserved pecans by canning, but an easier, better way is to put them in moisture-vapor-resistant bags or other containers and store them in home freezers, the Extension specialists said. There they will be protected for as long as a year against rancidity and will also be safe against moisture which makes them tough or even moldy, against absorbing odors and flavors from other foods, against insect damage.

Pecan meats sell in small consumer-size, vacuum-packed tins which protect against rancidity. Research is now in progress for developing other types of packages that keep out air. But the housewife who buys nut meats in bulk or shells pecans herself will find freezing or at least refrigeration the best way to preserve them.

Candles will burn without smoking or dripping if you coat them first with soapsuds. Allow to dry in candle holders before lighting. They'll last longer, too.

Tea For Family Or Friends

During the early days of American history tea was sold at the price of $30-50 per pound. Naturally, only the very wealthy families could afford to buy tea. It was generally served on a special occasion in expensive imported teapots and fine china, along with delicate sandwiches and tiny tea cakes.

Through the years, the American attitude toward this hearty beverage has changed for several reasons. For example, today a pound of the finest tea imported into this country will provide 200 cups of tea at a price which fits the American pocketbook, thus making tea one of the least expensive beverages available, next to water. And, too, tea has become more and more a part of our modern menu planning. It is served more often with meals, as well as between meals, as a pick-up beverage or as a refreshment while watching TV. As a result the family tea scene is no longer an unfamiliar one in American homes.

In addition to serving tea to the family more often, the American home-maker also finds that a small informal tea for a few friends is a gracious gesture of hospitality, as well as an easy and economical way to entertain since the refreshments are always simple and easy to manage.

When serving a small group of people, the tea service is brought in on a tray or tea wagon which holds the teapot, sugar, cream, lemon, cups, saucers, small plates, silver, and napkins. If tea is served in the dining-room, the table is set similarly to the buffet service. The hostess or a friend, or both, pour the beverage while the guests help themselves from the table or from plates passed by the hostess or a friend. Tea service in the living-room is usually set on a low table, and is served by the hostess. An informal tea menu consists of tea, cookies, cakes, and/or small sandwiches. Since tea service is generally informal, there are no rigid rules of setting or service to limit the hostess, except one—the tea should be properly brewed.

The important thing to remember about brewing tea is that the water must be absolutely boiling while pouring it over the tea leaves in a preheated teapot. Use 1 teaspoonful of tea or 1 tea bag for every cup of tea, plus one for the pot. Be sure to allow the tea to brew 3-5 minutes—no longer. Don't judge the strength of tea by the color—brew it by the clock. Keep hot water handy to serve weaker tea to those who prefer it . . . never under-brew the tea infusion.

It is also a good idea to keep the food not only simple but easy to manage. Cake, cut to a size which does not require the use of a fork is most welcome since there are generally not enough small tables around to accommodate the guests and it is not always an easy matter to balance a plate on one's lap. Cakes baked in an 8-inch square or round pan, frosted and cut in 1½-inch squares or circles are easy to manage. Cookies that do not crumble easily are also appreciated by the guests. For a variety in home-made cookies, use vegetable food colors in a basic cookie recipe. There are a variety of handy cookie-presses on the market which will give you a number of different sizes and shapes.

Suggestions for a small or informal tea:

Watercress and cream cheese sandwiches
Toasted English muffins
Cookies — Tea
Melba toast
Strawberry jam
Cake — Tea

Here's Tasty Sweet Potato Ham Serving

Purchasing a larger roast with plans for second and third meals is often a wise move.

Ham And Sweet Potato Roll

¾ pound ground ham
½ pound ground pork
½ cup cracker crumbs
1 egg
¾ cup milk
2 cups mashed sweet potatoes

Combine all ingredients except potatoes. Spread on waxed paper to ½-inch thickness, making a sheet about 6 x 10 inches. Spread with seasoned mashed potatoes, and roll like a jelly roll. Place in roasting pan and bake in moderate over (350° F.) for 1 hour and 15 minutes, 6 servings.

Stuff Fish Turbans With Mushrooms

There never was a food that the addition of mushrooms couldn't make better—except desserts, of course. Their delicious flavor blends with fish, meats, poultry, eggs, vegetables, cheeses. A recipe we like especially is the one given below, because of the ingenious way fish fillets are stuffed with a mushroom dressing. The fillets are coiled inside muffin cups, and the stuffing spooned in. When they come out of the oven, they look like fluffy white turbans, a very pretty platter of fish indeed. By the way, fish fillets are on the governments plentiful list for December.

FISH TURBANS WITH MUSHROOM STUFFING

Let two 1-pound packages of fish fillets (cod, haddock, or ocean perch thaw on the bottom shelf of your refrigerator or at room temperature. Grease a six-well muffin pan. Set oven at 375°F. (moderate oven. Sprinkle fillets with lemon juice and coil each fillet around inside of muffin well. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1 tablespoon chopped onion and saute until onion is golden. Add ½ cup chopped canned mushrooms, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup cream, 2 beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir until well mixed. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened. Spoon into center of fish turbans. Bake at 375°F. (moderate oven) 15 to 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve immediately on a hot platter. Makes six servings.

Cranberries In Menu With Meat

Today start taking advantage of cranberries to add color to dinner tables. You'll find their tart-sweet flavor makes them a special favorite for accompanying meat dishes.

For a new taste treat serve cranberries with veal. Prepare breaded veal chops and accompany them with a tart cranberry sauce. Broiled lamb loin, rib or shoulder chops are cleverly accompanied by firm canned peach halves filled with cranberry relish.

Your holiday ham takes on a novel touch when it's surrounded with Christmas cups — lime halves filled with cranberry sauce. A perfect accompaniment for a pork roast are orange cups given a saw-tooth effect around the top and filled with cranberry sauce.

For still another serving unmold a jellied cranberry ring in the center of a large serving tray or bread board. Arrange slices of cold roast pork around the salad. This gives you an attractive buffet serving. One other accompaniment for pork, apple sauce, is given added appeal when cranberries are cooked with the apples.

Restore the lustre of rhinestone pins and buckles by soaking them in gasoline for about 15 minutes, then rubbing with a flannel cloth.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. Beef sirloin steak.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?
A. It comes from the sirloin section of beef and may be identified by the portions of back bone and hip bone it contains.

Q. How is it prepared?
A. By broiling, panbroiling or panfrying. To broil, arrange the steak on the broiler rack and adjust pan so that top surface of a 1-inch steak is 2 inches from the heat, farther if steak is thicker. Let meat cook until well browned, season, turn and cook on the second side. Season and serve immediately. Consult a time-table for exact cooking time.
To panbroil place steak in a heavy frying-pan with a small amount of lard or drippings. Let meat cook slowly until well browned on both sides, turning meat frequently. Pour off fat that accumulates in the pan. Do not cover or add liquid. To panfry, cook the meat in fat without a cover, turning frequently.

Tea For Family Or Friends

During the early days of American history tea was sold at the price of $30-50 per pound. Naturally, only the very wealthy families could afford to buy tea. It was generally served on a special occasion in expensive imported teapots and fine china, along with delicate sandwiches and tiny tea cakes.

Through the years, the American attitude toward this hearty beverage has changed for several reasons. For example, today a pound of the finest tea imported into this country will provide 200 cups of tea at a price which fits the American pocketbook, thus making tea one of the least expensive beverages available, next to water. And, too, tea has become more and more a part of our modern menu planning. It is served more often with meals, as well as between meals, as a pick-up beverage or as a refreshment while watching TV. As a result the family tea scene is no longer an unfamiliar one in American homes.

In addition to serving tea to the family more often, the American home-maker also finds that a small informal tea for a few friends is a gracious gesture of hospitality, as well as an easy and economical way to entertain since the refreshments are always simple and easy to manage.

When serving a small group of people, the tea service is brought in on a tray or tea wagon which holds the teapot, sugar, cream, lemon, cups, saucers, small plates, silver, and napkins. If tea is served in the dining-room, the table is set similarly to the buffet service. The hostess or a friend, or both, pour the beverage while the guests help themselves from the table or from plates passed by the hostess or a friend. Tea service in the living-room is usually set on a low table, and is served by the hostess. An informal tea menu consists of tea, cookies, cakes, and/or small sandwiches. Since tea service is generally informal, there are no rigid rules of setting or service to limit the hostess, except one—the tea should be properly brewed.

The important thing to remember about brewing tea is that the water must be absolutely boiling while pouring it over the tea leaves in a preheated teapot. Use 1 teaspoonful of tea or 1 tea bag for every cup of tea, plus one for the pot. Be sure to allow the tea to brew 3-5 minutes—no longer. Don't judge the strength of tea by the color—brew it by the clock. Keep hot water handy to serve weaker tea to those who prefer it . . . never under-brew the tea infusion.

It is also a good idea to keep the food not only simple but easy to manage. Cake, cut to a size which does not require the use of a fork is most welcome since there are generally not enough small tables around to accommodate the guests and it is not always an easy matter to balance a plate on one's lap. Cakes baked in an 8-inch square or round pan, frosted and cut in 1½-inch squares or circles are easy to manage. Cookies that do not crumble easily are also appreciated by the guests. For a variety in homemade cookies, use vegetable food colors in a basic cookie recipe. There are a variety of handy cookie-presses on the market which will give you a number of different sizes and shapes.

Stuff Fish Turbans With Mushrooms

There never was a food that the addition of mushrooms couldn't make better—except desserts, of course. Their delicious flavor blends with fish, meats, poultry, eggs, vegetables, cheeses. A recipe we like especially is the one given below, because of the ingenious way fish fillets are stuffed with a mushroom dressing. The fillets are coiled inside muffin cups, and the stuffing spooned in. When they come out of the oven, they look like fluffy white turbans, a very pretty platter of fish indeed. By the way, fish fillets are on the governments plentiful list for December.

FISH TURBANS WITH MUSHROOM STUFFING

Let two 1-pound packages of fish fillets (cod, haddock, or ocean perch thaw on the bottom shelf of your refrigerator or at room temperature. Grease a six-well muffin pan. Set oven at 375°F. (moderate oven). Sprinkle fillets with lemon juice and coil each fillet around inside of muffin well. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1 tablespoon chopped onion and saute until onion is golden. Add ½ cup chopped canned mushrooms, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup cream, 2 beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir until well mixed. Cook over low heat until mixture is thickened. Spoon into center of fish turbans. Bake at 375°F. (moderate oven) 15 to 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve immediately on a hot platter. Makes six servings.

Cranberries In Menu With Meat

Today start taking advantage of cranberries to add color to dinner tables. You'll find their tart-sweet flavor makes them a special favorite for accompanying meat dishes.

For a new taste treat serve cranberries with veal. Prepare breaded veal chops and accompany them with a tart cranberry sauce. Broiled lamb loin, rib or shoulder chops are cleverly accompanied by firm canned peach halves filled with cranberry relish.

Your holiday ham takes on a novel touch when it's surrounded with Christmas cups — lime halves filled with cranberry sauce. A perfect accompaniment for a pork roast are orange cups given a saw-tooth effect around the top and filled with cranberry sauce.

For still another serving unmold a jellied cranberry ring in the center of a large serving tray or bread board. Arrange slices of cold roast pork around the salad. This gives you an attractive buffet serving. One other accompaniment for pork, apple sauce, is given added appeal when cranberries are cooked with the apples.

Restore the lustre of rhinestone pins and buckles by soaking them in gasoline for about 15 minutes, then rubbing with a flannel cloth.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef sirloin steak.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. It comes from the sirloin section of beef and may be identified by the portions of back bone and hip bone it contains.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By broiling, panbroiling or panfrying. To broil, arrange the steak on the broiler rack and adjust pan so that top surface of a 1-inch steak is 2 inches from the heat, farther if steak is thicker. Let meat cook until well browned, season, turn and cook on the second side. Season and serve immediately. Consult a time-table for exact cooking time.

To panbroil place steak in a heavy frying-pan with a small amount of lard or drippings. Let meat cook slowly until well browned on both sides, turning meat frequently. Pour off fat that accumulates in the pan. Do not cover or add liquid. To panfry, cook the meat in fat without a cover, turning frequently.

Here's Tasty Sweet Potato Ham Serving

Purchasing a larger roast with plans for second and third meals is often a wise move.

Ham And Sweet Potato Roll

¾ pound ground ham
½ pound ground pork
½ cup cracker crumbs
1 egg
¾ cup milk
2 cups mashed sweet potatoes

Combine all ingredients except potatoes. Spread on waxed paper to ½-inch thickness, making a sheet about 6 x 10 inches. Spread with seasoned mashed potatoes, and roll like a jelly roll. Place in roasting pan and bake in moderate over (350° F.) for 1 hour and 15 minutes. 6 servings.

Heroic Mother Who Saves Baby Has Pneumonia

The heroic 20-year-old local mother who carried her 14-months-old daughter to safety from a flaming house Monday is suffering from bronchial pneumonia, but her physician said yesterday her condition is "better."

Mrs. Joanne Noble, wife of Daniel R. Noble, is presently at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Whittington, 205 Roberts Street, and may have to be taken to a hospital.

The Nobles lost everything in an early morning fire Monday. The blaze is believed to have been touched off by a Christmas tree. After wrapping her daughter, Patricia, in a blanket and carrying her to safety, Mrs. Noble was confined to bed.

She was suffering from burns about the hands and face. Members of the family said her doctor reported she may have to be taken to the hospital to combat the pneumonia.

Dolls Of Six Nations

Jane Hansroth, 51 Browning Street, is a junior at Bethany College but she still likes to look at unusual and attractive dolls. She is shown examining some of the 40 dolls from six countries which are on display in the Children's Room at the Cumberland Free Public Library. The dolls belong to Miss Joyce Mobus, 415 North Centre Street.

James Horton Brant, Bedford Road, and Emma Alcinda Lowery, 241 Henderson Avenue.

William Edward Garton, Clarksburg, W. Va., and Ella Jean Smith, Little Orleans.

Dolls From Six Countries Displayed At Local Library

About 40 dolls are included in the display, loaned to the library by Miss Joyce Mobus, 415 North Centre Street.

The dolls depict Dutch, Chinese and Balinese residents. There also are several Indian children, made from redwood bark. A Negro mammy and her children also are quite evident in the display case on the second floor of the library.

Beside the doll exhibit is a tree trimmed with paper balls, each of which bears the name of a book and its author, suitable for reading during the holiday season.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, reports that the library will be closed tomorrow and Friday, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, but will reopen at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Civic Theatre Group Will Meet Wednesday

The Cumberland Civic Theatre will meet Wednesday, January 6, at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall Auditorium to complete the casting of its second production, "Detective Story."

Robert E. Pence, director of the City Recreation Department, sponsor of the group, said more men will be needed to complete the cast of the play written by Sidney Kingsley. New applicants, and all men present at initial casting tryouts are urged to attend next week's meeting.

Harold C. Wickard, director, reported the play calls for 24 actors, with only 18 signed up to date. He said if a full cast is not secured, the group may have to drop plans for "Detective Story" and switch to "Boy Meets Girl."

Petersburg Tops Grads For 5th Cage Victory

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 29—Coach Jesse Riggleman's Petersburg Vikings recorded their fourth win of the campaign here tonight, downing an Alumni club, 45-40.

total of federal purchase of Army shoes or blankets, for example, would be obtained under normal competitive procedures with the contract going to the lowest qualified bidder.

The rest of the quantity of merchandise required — 20 or 30 per cent, for instance—will be set aside for negotiation with firms in labor surplus areas.

To win a contract, however, firms in those areas must meet the competitive buying procedure.

Will Get Preference

The program also calls for:

1. Full opportunity to qualified firms in labor surplus areas to submit bids or proposals on all procurement for which they are qualified.
2. In the event of tie bids, awarding of contracts to a firm located in an unemployment area.
3. Encouraging prime contractors to award subcontracts to firms located in surplus labor areas.

The program also stipulates that the Commerce Department and the Small Business Administration assist firms in such areas in obtaining information about federal contracts.

The Commerce and Labor Departments are directed to give technical help to areas trying to attract new industries.

Heroic Mother Who Saves Baby Has Pneumonia

The heroic 20-year-old local mother who carried her 14-months-old daughter to safety from a flaming house Monday is suffering from bronchial pneumonia, but her physician said yesterday her condition is "better."

Mrs. Joanne Noble, wife of Daniel R. Noble, is presently at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Whittington, 205 Roberts Street, and may have to be taken to a hospital.

The Nobles lost everything in an early morning fire Monday. The blaze is believed to have been touched off by a Christmas tree. After wrapping her daughter, Patricia, in a blanket and carrying her to safety, Mrs. Noble was confined to bed.

She was suffering from burns about the hands and face. Members of the family said her doctor reported she may have to be taken to the hospital to combat the pneumonia.

Dolls From Six Countries Displayed At Local Library

About 40 dolls are included in the display, loaned to the library by Miss Joyce Mobus, 415 North Centre Street.

The dolls depict Dutch, Chinese and Balinese residents. There also are several Indian children, made from redwood bark. A Negro mammy and her children also are quite evident in the display case on the second floor of the library.

Beside the doll exhibit is a tree trimmed with paper balls, each of which bears the name of a book and its author, suitable for reading during the holiday season.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, reports that the library will be closed tomorrow and Friday, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, but will reopen at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Civic Theatre Group Will Meet Wednesday

The Cumberland Civic Theatre will meet Wednesday, January 6, at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall Auditorium to complete the casting of its second production, "Detective Story."

Robert E. Pence, director of the City Recreation Department, sponsor of the group, said more men will be needed to complete the cast of the play written by Sidney Kingsley. New applicants, and all men present at initial casting tryouts are urged to attend next week's meeting.

Harold C. Wickard, director, reported the play calls for 24 actors, with only 18 signed up to date. He said if a full cast is not secured, the group may have to drop plans for "Detective Story" and switch to "Boy Meets Girl."

The rest of the quantity of merchandise required — 20 or 30 per cent, for instance—will be set aside for negotiation with firms in labor surplus areas.

To win a contract, however, firms in those areas must meet the competitive buying procedure.

Will Get Preference

The program also calls for:

1. Full opportunity to qualified firms in labor surplus areas to submit bids or proposals on all procurement for which they are qualified.
2. In the event of tie bids, awarding of contracts to a firm located in an unemployment area.
3. Encouraging prime contractors to award subcontracts to firms located in surplus labor areas.

The program also stipulates that the Commerce Department and the Small Business Administration assist firms in such areas in obtaining information about federal contracts.

The Commerce and Labor Departments are directed to give technical help to areas trying to attract new industries.

Allegany And LaSalle Score Easy Alumni Triumphs

Campers Win Rough Game At Foul Line

Grads Are Defeated By 68 To 53 Count, Hoffman Gets 21

In a contest marked by frequent fouling, Allegany's Campers rolled to their fifth win of the season, downing an Alumni five, 68-53, on the Campobello floor last night.

The game was a ragged affair with a total of 52 personals being called, 32 on the Alumni and 20 on the varsity.

The Campers were outscored from the floor, as the Grads hit on 20 field goals compared to 17 for the Bowersmen, but the Alleganians hit with amazing regularity from the foul stripe, converting 34 times in 46 attempts, to wrap up the game.

Three players were ejected from the contest via the foul route, with Allegany's Dave Steele and Bob Kirtley exiting in the final period, along with Bill Turner of the Alumni.

Four Campers — namely Jim Hoffman, Dick Rank, Steele, and Kirtley hit in double figures, with Hoffmans 21 markers spearheading the attack. Rank and Kirtley each had 15, while Steele dumped in 12.

Bob Lookabaugh, graduate of the class of '51, was high man for the Alumni with 15 tallies, 11 of them obtained in the second half. A total of 14 Alumni players saw action in the tilt.

Ft. Hill Hosts Martinsburg Quint Tonight

Sentinels To Seek 5th Win Of Year

Coach Bobby Cavanaugh's Fort Hill Sentinels will host the invading Martinsburg High Bulldogs tonight at 8 o'clock on the Sentinels hardwood. The Cavanaughmen will be seeking their fifth victory of the season.

Tutored by John Coburn, who is beginning his 22nd season at the helm of Martinsburg athletic teams, the Bulldogs will be opening their 1953-54 season tonight with the Sentinels.

Returning to hte Martinsburg team from last year's squad which split with Fort Hill, losing 58-52 here and winning 46-42 in Martinsburg, will be Dick Holbrunner, Curtis Powers and Richard Blake.

Also veterans of last year's campaign are Dale Wroe and Howard Fagley. Last year Holbrunner scored 22 points in the two games against Fort Hill while Powers garnered 17 in a losing cause here. Both are seniors.

Fort Hill has wracked up triumphs over Hagerstown, 71-59; Moorefield, 57-48; Ridgeley, 50-34; and an Alumni team, 50-34. The Sentinels' only loss came at the hands of Parsons on the Panthers home court, 44-37.

Dick Brant, husky Fort Hill pivot man, will be striving to add to his city scoring lead in the Martinsburg battle.

The Jayvees squad of both schools will meet in the 6:45 p. m. preliminary. Joe Stanislawczyk and Fred "Tack" Clark will officiate the main event.

In the only other scholastic cage game scheduled tonight Keyser High's Golden Tornado will play host to the Moorefield Yellowjackets in the Mineral County school gym in a Potomac Valley Conference contest.

Keyser, defeated in its last start by Allegany, 69-49, will be facing a Jacket squad which is paced by one of the district's leading scorers, Marion Deahl. The Jackets have a 4-2 mark while Coach John Shelton's Tornado has a 2-1 record.

Tight Defense Wins Contest For Explorers

Geatzmen Score 62-49 Triumph For Fourth Victory Of Campaign

A tight defense which held the Grads scoreless from the field for over 16 minutes in the first three periods enabled the LaSalle High Explorers to score an easy 62-49 triumph over the Alumni on the SS. Peter and Paul boards last night.

The Grads, paced by Bob McGreevy's 10 points, scored two quick field goals at the outset of the contest, but then were kept from the basket until two minutes had passed in the third period. Meanwhile the Explorers, coached by George Geatz in the absence of Mentor Norman Geatz, quickly added up the score to lead 13-7 at the quarter, 27-13 at halftime and 50-34 at the close of the third quarter.

The only scoring done by the Alumni during the span of approximately 16 minutes was at the foul line where they converted 17 of 36 chances.

Barney Spearman topped the LaSalle attack with 15 points before fouling out of the game with three minutes to play in the final period. High man for the Alumni was Francis Kitzmiller with 13 markers.

Saxton To Meet Flanagan Tonight

The 23-year-old New Yorker, third ranking welter contender, was serenely undisturbed by the prospect of facing Flanagan's potent left hand and cleverness.

"We'll have something ready for him," Saxton said, "Im not worried."

Faloney's Knee Gives Way, Maryland Bowl Hopes Dim

Beightol Moved Up As 2nd String Back

By GEORGE BOWEN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Maryland's Orange Bowl hopes against Oklahoma nosedived today when the injured knee of quarterback Bernie Faloney collapsed again in a dummy scrimmage.

"There goes our team," was the first reaction of Coach Jim Tatum. "If it was any other boy, it wouldn't be nearly as bad.

"With Faloney out, there goes moving the ball, kicking, defense and the morale of the team."

Knee Gives Way

Today, running the second string, he cut into the line on a keep play and when he pulled up sharply the knee gave way.

At the time, Tatum was playing defensive end "So I could protect him myself. But it happened anyway."

The Oklahoma quarterback position also was weakened when Pat O'Neal, second string signal-caller, came up with a freak injury.

O'Neal was hurt during a punting drill yesterday and didn't know it. A lineman fell on his chest but he thought nothing of it. Today, he complained of a pain in his chest. An examination showed a shoulder bone separation.

Faloney had not been tackled since his injury. During the Orange Bowl scrimmages, Tatum had given the defense strict orders not to "lay a hand on Faloney."

Dr. Thurston Adams, the team physician, said Faloney complained of a sharp pain on the outside of the knee and said he may have suffered a muscle cramp rather than a reinjury to the torn ligaments.

Beightol Moves Up

"If it swells up overnight, it's bad news," Adams said. "If it doesn't, he can be counted on for something."

Tatum, however, went ahead on the assumption that Faloney was lost to the team for the New Year's Day game.

Charley Boxold will start for Faloney and Tatum called for additional scrimmage for Lynn Beightol and Dave Nusz, who will be the second and third string quarterbacks. Both are good kickers.

Three years ago, Beightol was one of the most sought after high school players in the country. The Cumberland, Md., youth quarterbacked Maryland varsity in 1951 and played with the team in the Sugar Bowl.

He sat out last year while All-America Jack Scarbath ran the Maryland team and this year he was carried on the third string and given no real chance in action. He is a good passer.

Campers Win Rough Game At Foul Line

Grads Are Defeated By 68 To 53 Count, Hoffman Gets 21

In a contest marked by frequent fouling, Allegany's Campers rolled to their fifth win of the season, downing an Alumni five, 68-53, on the Campobello floor last night.

The game was a ragged affair with a total of 52 personals being called, 32 on the Alumni and 20 on the varsity.

The Campers were outscored from the floor, as the Grads hit on 20 field goals compared to 17 for the Bowersmen, but the Alleganians hit with amazing regularity from the foul stripe, converting 34 times in 46 attempts, to wrap up the game.

Three players were ejected from the contest via the foul route, with Allegany's Dave Steele and Bob Kirtley exiting in the final period, along with Bill Turner of the Alumni.

Four Campers — namely Jim Hoffman, Dick Rank, Steele, and Kirtley hit in double figures, with Hoffmans 21 markers spearheading the attack. Rank and Kirtley each had 15, while Steele dumped in 12.

Bob Lookabaugh, graduate of the class of '51, was high man for the Alumni with 15 tallies, 11 of them obtained in the second half. A total of 14 Alumni players saw action in the tilt.

Ft. Hill Hosts Martinsburg Quint Tonight

Sentinels To Seek 5th Win Of Year

Coach Bobby Cavanaugh's Fort Hill Sentinels will host the invading Martinsburg High Bulldogs tonight at 8 o'clock on the Sentinels hardwood. The Cavanaughmen will be seeking their fifth victory of the season.

Tutored by John Coburn, who is beginning his 22nd season at the helm of Martinsburg athletic teams, the Bulldogs will be opening their 1953-54 season tonight with the Sentinels.

Returning to hte Martinsburg team from last year's squad which split with Fort Hill, losing 58-52 here and winning 46-42 in Martinsburg, will be Dick Holbrunner, Curtis Powers and Richard Blake.

Also veterans of last year's campaign are Dale Wroe and Howard Fagley. Last year Holbrunner scored 22 points in the two games against Fort Hill while Powers garnered 17 in a losing cause here. Both are seniors.

Fort Hill has wracked up triumphs over Hagerstown, 71-59; Moorefield, 57-48; Ridgeley, 50-34; and an Alumni team, 50-34. The Sentinels' only loss came at the hands of Parsons on the Panthers home court, 44-37.

Dick Brant, husky Fort Hill pivot man, will be striving to add to his city scoring lead in the Martinsburg battle.

The Jayvees squad of both schools will meet in the 6:45 p. m. preliminary. Joe Stanislawczyk and Fred "Tack" Clark will officiate the main event.

In the only other scholastic cage game scheduled tonight Keyser High's Golden Tornado will play host to the Moorefield Yellowjackets in the Mineral County school gym in a Potomac Valley Conference contest.

Keyser, defeated in its last start by Allegany, 69-49, will be facing a Jacket squad which is paced by one of the district's leading scorers, Marion Deahl. The Jackets have a 4-2 mark while Coach John Shelton's Tornado has a 2-1 record.

Tight Defense Wins Contest For Explorers

Geatzmen Score 62-49 Triumph For Fourth Victory Of Campaign

A tight defense which held the Grads scoreless from the field for over 16 minutes in the first three periods enabled the LaSalle High Explorers to score an easy 62-49 triumph over the Alumni on the SS. Peter and Paul boards last night.

The Grads, paced by Bob McGreevy's 10 points, scored two quick field goals at the outset of the contest, but then were kept from the basket until two minutes had passed in the third period. Meanwhile the Explorers, coached by George Geatz in the absence of Mentor Norman Geatz, quickly added up the score to lead 13-7 at the quarter, 27-13 at halftime and 50-34 at the close of the third quarter.

The only scoring done by the Alumni during the span of approximately 16 minutes was at the foul line where they converted 17 of 36 chances.

Barney Spearman topped the LaSalle attack with 15 points before fouling out of the game with three minutes to play in the final period. High man for the Alumni was Francis Kitzmiller with 13 markers.

Saxton To Meet Flanagan Tonight

The 23-year-old New Yorker, third ranking welter contender, was serenely undisturbed by the prospect of facing Flanagan's potent left hand and cleverness.

"We'll have something ready for him," Saxton said, "Im not worried."

Faloney's Knee Gives Way, Maryland Bowl Hopes Dim

By GEORGE BOWEN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Maryland's Orange Bowl hopes against Oklahoma nosedived today when the injured knee of quarterback Bernie Faloney collapsed again in a dummy scrimmage.

"There goes our team," was the first reaction of Coach Jim Tatum. "If it was any other boy, it wouldn't be nearly as bad.

"With Faloney out, there goes moving the ball, kicking, defense and the morale of the team."

Knee Gives Way

Today, running the second string, he cut into the line on a keep play and when he pulled up sharply the knee gave way.

At the time, Tatum was playing defensive end "So I could protect him myself. But it happened anyway."

The Oklahoma quarterback position also was weakened when Pat O'Neal, second string signal-caller, came up with a freak injury.

O'Neal was hurt during a punting drill yesterday and didn't know it. A lineman fell on his chest but he thought nothing of it. Today, he complained of a pain in his chest. An examination showed a shoulder bone separation.

Coach Bud Wilkinson said it was problematical whether O'Neal would be able to play in the game.

Faloney had not been tackled since his injury. During the Orange Bowl scrimmages, Tatum had given the defense strict orders not to "lay a hand on Faloney."

Dr. Thurston Adams, the team physician, said Faloney complained of a sharp pain on the outside of the knee and said he may have suffered a muscle cramp rather than a reinjury to the torn ligaments.

Beightol Moves Up

"If it swells up overnight, it's bad news," Adams said. "If it doesn't, he can be counted on for something."

Tatum, however, went ahead on the assumption that Faloney was lost to the team for the New Year's Day game.

Charley Boxold will start for Faloney and Tatum called for additional scrimmage for Lynn Beightol and Dave Nusz, who will be the second and third string quarterbacks. Both are good kickers.

Three years ago, Beightol was one of the most sought after high school players in the country. The Cumberland, Md., youth quarterbacked Maryland varsity in 1951 and played with the team in the Sugar Bowl.

He sat out last year while All-America Jack Scarbath ran the Maryland team and this year he was carried on the third string and given no real chance in action. He is a good passer.

Experts See Low Scoring In Rose Bowl

100,000 Fans Expected To Witness Encounter

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—Football experts, in an unofficial poll taken today, do not look for any wild scoring spree when Michigan State and UCLA meet in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Most observers prophesy a conservative, close game and not too much activity on the scoreboard.

But both teams are capable of uncorking the long touchdown plays and the 100,000 occupants in the big bowl, plus the national television viewers, may get a run, or a pass, for their money.

Michigan State is better known as an explosive team, functioning off the variety of T, split T, single and double wing attacks taught by Coach Biggie Munn.

UCLA is known chiefly as a powerful defensive outfit, a reputation that does not exactly delight the Bruin coach, Red Sanders, nor is it one that is borne out by the facts. UCLA and the pure Sanders single wing offense may be conservative, but it produced 204 points, just eight less than Michigan State scored.

And as Sanders is prone to say when he hears his offense styled a horse and buggy species, it ain't unfashionable to win, regardless of the size of the score.

Go To Semi-Finals

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 29 (INS)—The University of Louisville advanced to the semifinals of the Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament today by scoring a 61 to 56 triumph over Xavier (O) at Louisville.

In the first night game ever played in the Yankee Stadium — May 28, 1946 — the Yankees lost to the Senators, 2-1.

Scarpellis Cop 1st Half Title

Win South End Dux Loop By Two Games

Scarpellis won the first half title by two games in the South End Merchants Bowling League although they dropped their final match to the runners-up, K-Bar team, by a 2-1 score. A sweep by K-Bar would have knotted the two teams for first place.

Wolfpack Grid Coach Resigns

Hendrickson Quits After Poor Season

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 29 (AP)—Horace (Horse) Hendrickson's resignation as football coach at North Carolina State College was announced today.

It followed one of N. C. State's poorest football seasons in many years. The Wolfpack won only one of 10 games.

The announcement was made by Dr. H. A. Fisher, chairman of the College Athletic Council. He said in a statement that the college football program has operated for several years with "a large financial deficit."

He added that the college must "either rehabilitate this program or give up football entirely." He also announced appointment of a committee to study the football situation and recommend a new head coach.

Hendrickson, a former Duke star, came to State three years ago as an assistant to Coach Beattie Feathers. Two years ago he was selected to succeed Feathers and given a three-year contract at $8,500 a year.

RALEIGH, Dec. 29 (AP)—Trailing by nine points, Navy uncorked a vicious second half attack behind the great shooting of John Clune and Don Lange to upset North Carolina State, 85-75, today and end the Wolfpack's four-year reign as Dixie Classic basketball champions.

Seton Hall thwarted a fourth period rally by North Carolina and finished fast to hand the Tar Heels a 73-63 loss in a consolation afternoon game.

Grace Methodist's cagers handed Emmanuel Methodist its first defeat in the Central YMCA Sunday School Basketball League yesterday on the "Y" court by a 24 to 21 score.

The loss snapped Emmanuel's 10-game winning streak and tied Grace Methodist with the losers for second place behind the unbeaten Emmanuel Episcopal quintet which captured its 11th in a row over Wiley Ford, 33-13, at Campobello.

Central Methodist's quintet also chalked up a 49-25 triumph over Park Place on the Allegany court to remain in second place also with a 10-1 mark.

Meanwhile United Brethren and Trinity, the only two teams in the 28-squad circuit to have yet to taste victory, lost their 11th straight games the former to St. Paul's 45-16 at the "Y" and the latter to St. Mark's, 24-15, also on the "Y" boards.

As the holiday schedule for the church league continues today Episcopal will be favored to make it 12 in a row against a weak Holy Cross team. Believe Aussies Pulled A Boner

MELBOURNE, Dec. 30 (Wednesday) (AP)—All Australia bristled today over "the boner of the big brass" and the hepped-up Americans prepared to crate the Davis Cup for the long voyage home.

The confident United States tennis team, which ten days ago was counted out of the running, now needs only one of today's final two singles matches to wrest the trophy from Australia.

The Americans gained the advantage yesterday when Vic Seixas and Tony Trabert, using baseball signals to confound their foes, upset the patchwork team of Lewis Hoard and Rex Hartwig, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Two hours before the match, the Australian selectors, broke up both of this country's brilliant doubles combinations and fielded a tandem which never before had played together in competition.

Their ears will be burning for years over this.

The Americans can clinch the cup in today's first singles match which pits Hoard against Trabert.

But even failing here, Uncle Sam has another chance when Wimbledon champion Seixas, plays Ken Rosewall, whose morale certainly has been shaken by the action in pulling him out of the doubles.

Ends Hold Key To Success Of WVU In Bowl

Georgia Tech Eleven Favored In Contest

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29 (AP)—Are West Virginia's ends fast enough to stop Georgia Tech's wide plays in Friday's Sugar Bowl football game?

Art (Pappy) Lewis, coach of the Southern Conference champions, says he doesn't know but infers the answer may be the decisive one in New Orleans' 20th annual New Year's Day contest.

Georgia Tech, the 13-point favorite, sped to eight victories, two defeats and a tie during the 1953 campaign with a light, fast and versatile team. This will be the Engineers' tenth bowl appearance and they haven't lost a post-season game since Bobby Dodd took over the helm nine years ago.

West Virginia powered its way to eight victories in nine starts on the strength of one of the biggest lines in college football. From end to end the Mountaineer line averages 207 pounds and 6 feet, 2 inches in height. Tech, like most of the Mountaineer foes, is expected to find the middle forwards as tough as they are big.

Neither team is a primarily a passing club so it is expected that the Southeastern Conference eleven, winner of the Sugar Bowl game a year ago, will resort to fancy or wide stuff.

Either development would put great pressure on the West Virginia flanks. Lewis admitted as much today as he held a two-hour workout on the fog'shrouded field at Biloxi, Miss.

"I figure that will decide," he replied frankly when asked if his ends could do the job.

At left end he has Joe Papetti, a sophomore who developed so rapidly he drove three 1952 letter winners to the bench. He is not too fast.

At the other flank is Bill Marker, who was the starting offensive end on last year's two-platoon team. He is rough and ready but hasn't learned all the niceties of defense. Each is 6-1 and weighs 195.

Behind the two regulars Lewis has Bill Hillen, Max Ludwig and John Kernic, all of whom lettered in 1952 as defensive ends.

Jim Miller of the University of Wisconsin was the Big Ten's leading passer in 1953. He gained 683 yards passing and tossed six touchdown passes.

Howard (Hopalong) Cassady, Ohio State halfback, set a Big Ten record for kickoff runbacks in 1953. He ran 14 kickoffs for a total of 328 yards.

Experts See Low Scoring In Rose Bowl

100,000 Fans Expected To Witness Encounter

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—Football experts, in an unofficial poll taken today, do not look for any wild scoring spree when Michigan State and UCLA meet in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Most observers prophesy a conservative, close game and not too much activity on the scoreboard.

But both teams are capable of uncorking the long touchdown plays and the 100,000 occupants in the big bowl, plus the national television viewers, may get a run, or a pass, for their money.

Michigan State is better known as an explosive team, functioning off the variety of T, split T, single and double wing attacks taught by Coach Biggie Munn.

UCLA is known chiefly as a powerful defensive outfit, a reputation that does not exactly delight the Bruin coach, Red Sanders, nor is it one that is borne out by the facts. UCLA and the pure Sanders single wing offense may be conservative, but it produced 204 points, just eight less than Michigan State scored.

And as Sanders is prone to say when he hears his offense styled a horse and buggy species, it ain't unfashionable to win, regardless of the size of the score.

Lonaconing Methodists Plan Watchnight Service

200-Year-Old Custom To Be Pattern

LONACONING — The First Methodist Church of Lonaconing will observe New Year's eve with the traditional "Watchnight service" beginning at 11 o'clock.

According to Myles in his "History of Methodism" this service is first spoken of in Rev. John Wesley's Journal of 1742. In 1789 it was enjoined "that every Watch-Night should be held till midnight. The service, according to Myles in his history of Methodism found its origin at Kingswood, England by the colliers there.

Rev. Wesley ordered it first to be once a month and designated the Friday nearest the full moon. It was afterward changed to be held once a quarter and then to once a year on the last night of the year and ending with the coming of the New Year.

When the service was first inaugurated it closed immediately after the clock had struck announcing the advent of the New Year with the well-known hymn "Come Let Us Anew Our Journey Pursue."

The service in First Methodist at Lonaconing will follow the pattern of the services held in the beginning of the custom. The people of the community are cordially invited to attend.

Rev. Joseph Wesley Young, pastor of the church, in commenting on the Watchnight observance, noted that the service was originally held to coincide with the full of the moon so people would have better light going to and from service.

Kingswood, where it originated, he said, is where John Wesley began his first preaching in the open, after the churches closed their pulpits to him and to his brother Charles Wesley, because they were preaching in a manner not to please the powers of the established church.

Lonaconing Methodists Plan Watchnight Service

200-Year-Old Custom To Be Pattern

LONACONING — The First Methodist Church of Lonaconing will observe New Year's eve with the traditional "Watchnight service" beginning at 11 o'clock.

According to Myles in his "History of Methodism" this service is first spoken of in Rev. John Wesley's Journal of 1742. In 1789 it was enjoined "that every Watch-Night should be held till midnight. The service, according to Myles in his history of Methodism found its origin at Kingswood, England by the colliers there.

Rev. Wesley ordered it first to be once a month and designated the Friday nearest the full moon. It was afterward changed to be held once a quarter and then to once a year on the last night of the year and ending with the coming of the New Year.

When the service was first inaugurated it closed immediately after the clock had struck announcing the advent of the New Year with the well-known hymn "Come Let Us Anew Our Journey Pursue."

The service in First Methodist at Lonaconing will follow the pattern of the services held in the beginning of the custom. The people of the community are cordially invited to attend.

Rev. Joseph Wesley Young, pastor of the church, in commenting on the Watchnight observance, noted that the service was originally held to coincide with the full of the moon so people would have better light going to and from service.

Kingswood, where it originated, he said, is where John Wesley began his first preaching in the open, after the churches closed their pulpits to him and to his brother Charles Wesley, because they were preaching in a manner not to please the powers of the established church.

Adding a new sweater to your collection? Let it be one that adds both character and flattery!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

It has been said that the smartest young Parisienne dresses in a high-neck, black sweater for morning, a short-sleeved one at noon; a decollete black sweater for the cocktail hour and a bare-back version at night.

At any rate, all of the important French collections feature sweaters of distinguished characteristics. They are also currently displayed here in a variety to interpret your most enchanting personality.

Sweater Fashions

If you have a heart-shaped face, choose one of the new models with a heart-shaped neckline to emphasize your natural, fortunate endowment.

With a flair for elegance femininity and a budget to flaunt it, seek an ultra fine one printed with tiny colored flowers and piped in mink tails.

For a fashion fillip, let your slipover be a shocking pink, topped with a black cardigan, preferably piped in blue.

Frankly forthright is the impression you will make in a heavy white wool jacket sweater with a hand-knit look, tuxedo fronts and hip pockets.

A scalloped neckline and white-diamond patterns below it on a pastel blue cashmere, short-sleeve pullover will make you look as delicate as Dresden — if you have that propensity.

A soft little jacket sweater in pastel pink cashmere with fancy pink and white edging at its front closing and three-quarter-length, cuffed sleeves will abet your "littlest-girl" look.

Sweater Bottoms

What are they to be worn with? Let your spirit be your inspiration. Consider, fuzzy-angora-embroidered gray-felt pants.

Spanish pants of heavy rayon faille, embroidered with black cord and jet. A nylon tulle apron edged with gold cord and black braid over black toreador trousers.

An embossed-taffeta, floor-length, full-circle skirt.

Just choose anything but the prosaic and you will turn any sweater into a personalized fashion!

Adding a new sweater to your collection? Let it be one that adds both character and flattery!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

It has been said that the smartest young Parisienne dresses in a high-neck, black sweater for morning, a short-sleeved one at noon; a decollete black sweater for the cocktail hour and a bare-back version at night.

At any rate, all of the important French collections feature sweaters of distinguished characteristics. They are also currently displayed here in a variety to interpret your most enchanting personality.

Sweater Fashions

If you have a heart-shaped face, choose one of the new models with a heart-shaped neckline to emphasize your natural, fortunate endowment.

With a flair for elegance femininity and a budget to flaunt it, seek an ultra fine one printed with tiny colored flowers and piped in mink tails.

For a fashion fillip, let your slipover be a shocking pink, topped with a black cardigan, preferably piped in blue.

Frankly forthright is the impression you will make in a heavy white wool jacket sweater with a hand-knit look, tuxedo fronts and hip pockets.

A scalloped neckline and white-diamond patterns below it on a pastel blue cashmere, short-sleeve pullover will make you look as delicate as Dresden — if you have that propensity.

Sweater Bottoms

What are they to be worn with? Let your spirit be your inspiration. Consider, fuzzy-angora-embroidered gray-felt pants.

Spanish pants of heavy rayon faille, embroidered with black cord and jet. A nylon tulle apron edged with gold cord and black braid over black toreador trousers.

Just choose anything but the prosaic and you will turn any sweater into a personalized fashion!

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29 (INS) — The next move on the part of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis is toward "The Big Top." That's the title of their circus epic, which will be made at Phoenix in mid-February, in Technicolor with all the trimmings.

Don McGuire is already writing the story and Clyde Beatty has been signed to bring his animals into the picture. Perhaps the comics were motivated by Cecil B. De Mille's great success with "The Greatest Show on Earth"—only, of course, Martin and Lewis will have more comedy than drama.

Once again the boys will be with Paramount, Hal Wallis, and Joe Hazen. Since they've done all right with this setup, there's no reason why they should change.

Early in 1954, Esther Williams joins the long list of top names to make a night club "splash" in Las Vegas, starring in an elaborate aquacade with a company of 20 swimmers.

Three hotels are in a hot bidding race for Esther and it stands to reason she'll take the top offer which should be stupendous considering that Grandma Dietrich is drawing $30,000 weekly.

The hotel swimming pool will be tented and enclosed for the evening performances which Esther's husband, Ben Gage, will M.C. It's the swim queen's first public swimming venture since she starred in Billy Rose's Aquacade at the San Francisco World's Fair.

Porfirio Rubirosa told me he'd send word to me when he married Barbara Hutton. I wondered if he would keep his word.

Today, sure enough, from New York came word that he plans marrying Barbara at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Dominican embassy. They'll leave immediately for Palm Beach, where he will take his polo ponies. Barbara's son, Lance, will be at the wedding ceremony.

He had asked Marusia and Prince Nicholas Toumanoff to fly east for the ceremony. Since this was impossible they may go on to Palm Beach and visit the newlyweds.

Meanwhile, Zsa Zsa Gabor opened at the Last Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas with her two sisters.

Only two days ago, Susan left for Sun Valley with her two brothers and her proud parents. They'll spend New Year's at the Averell Harriman house there.

"Just before Benjie was born," Esther told me, "we were invited to Sun Valley by Mr. Stoddard, head of Southern Pacific. We couldn't go then, and he said if ever we wanted to go to let him know. So we will be his guests."

The stork will have a busy year. Frances and Van Heflin, who have two little redheaded girls, expect their third child in the summer, and they're hoping for a redheaded boy.

Mitzi Gaynor, the gal with all the pep, is down with a severe case of—of all things—anemia. She has to get well on account of she and Jack Bean are marrying in San Francisco next month.

I am hoping I can go to the motion picture festival in Rio February 18. Jorge Guinle has invited me, and many of my friends, including the Mervyn Leroys, plan to be there.

Jorge and his lovely wife, Dolores, were the guests of honor at a cocktail party given Sunday by Kitty and Mervyn Leroy.

I arrived very late, but I did have a chance to talk with Jeanne Crain, who tells many stories of her adventures in Africa where she made a picture. She said she and Paul Brinkman are so happy to be home.

Jeanne told Vera Ellen, who was with Richard Gully, that the British crew who worked with her in London sent a special message to Vera.

Louis Armstrong, old Sachmo himself, who has been touring military bases in Japan and Korea, flies from Tokyo to Honolulu to give a concert tomorrow night.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

GOP's First Step

The old year is throwing the twilight shadow that eventually blacks out itself. It was a year that was loaded to the plimsoll mark with prophetic agenda.

The high spot was the changing of the palace guards. It occurred in the mooted Casa Blanca where the Democrats had withstood a siege of 20 office-fattened years.

The Homburg stand took over the works on January twentieth. It started with the tramp, tramp, tramp of the GOP phalanx marching north-west on Pennsylvania Avenue. There were a lot of tramps going in the other direction too.

We predicted it would be a tough operation for the new lessee. Ike inherited an over-hanging budget, an under-slung deficit and nothing but adding machines in the boiler room.

The GOP had been outdoors longer than an organ grinder's monkey. We said that Harry had done all of Ike's thinking for the next six months. In less than two weeks everything jack-knifed.

The New Deal had been lost in the shuffle. But the discard was still alive. The Republicans were puzzled by bridges where there were no rivers, post-offices for sky-writing and saw-mills above timber-line.

The five percenters oiled up their fright wigs when Charley Wilson sold $2,500,000 General Motors stock just to stay in the Cabinet. I offered to hold it in storage as the escrow flies.

In less than two weeks Ike discovered Harry Truman had gone and left the doorsteps the most densely populated nursery in the world.

On the first Monday in February Ike delivered his state of the union speech. It read like he had cleaned out a lot of old desks.

And you know about the November hassel. Brownell browned off Truman. Who answered by quoting Edgar Hoover. Who promptly pulled the plug on Harry.

That argument was stopped by a strike of newspaper engravers. A smart politician refuses to talk without pictures.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

The American Indians used to buy colonial muskets by stacking up pelts until they equaled the length of the barrel.

Tax Rate, Budget Upped

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—The Dorchester County commissioners have set the county tax rate at $1.60 per hundred, an increase of five cents over last year.

An increase was also noted in the county budget for 1954, which was set at $1,215,231. This is an increase of $178,000 over last year.

FOREIGN RACER

Steve Cochran, who trekked to Europe for a co-starring role with Anne Baxter in the King Bros.' "Carnival Story" for RKO, returned to Hollywood recently, the proud owner of a Porsche (that's a foreign sports car) which he plans to enter in west coast races.

Glass milk bottles were first developed about 1883.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29 (INS) — The next move on the part of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis is toward "The Big Top." That's the title of their circus epic, which will be made at Phoenix in mid-February, in Technicolor with all the trimmings.

Don McGuire is already writing the story and Clyde Beatty has been signed to bring his animals into the picture. Perhaps the comics were motivated by Cecil B. De Mille's great success with "The Greatest Show on Earth"—only, of course, Martin and Lewis will have more comedy than drama.

Once again the boys will be with Paramount, Hal Wallis, and Joe Hazen. Since they've done all right with this setup, there's no reason why they should change.

Early in 1954, Esther Williams joins the long list of top names to make a night club "splash" in Las Vegas, starring in an elaborate aquacade with a company of 20 swimmers.

Three hotels are in a hot bidding race for Esther and it stands to reason she'll take the top offer which should be stupendous considering that Grandma Dietrich is drawing $30,000 weekly.

The hotel swimming pool will be tented and enclosed for the evening performances which Esther's husband, Ben Gage, will M.C. It's the swim queen's first public swimming venture since she starred in Billy Rose's Aquacade at the San Francisco World's Fair.

Porfirio Rubirosa told me he'd send word to me when he married Barbara Hutton. I wondered if he would keep his word.

Today, sure enough, from New York came word that he plans marrying Barbara at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Dominican embassy. They'll leave immediately for Palm Beach, where he will take his polo ponies. Barbara's son, Lance, will be at the wedding ceremony.

He had asked Marusia and Prince Nicholas Toumanoff to fly east for the ceremony. Since this was impossible they may go on to Palm Beach and visit the newlyweds.

Meanwhile, Zsa Zsa Gabor opened at the Last Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas with her two sisters.

"Too busy," said Zsa Zsa, "to worry about men right now."

Only two days ago, Susan left for Sun Valley with her two brothers and her proud parents. They'll spend New Year's at the Averell Harriman house there.

"Just before Benjie was born," Esther told me, "we were invited to Sun Valley by Mr. Stoddard, head of Southern Pacific. We couldn't go then, and he said if ever we wanted to go to let him know. So we will be his guests."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The Burt Lancasters are expecting their fifth child in late June and it could be twins.

The stork will have a busy year. Frances and Van Heflin, who have two little redheaded girls, expect their third child in the summer, and they're hoping for a redheaded boy.

Mitzi Gaynor, the gal with all the pep, is down with a severe case of—of all things—anemia. She has to get well on account of she and Jack Bean are marrying in San Francisco next month.

I am hoping I can go to the motion picture festival in Rio February 18. Jorge Guinle has invited me, and many of my friends, including the Mervyn Leroys, plan to be there.

Jorge and his lovely wife, Dolores, were the guests of honor at a cocktail party given Sunday by Kitty and Mervyn Leroy.

I arrived very late, but I did have a chance to talk with Jeanne Crain, who tells many stories of her adventures in Africa where she made a picture. She said she and Paul Brinkman are so happy to be home.

Jeanne told Vera Ellen, who was with Richard Gully, that the British crew who worked with her in London sent a special message to Vera.

Louis Armstrong, old Sachmo himself, who has been touring military bases in Japan and Korea, flies from Tokyo to Honolulu to give a concert tomorrow night.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

GOP's First Step

The old year is throwing the twilight shadow that eventually blacks out itself. It was a year that was loaded to the plimsoll mark with prophetic agenda.

The high spot was the changing of the palace guards. It occurred in the mooted Casa Blanca where the Democrats had withstood a siege of 20 office-fattened years.

The Homburg stand took over the works on January twentieth. It started with the tramp, tramp, tramp of the GOP phalanx marching north-west on Pennsylvania Avenue. There were a lot of tramps going in the other direction too.

We predicted it would be a tough operation for the new lessee. Ike inherited an over-hanging budget, an under-slung deficit and nothing but adding machines in the boiler room.

The GOP had been outdoors longer than an organ grinder's monkey. We said that Harry had done all of Ike's thinking for the next six months. In less than two weeks everything jack-knifed.

The New Deal had been lost in the shuffle. But the discard was still alive. The Republicans were puzzled by bridges where there were no rivers, post-offices for sky-writing and saw-mills above timber-line.

The five percenters oiled up their fright wigs when Charley Wilson sold $2,500,000 General Motors stock just to stay in the Cabinet. I offered to hold it in storage as the escrow flies.

In less than two weeks Ike discovered Harry Truman had gone and left the doorsteps the most densely populated nursery in the world.

The first two months were a shake-down cruise. Not in the old meaning of the word.

On the first Monday in February Ike delivered his state of the union speech. It read like he had cleaned out a lot of old desks.

And you know about the November hassel. Brownell browned off Truman. Who answered by quoting Edgar Hoover. Who promptly pulled the plug on Harry.

That argument was stopped by a strike of newspaper engravers. A smart politician refuses to talk without pictures.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

"You should be glad Junior's all wrapped up in space ships, rockets and such . . . soon enough he'll be getting interested in 'Hot-rods'."

The American Indians used to buy colonial muskets by stacking up pelts until they equaled the length of the barrel.

Tax Rate, Budget Upped

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—The Dorchester County commissioners have set the county tax rate at $1.60 per hundred, an increase of five cents over last year.

An increase was also noted in the county budget for 1954, which was set at $1,215,231. This is an increase of $178,000 over last year.

FOREIGN RACER

Steve Cochran, who trekked to Europe for a co-starring role with Anne Baxter in the King Bros.' "Carnival Story" for RKO, returned to Hollywood recently, the proud owner of a Porsche (that's a foreign sports car) which he plans to enter in west coast races.

Glass milk bottles were first developed about 1883.

Beginner's Luck

An advertisement in "The Saturday Review:"

UNKNOWN!

Would you like us to tell you that TV is a wide open field — open to all new writers as well as to the professional? . . . that you can receive as much as $750 for a half hour script; proportionately more for an hour show? that we can sell your material if it is distinctive?

WELL, WE CAN!

The fact is that 60 per cent of our TV sales has been for beginners!

Can we be of help to you? Write or phone.

DANIEL S. MEAD
LITERARY AGENCY
419 Fourth Avenue
New York, 16, N. Y.

Well, that solves one of the most perplexing problems I have. Ever since I've had this job, I've been besieged by folks who want to break into the writing game, the TV writing game. I've never had the faintest idea where to send them or what to advise them. Now I know. Daniel S. Mead Literary Agency. Write or phone your distinctive prose in his direction and leave me alone. (Whoever writes the blurbs for Daniel S. Mead, incidentally, employs easily the most distinctive punctuation I've seen since I graduated from the works of Carlyle.)

The whole ad is fraught with significance. Walter Ross, who sent it to me, observes:

"Out of the mouths of advertisements in 'The Saturday Review' come clues to the parlous state of television. (If it keeps up like this, they can take that set out of my parolus.)

"The enclosed advertisement by Daniel S. Mead Literary Agency throws some light on the sources of those TV shows that fill the gap between baseball games and prize-fights. Have you ever wondered . . . but of course you have, and here is the answer.

"Just figure it out. Mead says that 60 per cent of his TV sales have been for beginners, that is, non-professional writers. As he says he gets up to $750 for a half hour show and we presume his

LOW DOUBLES PAY HIGH

WHEN used at the right time, business doubles of low bids can pay big profits. This applies especially to overcalls which happen to find one member of the other side loaded with most of the outstanding strength in the suit which was bid. On numerous occasions such doubles can produce more points than a game would have been worth to the stronger side, regardless of vulnerability. The gain from such a double is still more, in a net way, if the doubling side could not have made a game.

West felt that trying to take out into spades, which North had bid, would mean only jumping from the frying pan into the fire. This was one time that North left in a business double because of confidence in his partner. It was Aaron Greene in the North and Raymond P. Duggan in the South, doing their stuff in New York's recent Metropolitan Championships.

Reporting the deal, Mr. Duggan described his opponents' woe as a case of "two college boys learning the hard way." That was at least a conservative statement. The spade 8, covered by the 10, went to the Q. The club 3 was won by the J when East played low. The heart 2 was won by the 10, then the K and A of that suit scored, followed by the spade A, on which East and South discarded diamonds. South parked a second diamond then on the spade 2, which East ruffed low for his first trick.

The club 6 lead was won by the Q, the heart 9 ruffed by the club 7, followed by East's third and fourth tricks with the club A and diamond A. But, when the diamond Q was laid down, South was able to ruff with the club 5 because of his earlier discards in diamonds. The club K then took the final trick.

The declarer having taken only four tricks, was down four to give North and South a score of 700 points. The net profit in that is obvious when it is noticed that no game was in the cards for the pair through any likely bidding and play, as the cards lay.

An advertisement in "The Saturday Review:"

UNKNOWN!

Would you like us to tell you that TV is a wide open field — open to all new writers as well as to the professional? . . . that you can receive as much as $750 for a half hour script; proportionately more for an hour show? that we can sell your material if it is distinctive?

WELL, WE CAN!

The fact is that 60 per cent of our TV sales has been for beginners!

Can we be of help to you? Write or phone.

New York, 16, N. Y.

Well, that solves one of the most perplexing problems I have. Ever since I've had this job, I've been besieged by folks who want to break into the writing game, the TV writing game. I've never had the faintest idea where to send them or what to advise them. Now I know. Daniel S. Mead Literary Agency. Write or phone your distinctive prose in his direction and leave me alone. (Whoever writes the blurbs for Daniel S. Mead, incidentally, employs easily the most distinctive punctuation I've seen since I graduated from the works of Carlyle.)

The whole ad is fraught with significance. Walter Ross, who sent it to me, observes:

"Out of the mouths of advertisements in 'The Saturday Review' come clues to the parlous state of television. (If it keeps up like this, they can take that set out of my parolus.)

"The enclosed advertisement by Daniel S. Mead Literary Agency throws some light on the sources of those TV shows that fill the gap between baseball games and prize-fights. Have you ever wondered . . . but of course you have, and here is the answer.

"Just figure it out. Mead says that 60 per cent of his TV sales have been for beginners, that is, non-professional writers. As he says he gets up to $750 for a half hour show and we presume his

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Charles G. Davidson, who passed away December 30, 1950.
What would we give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see.
To hear his voice and see him smile,
That meant so much to us.

DOWN GO OUR PRICES!
Do you know the difference between our prices and what others ask? Compare and you will find that it amounts to about one months wages and sometimes much more.
HOW CAN WE DO IT?

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Charles G. Davidson, who passed away December 30, 1950.

What would we give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see.
To hear his voice and see him smile,
That meant so much to us.

Profit-Taking Hits Market; Lower Tax Rate In Effect

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Profit-taking for tax purposes hit the stock market hard today, but prices bounced up from the lows with a strong show of recovery strength.

Losses at the close went to between 1 and 2 points at the most in significant areas whereas at one time they extended to 2 points or more.

The current four-day trading week offers the first opportunity for selling stocks to register a profit that can be counted at the new lower 1954 tax rates. Stocks sold for delivery in the regular way are put in the hands of the buyers next year, thus recording the profit as having been made in 1954.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 70 cents at $107.30. Volume hit 2,140,000 shares, the first time the two million mark has been crossed since Sept. 15 when 2,850,000 shares changed hands.

Pennsylvania Railroad was the day's most active issue off ⅜ at 16⅝ with 28,800 sharees traded.

Chrysler was in second place off ⅜ at 59⅝. It was followed by Anaconda Copper off ½ at 29⅛. New York Central off ⅜ at 18¾, and Willys-Overland up ⅛ at 16⅝.

Baltimore & Ohio, the sixth most active issue, was off ¾ at 18⅞. The company announced plans to lay off 11 per cent of its working force with rehiring depending on general business conditions.

agency charges the usual 10 per cent agent's fee and he has an office on Fourth Avenue, it stands to reason that he must sell one or two shows a day, minimum to make expenses. That is, say, 500 shows a year. Sixty per cent of them by beginners — this means 300 amateur scripts. So that's where they come from.

"Now Mead is advertising for more clients. Obviously, more amateurs, too, for his advertisement is clothed in these terms. Who's he going to get?

"All sorts of people read 'The Saturday Review,' some of them being professional writers whom we can eliminate to start with. What have we left? Businessmen, taxi-drivers, private secretaries, young men with an itch to become your travelling companion, et al. And, since the Review is a family type magazine, presumably the children of these folk.

"I know my kids read it. Maybe they're potential Mead clients. One of them owns his own typewriter. Both of them write themes and reports for school. Both of them, too, have an eye for a fast buck. What better way to earn it than to dramatize those school reports and let Mead sell them as daytime shows? How do I know what they do after school every day?"

One letter simple stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Profit-Taking Hits Market; Lower Tax Rate In Effect

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Profit-taking for tax purposes hit the stock market hard today, but prices bounced up from the lows with a strong show of recovery strength.

Losses at the close went to between 1 and 2 points at the most in significant areas whereas at one time they extended to 2 points or more.

The current four-day trading week offers the first opportunity for selling stocks to register a profit that can be counted at the new lower 1954 tax rates. Stocks sold for delivery in the regular way are put in the hands of the buyers next year, thus recording the profit as having been made in 1954.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 70 cents at $107.30. Volume hit 2,140,000 shares, the first time the two million mark has been crossed since Sept. 15 when 2,850,000 shares changed hands.

Pennsylvania Railroad was the day's most active issue off ⅜ at 16⅝ with 28,800 sharees traded.

Chrysler was in second place off ⅜ at 59⅝. It was followed by Anaconda Copper off ½ at 29⅛, New York Central off ⅜ at 18¾, and Willys-Overland up ⅛ at 16⅝.

Baltimore & Ohio, the sixth most active issue, was off ¾ at 18⅞. The company announced plans to lay off 11 per cent of its working force with rehiring depending on general business conditions.

agency charges the usual 10 per cent agent's fee and he has an office on Fourth Avenue, it stands to reason that he must sell one or two shows a day, minimum to make expenses. That is, say, 500 shows a year. Sixty per cent of them by beginners — this means 300 amateur scripts. So that's where they come from.

"Now Mead is advertising for more clients. Obviously, more amateurs, too, for his advertisement is clothed in these terms. Who's he going to get?

"All sorts of people read 'The Saturday Review,' some of them being professional writers whom we can eliminate to start with. What have we left? Businessmen, taxi-drivers, private secretaries, young men with an itch to become your travelling companion, et al. And, since the Review is a family type magazine, presumably the children of these folk.

"I know my kids read it. Maybe they're potential Mead clients. One of them owns his own typewriter. Both of them write themes and reports for school. Both of them, too, have an eye for a fast buck. What better way to earn it than to dramatize those school reports and let Mead sell them as daytime shows? How do I know what they do after school every day?"

Ike Backs Plan To Help Areas Hit By Idleness

To Get Preference On Defense Contract

President Eisenhower yesterday threw his full support behind an administration policy of channeling more defense contracts into areas, such as Cumberland, "where there has been a large amount of unemployment."

The Cumberland area was included in a wide list of localities in which the government said it will seek to combat unemployment through the awarding of more defense contracts.

The President expressed "full agreement" with the federal policy which the Office of Defense Mobilization later said in Washington it announced last Nov. 4.

At that time the ODM named 17 large and 22 smaller metropolitan areas as localities of chronic labor surplus.

Has Full Backing

Washington officials said the President's action evidently was intended to notify the government purchasing agencies of full White House backing for the program.

Eisenhower's endorsement of the policy was made public at his vacation headquarters in Augusta, Ga., by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty. The Secretary also told newsmen that so far as he knew the policy itself was being disclosed for the first time.

The president endorsement came less than 24 hours after a majority of some 300 economists had agreed in Washington that the country is having "an orthodox recession" — mild but general and accompanied by production and payroll cuts.

Hagerty insisted, however, that the timing of the move by Eisenhower was in no way related to views expressed by economist members of the American Statistical Assn.

As for the administration manpower policy channeling more defense contracts into unemployment areas, Hagerty declared in response to a barrage of questions that it was not prompted by any recent developments.

Former Plan Dropped

He said it is designed to relieve joblessness in areas where it has existed "quite a few years," and added:

"This is the first time a national administration has tried to do something about it."

A system of giving preference on government contracts to areas with "surplus manpower" was put into effect by the Truman administration in 1952 and then dropped a few months ago.

Hagert said that so far as he knew the manpower policy was being publicly unveiled for the first time in Eisenhower's comments in a memorandum to Secretary of Defense Wilson, Chairman Lewis W. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission, and the chief of the General Services Administration.

Get Tax Benefits

In the memorandum, the President said Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization "recently issued a manpower policy designed to increase the number of defense contracts that are placed in areas where there has been a large amount of unemployment." Eisenhower added:

"At the same time he (Flemming) directed that new defense plants located in areas where unemployment has been high over a considerable period of time should be given a rapid tax write-off on a larger percentage of their capital investment than would otherwise be the case.

"I am in complete agreement with both of these policies."

Asks Broad Plan

The program for channeling more defense contracts into such areas provides for a formal system of "set-asides." Under it, part of the

Prize-Winning Decorations

These decorations won first prizes in the two divisions of the annual Christmas Home Lighting Contest sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce. In the upper picture is the home of J. U. Wempe, 601 Oldtown Road, which received the top award in the houses and grounds division. Below is shown the exhibit at the home of James Kuhlman in LaVale, which won first prize in the doorways and windows division. Judging in the annual contest was completed last night.

Wempe Given First Prize In Yule Lighting Contest

J. U. Wempe, 601 Oldtown Road, is the first prize winner in the house and grounds division of the annual Christmas Home Lighting Contest, sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

In the other division, for door and window displays, James Kuhlman, RD 1, LaVale, gets the first prize, according to Jack H. Hicks, contest chairman. Kuhlman lives four doors from the State Police barracks in LaVale.

Second prize in the house and grounds competition went to Earle L. Bracey, 2031 Bedford Road, principal of Carver High School. In the other division, John R. Botzum, 1103 Holland Street. In each division the first place winner gets a modern lamp and the runner-up an automatic percolator.

Five other entrants were singled out for honorable mention. In the house and grounds division, mention went to Glenn K. Davis, 515 Dryer Avenue; Raymond Beall, 20 Race Street, and Norman R. Coffman of Bowling Green. Door and window display honorable mention went to Edgar L. Caldwell, 7 South Waverly Terrace, and F. L. Hurt, Bedford Road.

The judges also gave special mention to three areas for the uniform excellency of displays on a number of houses. These include the Zeller's Addition of Braddock Road, Ridgedale Avenue and Bedford Road, especially in the area near Naves Crossroad.

Wempe's prize-winning decorations featured a 19th Century village scene. Small houses, each about three feet tall, with lights in the windows, are situated around his lawn. Children are seen dragging a yule log. There also are horses and sleighs and a stage coach. Of course, Santa Claus is suspended above the village.

Hicks commended residents for the generally fine quality of decorations. He also expressed appreciation to the three judges who traveled around Cumberland and its environs to inspect decorations of contest entrants. The judges were Theodore A. Foote, supervisor of art education in Allegany County public schools; Mrs. Marguerite T. Findlay, member of the City Park Board, and C. William Teubner, display manager at Rosenbaum's.

Yule Lighting Judging Set In Ridgeley Tonight

Judges will tour the Ridgeley area this evening to select the winners in the annual Christmas Outdoor Lighting Contest sponsored by the Ridgeley Lions Club.

Harry Lancaster, Edward M. Kirk and W. Edward Eichner, all of this city, have been selected as judges.

They will be accompanied by Lloyd Coffman, a member of the club, who will act as guide during the judging, slated between 8 and 11:30 p. m.

Some three dozen residents of Ridgeley, Maryland Junction, Carpenters Addition and Wiley Ford, W. Va., have entered the contest.

They will be eligible for eight prizes which have been provided for the contest.

Clarence Hartman, a member of the Lighting Contest committee, said the contest should be a close one, due to the greater interest shown this year.

Party Switch Helps GOP

The Republican Party made a net gain of six voters as a result of last-minute switching of allegiance by Allegany Countians who wish to vote for candidates of a different party in the June 28 statewide primary elections.

On Monday, the last date for changing parties, 10 registered Democrats switched to the Republican ranks while four voters previously classed as Republicans moved over to the Democratic camp.

The deadline for party changing also brought a slight boost in registration at the office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement. Seven new voters registered, five as Republicans and two as Democrats.

Although the deadline for changing parties is past, citizens still have until May 29 to register in order to vote in the June 28 primary election. Any person who will be 21 years of age or will have been a resident of the state one year before November 2, 1954, may register now and vote in the primary election. Registration may be completed any Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. or on Saturday between 9 a. m. and noon at the Board of Election Supervisors office.

Two Houses Sold In Year-End Action

Sale of two houses in year-end real estate transactions was disclosed yesterday with the filing of deeds in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

Clarence F. Horn and Jessie H. Horn sold their property at 826 Camden Avenue to J. Louis Shafferman and Gladys H. Shafferman.

Ralph G. Cover and Ethel M. Cover transferred their ownership of a house on the south side of LaVale Court in the LaVale Boulevard Court Addition to Donald A. Workman and Betty G. Workman.

The Weather

A blast of cold air swept southeastward out of Canada yesterday, and the Weather Bureau predicted it would cross the Alleghenies into Maryland soon. Lowest temperatures of the year were forecast for this morning. The Bureau added snow showers in the mountains this afternoon were likely, with a chance of some rain further south. Yesterday's temperatures ranged from a high of 54 degrees to a low of 37, and at 8:30 p. m. mercury stood at 39. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 71 per cent, and rainfall amounted to .01 of an inch.

City Will Collect Christmas Trees

The annual Christmas tree collections will be held next week, the City Health Department announced yesterday.

They will be collected on the regular garbage nights for each area, beginning Sunday night and ending Friday night.

Officials said the trees should be placed on the curbs, beside regular garbage cans, and on regular collection nights. Special trucks will be used to pick up the evergreens, however, since they would be too bulky for the covered trucks used for regular collections.

Garbage collections will be made on schedule this week.

Imperial Milk Plant In Oakland Is Strikebound

Car Overturned In Afternoon Picketing

The Imperial Division plant of Fairmont Foods Corporation, located on Third Street in Oakland has been strikebound since the day before Christmas and a flurry of trouble yesterday afternoon resulted in the overturning of a parked automobile.

Late last night, the situation appeared quite confused and issues involved in the strike were not made clear.

However, a source deemed reliable said that some days ago labor organizers from Uniontown, Pa., representing District 50, United Mine Workers of America began efforts to organize the plant.

Some 12 or 13 plant employes indicated a desire to join the union and demanded union recognition.

22 Workers Employed

Headquarters for this region of Fairmont Foods is Parkersburg, W. Va., and the local plant manager, E. Paige Hickman declined to discuss the situation for publication.

It was learned however, the plant employs a total of 22 persons including staff and office personnel. It serves as a collection point for fresh milk from farms in Garrett, Tucker and Preston counties. It is reliably estimated that the plant purchased more than a million dollars worth of milk this year from farmers in this area.

Some of the mlik is processed at the Oakland plant, while some is hauled in milk tank trucks to larger areas.

Car Overturned

There were a number of townspeople standing about and a number of farmers. The two unidentified labor organizers were seated near the plant in their parked car. Just what happened no one has stated, but their car was suddenly overturned.

One farmer, asked who overturned the car, replied, "The wind blew it over."

At opening time this morning, 7 o'clock, Sheriff Fisher indicated last night, he will be on hand, and LaVale State Police barracks indicated at least one State trooper would be there.

Farmers have stated they plan to deliver their milk to the plant at that time.

There appeared, last night to be no positive developments toward a settlement. Issues were not clear-cut and no one in an official capacity could discuss issues involved.

There were many rumors and numerous reports, but it appeared that the incident at the plant had been very brief and that no one had been injured.

Five Hurt In Headon Crash Near Elkins

Five persons were hurt, at least two seriously, in a headon collision on U. S. Route 219 three miles north of Elkins, W. Va., yesterday afternoon.

In Tucker County Hospital at Parsons are Herman Lambert, prominent Parsons businessman, and his wife, Bess. Lambert has probable chest injuries and multiple abrasions and contusions. His wife was in "serious" condition last night with a fracture of the right leg and undetermined other injuries.

Admitted Forger Gets Suspended Three-Year Term

College Park Man Placed On Probation

Roy E. Rhodes, 36-year-old College Park man who pleaded guilty December 10 in Allegany County Circuit Court to forging a check for $65.05, yesterday afternoon was given a three-year term in the Maryland Penitentiary but Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris suspended the sentence.

In suspending the sentence, Judge Harris placed Rhodes under strict probation. Besides maintaining good behavior, Rhodes must obtain employment and when he does must begin making restitution of $474.35, obtained through eight different forged checks, at the rate of $7 a week through the State's Attorney's office.

Rhodes also must abstain absolutely from the use of alcohol, must support his two minor children and must remain under the supervision of the parole and probation department.

Although Rhodes was charged only with forging the name of his former employer, George L. Shields, to a check for $65.05 cashed here October 19, the College Park man admitted forging eight checks totaling $474.35 here and in Prince George's County. He has been confined in the County Jail here since November 12.

Rhodes had petitioned for an immediate trial, waiving his right to indictment. He was tried on a criminal information filed by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, and was represented by Attorney Edwin M. Horchler.

B&O Caller Hurt In Crash

James Beeseck, 27, of 1107 Lexington Avenue, was admitted to Meyersdale Community Hospital last night, following a one-car mishap on U. S. Route 40 near the Pennsylvania state line west of here.

Maryland State Police were investigating and indicated that Beeseck was a passenger in a car. His companion, another man, was not immediately identified by police.

Authorities said they believed Beeseck may have sustained a fractured skull and also suffered severe facial injuries.

He is employed as a caller by the B & O Railroad, is married, has two small children and is a veteran of World War II.

Police said their first reports indicated the driver lost control of the car, ran off the road and struck a tree or pole.

Jury To Decide If Hospitalized Man Is Sane

Psychiatrist, Patient Are Only Witnesses

Is William H. Brewer, a patient at the Spring Grove State Hospital, sane?

That question will be determined today by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury which spent all day yesterday listening to just two witnesses in the unusual hearing. Mrs. A. Blanche Smith of Little Orleans is foreman of the jury which includes three other women and eight men.

Jurors Excused

Associate Judge George Henderson, presiding at the trial, excused the jurors about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They will return at 9:15 a. m. today to hear the judge's instructions and closing arguments. State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher and his assistant, James Getty, are representing the state. Brewer is represented by Attorney Simon F. Reilly.

This case resulted from the filing of a petition by Brewer asking the court to determine whether he is sane and eligible for his freedom. Brewer lived around Baltimore before his confinement. However, under state law he may file his petition in the Circuit Court of any of the 23 Maryland counties or in Baltimore City.

The two witnesses heard yesterday were Dr. Arthur Hanson, a psychiatrist at Spring Grove, and Brewer himself. Reilly concluded the case for Brewer by reading depositions from three hospital employes, Dixie Blankenship, William A. Young and Charles I. Linton. They all admitted that they had no psychiatric training but said that in their opinion Brewer is sane.

Dr. Hanson was on the witness stand all yesterday morning. He traced Brewer's mental history from 1916 with his treatment in California and later at St. Elizabeth's in Washington. He has been a patient in Spring Grove Hospital on three different occasions, having been most recently committed by Federal Court in 1947.

Chronic Condition

The psychiatrist testified that Brewer is suffering from a chronic mental condition. He termed him as being afflicted with dementia praecox, one of the major mental ills.

Brewer, a soft-speaking native of North Carolina, himself was on the stand several hours yesterday afternoon and answered questions in great detail. He seemed especially gifted at recalling specific dates.

Under cross-examination by Fletcher, the hospital patient identified a letter dated February 20, 1951, as one he had written to a shut-in-agency. The state's attorney read the letter to the jury. In it Brewer identified himself as a representative of a church building fund which sought to sell Christmas cards to get revenue.

The witness explained that he gave a Rev. Campbell $42 from the proceeds of Christmas card sales for building of a new Highland Park Methodist Church. The directory of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church lists no such pastor or church, a church representative said.

Programs To Honor Blind

Note to discontented and disheartened persons: Listen to "The Torchbearers," a program about the blind which begins the first of a series locally this Sunday.

That was the advice handed out yesterday by Charles M. See, field representative for the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, through whose efforts the series of 15-minute programs will be heard over a local radio station. Beginning this Sunday at 12:15 p. m., they will be broadcast as a public service for 12 additional weeks at the same time.

See pointed out that the 13 stories are about people who accomplished more in life than most, despite the fact that they were blind. Prepared in the research library of the American Foundation for the Blind, they are being broadcast in local stations throughout the country. The series is being broadcast in Cumberland in cooperation with the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, where blind adult workers earn a living by performing mechanical and handicraft service.

See added that if any blind person in the area has a question about blindness, services for blind people or employment opportunities for the blind, he may address his inquiries to the Field Office for the Blind, P.O. Box 925, Cumberland, or call 929 and talk to See. The blind are also welcome to visit See's office in the Union Street County Building.

Library Roof Repairs Nearly Completed

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners also has contracted with Herboldsheimer to repair the roof of the library annex, which houses the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office and the Soil Conservation Service office.

Ike Backs Plan To Help Areas Hit By Idleness

To Get Preference On Defense Contract

President Eisenhower yesterday threw his full support behind an administration policy of channeling more defense contracts into areas, such as Cumberland, "where there has been a large amount of unemployment."

The Cumberland area was included in a wide list of localities in which the government said it will seek to combat unemployment through the awarding of more defense contracts.

The President expressed "full agreement" with the federal policy which the Office of Defense Mobilization later said in Washington it announced last Nov. 4.

At that time the ODM named 17 large and 22 smaller metropolitan areas as localities of chronic labor surplus.

Has Full Backing

Washington officials said the President's action evidently was intended to notify the government purchasing agencies of full White House backing for the program.

Eisenhower's endorsement of the policy was made public at his vacation headquarters in Augusta, Ga., by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty. The Secretary also told newsmen that so far as he knew the policy itself was being disclosed for the first time.

The president endorsement came less than 24 hours after a majority of some 300 economists had agreed in Washington that the country is having "an orthodox recession" — mild but general and accompanied by production and payroll cuts.

Hagerty insisted, however, that the timing of the move by Eisenhower was in no way related to views expressed by economist members of the American Statistical Assn.

As for the administration manpower policy channeling more defense contracts into unemployment areas, Hagerty declared in response to a barrage of questions that it was not prompted by any recent developments.

Former Plan Dropped

He said it is designed to relieve joblessness in areas where it has existed "quite a few years," and added:

"This is the first time a national administration has tried to do something about it."

A system of giving preference on government contracts to areas with "surplus manpower" was put into effect by the Truman administration in 1952 and then dropped a few months ago.

Hagert said that so far as he knew the manpower policy was being publicly unveiled for the first time in Eisenhower's comments in a memorandum to Secretary of Defense Wilson, Chairman Lewis W. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission, and the chief of the General Services Administration.

Get Tax Benefits

In the memorandum, the President said Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization "recently issued a manpower policy designed to increase the number of defense contracts that are placed in areas where there has been a large amount of unemployment." Eisenhower added:

"At the same time he (Flemming) directed that new defense plants located in areas where unemployment has been high over a considerable period of time should be given a rapid tax write-off on a larger percentage of their capital investment than would otherwise be the case.

"I am in complete agreement with both of these policies."

Asks Broad Plan

A tax amortization speed-up program for defense plants was in effect before the Eisenhower administration took office, but the President apparently wants it broadened in unemployment areas.

The program for channeling more defense contracts into such areas provides for a formal system of "set-asides." Under it, part of the

Prize-Winning Decorations

These decorations won first prizes in the two divisions of the annual Christmas Home Lighting Contest sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce. In the upper picture is the home of J. U. Wempe, 601 Oldtown Road, which received the top award in the houses and grounds division. Below is shown the exhibit at the home of James Kuhlman in LaVale, which won first prize in the doorways and windows division. Judging in the annual contest was completed last night.

Wempe Given First Prize In Yule Lighting Contest

J. U. Wempe, 601 Oldtown Road, is the first prize winner in the house and grounds division of the annual Christmas Home Lighting Contest, sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

In the other division, for door and window displays, James Kuhlman, RD 1, LaVale, gets the first prize, according to Jack H. Hicks, contest chairman. Kuhlman lives four doors from the State Police barracks in LaVale.

Second prize in the house and grounds competition went to Earle L. Bracey, 2031 Bedford Road, principal of Carver High School. In the other division, John R. Botzum, 1103 Holland Street. In each division the first place winner gets a modern lamp and the runner-up an automatic percolator.

Five other entrants were singled out for honorable mention. In the house and grounds division, mention went to Glenn K. Davis, 515 Dryer Avenue; Raymond Beall, 20 Race Street, and Norman R. Coffman of Bowling Green. Door and window display honorable mention went to Edgar L. Caldwell, 7 South Waverly Terrace, and F. L. Hurt, Bedford Road.

The judges also gave special mention to three areas for the uniform excellency of displays on a number of houses. These include the Zeller's Addition of Braddock Road, Ridgedale Avenue and Bedford Road, especially in the area near Naves Crossroad.

Wempe's prize-winning decorations featured a 19th Century village scene. Small houses, each about three feet tall, with lights in the windows, are situated around his lawn. Children are seen dragging a yule log. There also are horses and sleighs and a stage coach. Of course, Santa Claus is suspended above the village.

Hicks commended residents for the generally fine quality of decorations. He also expressed appreciation to the three judges who traveled around Cumberland and its environs to inspect decorations of contest entrants. The judges were Theodore A. Foote, supervisor of art education in Allegany County public schools; Mrs. Marguerite T. Findlay, member of the City Park Board, and C. William Teubner, display manager at Rosenbaum's.

Yule Lighting Judging Set In Ridgeley Tonight

Judges will tour the Ridgeley area this evening to select the winners in the annual Christmas Outdoor Lighting Contest sponsored by the Ridgeley Lions Club.

Harry Lancaster, Edward M. Kirk and W. Edward Eichner, all of this city, have been selected as judges.

They will be accompanied by Lloyd Coffman, a member of the club, who will act as guide during the judging, slated between 8 and 11:30 p. m.

Some three dozen residents of Ridgeley, Maryland Junction, Carpenters Addition and Wiley Ford, W. Va., have entered the contest.

They will be eligible for eight prizes which have been provided for the contest.

Clarence Hartman, a member of the Lighting Contest committee, said the contest should be a close one, due to the greater interest shown this year.

A tour of the area, he said, shows that many more homes have decorated doors and windows for the Christmas season than ever before.

Party Switch Helps GOP

The Republican Party made a net gain of six voters as a result of last-minute switching of allegiance by Allegany Countians who wish to vote for candidates of a different party in the June 28 statewide primary elections.

On Monday, the last date for changing parties, 10 registered Democrats switched to the Republican ranks while four voters previously classed as Republicans moved over to the Democratic camp.

The deadline for party changing also brought a slight boost in registration at the office of the County Board of Election Supervisors in the Court House basement. Seven new voters registered, five as Republicans and two as Democrats.

Although the deadline for changing parties is past, citizens still have until May 29 to register in order to vote in the June 28 primary election. Any person who will be 21 years of age or will have been a resident of the state one year before November 2, 1954, may register now and vote in the primary election. Registration may be completed any Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. or on Saturday between 9 a. m. and noon at the Board of Election Supervisors office.

City Will Collect Christmas Trees

The annual Christmas tree collections will be held next week, the City Health Department announced yesterday.

They will be collected on the regular garbage nights for each area, beginning Sunday night and ending Friday night.

Officials said the trees should be placed on the curbs, beside regular garbage cans, and on regular collection nights. Special trucks will be used to pick up the evergreens, however, since they would be too bulky for the covered trucks used for regular collections.

Garbage collections will be made on schedule this week.

Imperial Milk Plant In Oakland Is Strikebound

Car Overturned In Afternoon Picketing

The Imperial Division plant of Fairmont Foods Corporation, located on Third Street in Oakland has been strikebound since the day before Christmas and a flurry of trouble yesterday afternoon resulted in the overturning of a parked automobile.

Late last night, the situation appeared quite confused and issues involved in the strike were not made clear.

However, a source deemed reliable said that some days ago labor organizers from Uniontown, Pa., representing District 50, United Mine Workers of America began efforts to organize the plant.

Some 12 or 13 plant employes indicated a desire to join the union and demanded union recognition.

22 Workers Employed

Headquarters for this region of Fairmont Foods is Parkersburg, W. Va., and the local plant manager, E. Paige Hickman declined to discuss the situation for publication.

It was learned however, the plant employs a total of 22 persons including staff and office personnel. It serves as a collection point for fresh milk from farms in Garrett, Tucker and Preston counties. It is reliably estimated that the plant purchased more than a million dollars worth of milk this year from farmers in this area.

Some of the mlik is processed at the Oakland plant, while some is hauled in milk tank trucks to larger areas.

Car Overturned

There were a number of townspeople standing about and a number of farmers. The two unidentified labor organizers were seated near the plant in their parked car. Just what happened no one has stated, but their car was suddenly overturned.

One farmer, asked who overturned the car, replied, "The wind blew it over."

At opening time this morning, 7 o'clock, Sheriff Fisher indicated last night, he will be on hand, and LaVale State Police barracks indicated at least one State trooper would be there.

Farmers have stated they plan to deliver their milk to the plant at that time.

There appeared, last night to be no positive developments toward a settlement. Issues were not clear-cut and no one in an official capacity could discuss issues involved.

There were many rumors and numerous reports, but it appeared that the incident at the plant had been very brief and that no one had been injured.

He has been a patient in Spring Grove Hospital on three different occasions, having been most recently committed by Federal Court in 1947.

Chronic Condition

The psychiatrist testified that Brewer is suffering from a chronic mental condition. He termed him as being afflicted with dementia praecox, one of the major mental ills.

Brewer, a soft-speaking native of North Carolina, himself was on the stand several hours yesterday afternoon and answered questions in great detail. He seemed especially gifted at recalling specific dates.

Under cross-examination by Fletcher, the hospital patient identified a letter dated February 20, 1951, as one he had written to a shut-in-agency. The state's attorney read the letter to the jury. In it Brewer identified himself as a representative of a church building fund which sought to sell Christmas cards to get revenue.

The witness explained that he gave a Rev. Campbell $42 from the proceeds of Christmas card sales for building of a new Highland Park Methodist Church. The directory of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church lists no such pastor or church, a church representative said.

Programs To Honor Blind

Note to discontented and disheartened persons: Listen to "The Torchbearers," a program about the blind which begins the first of a series locally this Sunday.

That was the advice handed out yesterday by Charles M. See, field representative for the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, through whose efforts the series of 15-minute programs will be heard over a local radio station. Beginning this Sunday at 12:15 p. m., they will be broadcast as a public service for 12 additional weeks at the same time.

See pojnted out that the 13 stories are about people who accomplished more in life than most, despite the fact that they were blind. Prepared in the research library of the American Foundation for the Blind, they are being broadcast in local stations throughout the country. The series is being broadcast in Cumberland in cooperation with the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, where blind adult workers earn a living by performing mechanical and handicraft service.

See added that if any blind person in the area has a question about blindness, services for blind people or employment opportunities for the blind, he may address his inquiries to the Field Office for the Blind, P.O. Box 925, Cumberland, or call 929 and talk to See. The blind are also welcome to visit See's office in the Union Street County Building.

Library Roof Repairs Nearly Completed

Workmen employed by John H. Herboldsheimer, local roofer, yesterday afternoon virtually completed the painting of the roof of the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Earlier they had replaced spouting on the west side of the building. The Allegany County Board of Commissioners also has contracted with Herboldsheimer to repair the roof of the library annex, which houses the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office and the Soil Conservation Service office.
